Seven Charges Filed

Seven charges were filed against a Sikeston man Monday night.

William Nicholson Jr., 31, 332 Luther, was stopped by a policeman on North Street at 6:54 p.m. for a routine check for a city sticker. Police gave this report:

Nicholson's car did not have a city license. He was asked for his driver's license, and did not produce it. He told police he had a permit to operate a vehicle with a licensed driver in the front seat but he did not produce that permit.

Nicholson told police that he wanted to take the car to his father's house. Officer Hiram Gardner Jr. followed and Nicholson began speeding on Davis Road. Nicholson did not stop when Gardner flashed his red light. Gardner called Sgt. Richard Wallace for help and Nicholson ran the stop sign at Davis Road and Salcedo. Police chased Nicholson on Salcedo to Brown Spur Road, where he turned north.

Sgt. Wallace arrested Nicholson on Brown Spur Road.

He was charged with driving without a license, improper registration, speeding, running a stop sign, having no city auto license, disturbing the peace by loud and profane language and resisting arrest.

A man who returned from a two week vacation Monday reported to police at 6:55 p.m. that items valued at $1,051 were missing from his house.

In other police activity, a prowler was reported at 9:55 p.m. Monday in the 500 block of South Prairie. Police checked the area, but found no one.

Parade To Take New Route

The Jaycee Rodeo parade will begin at 7 p.m. Wednesday on the old south grade school lot. It will proceed east on Malone and disperse at the Mid-Towner Village Shopping Center.

Parade chairman Peter Myers reports that this year's parade differs from past routes. Both business districts will see the parade, he said.

Previous parades wound around the downtown businesses.

Three local rock 'n' roll bands will be in the parade: "The Escorts", "The Rebels", and the "Epic of the South."

Mrs. Keith Collins, the Woman of the Year, and George Hale, Chamber of Commerce Man of the Year, will ride in convertibles in the parade.

Also, rodeo queen Patti McMullin and the little Miss and Mister Western will be in the parade.

Rodeo clowns, horses, the SEMO Shrine Mounted Patrol, the Sikeston Horse Club, several equipment dealers and radio station vehicles will be included.

Police will direct traffic and block the Malone and Main intersection for the parade, Myers said.

3,950 Students Expected for Public School Opening Aug. 28

The public schools will open Aug. 28 with full day classes for all students.

The early date of opening will permit children to be dismissed during in-service training for teachers. Dates for the workshops have not been set.

School will end May 31.

The opening will be preceded by the week-long teacher orientation work shop, which will begin at 9:30 a.m. Aug. 21.

Grouping of elementery children for reading instruction will no longer be on the basis of alphebetical order or random classification. They have been pre-grouped on the basis of reading ability. Each classroom will have three reading groups. Each group will be supplied with textbooks and materials related to the reading level of the group. Children will no longer exchange rooms for reading instruction.

More attention will be given to the child with special needs, such as low reading abilities by involving the teacher, the counselor, teachers with specialized abilities and other members of the school staff who will work as a team.

Enrollment estimates are for 3,950 students, slightly above last year's enrollment. Total enrollment during the year probably will surpass 4,300.

Two elementary faculty positions are vacant. A high school special education teacher may be employed. Approximately 225 teachers and administrators make up the school staff.

Eleven school buses will operate. The food service department will provide a noonday meal, available to all school children.

School officials expect difficulties in operating around the building program at the high school. This work includes enlargement of the library, the school kitchen, and the cafetorium and additions to the mathematics-science complex and the vocational school. It will at times affect the school lunch service as meals are prepared in the high school kitchen for most of the elementary schools. Officials asked students, teachers and parents to be patient and understanding.

Students in the junior high school and the high school, will check out text books Monday through Aug. 18. The schedule:

Sophomores -- Monday, 8 a.m. - noon, A thru H; 1 p.m. - 3 p.m., I thru L; next Tuesday, 8 a.m. - noon, M thru T; 1 p.m. - 3 p.m., U thru Z.

THE HOME OF SGT. JAMES SATTERFIELD, 1607 East Kathleen St., was virtually destroyed by an early morning fire today. Satterfield is finishing a two-week encampment at Camp Ripley, Minn., with the National Guards.

Guard Away, House Burns

The interior of the home of James Satterfield, 25, and its contents was destroyed by fire early today.

The one-story white siding home is at 1607 East Kathleen St., was purchased by Satterfield four years ago. He lived there alone.

He is away at National Guard camp in Ripley, Minn., and will return Sunday from the two-week encampment. He has been a member of the Guards six years and is associated in business with his father, Wade Satterfield, in Wade's Body Shop on Maude street.

Satterfield is a member of company B, 140th infantry, 35th division, mechanized of the National Guards with the rank of sergeant.

The fire is believed to have started around 5 a.m. The fire department arrived 20 minutes later, with the interior ablaze. The fire was brought under control at 7:30 a.m.

The fire was believed to have started in the southeast wall. Heaviest damage was in the attic and ceiling. The cause has not been determined.

Aiken Says More Tax Hikes May Be on Way

WASHINGTON (AP) -- Sen. George D. Aiken says he has been told President Johnson's war-related tax increase proposal "isn't half of what they will need. They are going to try to put off asking for the rest of it until after the election" next year.

The Vermont Republic said in an interview if the administration doesn't "listen to reason pretty soon" on Vietnam, "it will have written one of the worst chapters in American history or, indeed, in world history."

Aiken said his constituents are protesting the 10 per cent surtax on income taxes asked by Johnson Thursday to help finance mounting war costs.

The senator, second-ranking Republican on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and a persistant war policy critic, said he had been "reliably informed" that the requested tax hike was less than half of what is needed.

He said he agrees with the assessment Monday by Democratic leader Mike Mansfield that the administration is planning a further escalation of the war.

Mansfield told the Senate Monday it appeared there was going to be a further escalation of the fighting "with the costs in lives and money being borne preponderately by us."

He said many things pointed to a longer war and less pointed to peace, including Johnson's decision to send 45,000 more men and the battleship New Jersey to the combat zone and what he described as apparently unsuccessful efforts to persuade U. S. allies to contribute more troops.

Explosions Rip Oil Refinery

LAKE CHARLES, La. (AP) — Two powerful explosions and 13 smaller blasts shattered portions of the Cities Service Co. oil refinery today, injuring 14 men and causing extensive property damage in downtown Lake Charles. Four workmen were reported missing.

An estimated 50 heavy plate-glass store windows were blow out when the first blast erupted at 4:45 a.m., touching off a fierce fire amid the complex of refining towers and storage tanks.

The area was quickly evacuated and sealed off for fear of additional blasts at the sprawling plant on the west bank of the Calcasieu River in extreme southwest Louisiana.

The hazard of continuing explosions was made worse by the lack of power during the early morning hours. The company powerhouse was rendered inoperative by the force of the major blasts, and firefighters lacked sufficient water to cool off neighboring high-pressure storage tanks and refining units.

For safety reasons, reinforcements of firemen from Lake Charles and surrounding areas temporarily were kept back one-half mile from the gates of the plant while the company's firefighting specialists sought to contain the blazing oil and gas.

Referring to a large refining unit used to produce high-octane products, one spokesman said: "It will level a quarter of a mile if it goes."

The company quickly cut off the flow of crude oil into the refinery from Sour Lake, Tex., and as each hour passed the danger of further damage lessened. Foam was pumped into sewer lines to block the fire from spreading to oil which spilled into drainage ducts.

The series of explosions was started by a leak in a fuel line, a company spokesman said. "The leak probably was catapulted into an explosion front a nearby furnace," he added.

"Only four men are unaccounted for, although we are still checking," said Robert Forest, a spokesman for the oil company.

Calcasieu Parish Sheriff Henry A. Reid said he had no report of anyone being killed.

Residents of Lake Charles, a city of 63,000 population, were shocked from sleep when the first thunderous jolt struck. Those in the area of the impact rushed into the street in nightclothes.

Police patrolled the streets to prevent looting in the damaged areas. The force of the explosions was felt in nearby West Lake and Sulphur, a small community near the Texas line.

Twitty Appointed To Jobs Committee

Lynn Twitty, superintendent of schools, was appointed to the executive committee of Missouri Opportunities Inc. at an organizational meeting in Jefferson city.

The committee, consisting of 33 business, labor and commerce leaders, completed Job Corps training, in finding jobs. Another function will be to help plan Job Corps programs.

Police Question Searcher After Girl's Body Found

GIRARD, Pa. (AP) — The partially clothed body of little Connie Rae Carstater, missing since Sunday in swamplands near her home, was found today, and a deputy coroner said she was murdered.

Minutes later state police took one of the searchers into custody for questioning. They declined to identify him.

Deputy Coroner Leo Weir said the body of the 12-year-old girl was found face down in about a foot of water. It had been covered with leaves and branches in a dense thicket about 100 yards from a highway.

The body was taken to an Erie hospital for an autopsy.

The girl had pedaled her bicycle to a grocery store three miles from her home Sunday, cashed a $2 check she was given Saturday for her 12th birthday, purchased some candy and fishing equipment, then disappeared.

Her bicycle and bag of purchases were found in bushes 300 feet from a road about one-half mile from her home. A state trooper said it was improbable Connie Rae rode her bike into the rough bushes.

"It looks like it was carried back and then thrown into the brush," he said.

More than 200 volunteer searchers, aided by airplanes, helicopters and tracking dogs, combed the heavily wooded, swampy area where Connie Rae's articles were found.

Connie Rae's mother, Janet, separated from her husband, notified state police when the youngster failed to return home some two hours after her shopping trip.

Connie Rae was the second Erie County child to have been found dead in a little more than a year. On July 19, 1966, the body of Christine Watson was found, her throat slashed, in some bushes near her home in Millcreek. Authorities still are searching for her slayer.

A boy playing with her said she had gone off with a man who asked her to go into the woods to see minnows. The boy fled. The girl's body was found a few hours later.

Employment Hits All-Time Peak During Month of July

WASHINGTON (AP) — Employment increased more than usual in July, reaching 76.2 million, the highest it has ever been in the United States, the Labor Department said today.

The unemployment rate for July was 3.9 per cent, practically unchanged from 4 per cent last month and from the July 1966 rate.

Harold Goldstein, assistant commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, summed up the job picture this way: "Some strength in employment, no basic change in unemployment from June to July."

Goldstein explained that July traditionally is a high employment month, but the total for July 1967 was a new high even on a seasonally adjusted basis.

Total unemployment in July was 3.25 million, an increase of 200,000 from the July 1966 level. All the rise in joblessness over the year took place among teenagers and adult women, the department said.

Employment, which had declined earlier in 1967, has recovered steadily in the last two months, more than regaining the earlier losses, the department said. Nonfarm payroll employment, seasonally adjusted, rose by 200,000 in July, following an increase of 250,000 in June.

In a separate section on the summer job situation for youths, the department said a total of 12.5 million youths 16 to 21 years of age were working or seeking work this summer, an increase of 500,000 over 1964 summer level.

The department said population expansion in this age group— youngsters born in the years following World War II— accounts for a large part of the growth. Also, it said, more of the youths were seeking work.

Hot, Showery Night Expected

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Showery, hot and humid— that's the weather menu in Missouri today.

Thunderstorms struck in northwest Missouri this morning. A heavy storm developed today in the Kirksville area in the northeast where 1.25 inches of rain fell Monday.

The Weather Bureau said the rains will spread to southern and eastern Missouri by tonight. They will cease in the northwest tonight.

Top temperatures in the 90s were forecast for all of the state today. West Plains had a 96 Monday.

Forecasts indicated it may be slightly cooler over the state Wednesday with less humidity.

Jetliner Makes Uneasy Landing

NEW YORK (AP)— An American Airlines jet carrying 35 persons, its front landing gear stuck in a closed position, set down on its wing wheels today and skidded to a safe stop.

The plane, Flight 418 from Syracuse, N.Y., had been due to land at Newark, N.J., at 7:53 a.m., but was diverted to Kennedy International Airport because of that airport's longer runways.

It swept back and forth over the field, clearly visible from the ground.

The emergency vehicles, including ambulances and fire engines, were strung out along the runway as the twin-engine, British-made BAC111 touched down gracefully on the wing wheels, rolled for several hundred yards and finally came to rest on the wing wheels and nose.

Council Reviews Fires

Creation of a plumbers examiners board, a brief report on the city's comprehensive plan and extra help to guard the Sikeston Compress from arsonists headed the list of business discussed at the Monday night city council meeting.

City Manager W. Raymert Miller related to council members that he knows a plumbers board of examiners will be necessary eventually as the city grows. Perhaps the time for creating one is now, he said.

The board's composition is not as important as its function, Miller said. It would have the authority to give plumbers coming into the city an examination and decide whether they were qualified to perform work here, he said.

Miller said he would draft and ordinance setting up a review board and present it for the council's consideration.

The examiner's board would not affect plumbers presently licensed, Miller said.

Miller also told the council members that Harland Batholomew & Associates representatives have begun the land use phase of the city's comprehensive plan and will meet with the planning commission and council members Sept. 12.

Mayor Kendall Sikes reported that the city presently is spending about $500 per week to employ extra guards for the Sikeston Compress.

Sikes said it is well known that two fires were set at the Compress in the past few weeks, and the extra guards were needed for the protection of the building.

City representatives have been told by Roy Weiss, director of Transogram, that if the Compress burns, Anchor Toy Corp. would close the next day.

Anchor Toy Corp. is a subsidiary of Transogram and has finished products and raw materials for toys stored in the compress. The value of goods is said to be $1,800,000, Sikes reported.

In further discussion, Sikes related that the city has also been told that if the compress were to burn, it would not be rebuilt.

There are about 30 Negroes working at Anchor Toy and from 10 to 15 Negroes working at the compress, Sikes said. The Negro community is well aware of the extra guards, he noted.

Councilman Harry Dudley expressed his opposition to the idea of having to spend money for guards, and asked about the incidents when Negroes threw rocks and bottles at police and firemen at the first compress fire July 30.

Police Chief Arthur Bruce reported that rocks and bottles were thrown, but no one involved has been positively identified.

Police are investigating the matter further, he told the council.

In other council business, a resolution transferring $7,500 from the contingency fund to pay interest on the 1965 Water and Sewer bonds was authorized. This move was prompted to allow the money in the water and sewer fund to gain interest. It is deposited in time certificates, Miller explained.

New Political Bloc Appears On Viet Scene

SAIGON (AP) — A new political bloc that has the potential of becoming the most powerful in South Vietnam began its first national convention in Saigon today.

Political analysts say that if the elements in the bloc can be pulled together into some type of political alliance, the group could control up to one million votes among the 5.4 million registered voters.

All indications are that the new political grouping, which calls itself Toan Iet— all Vietnam— tends to be progovernment. However, it cannot be called a government party.

The three tickets are considered heavily progovernment.

There is an outside chance that the group also will endorse the military presidential ticket of Chief of State Nguyen Van Thieu and Premier Nguyen Cao Ky. But it was thought that certain elements in the bloc would prevent any endorsement in the presidential race.

Many members of the new bloc are civil servants and officials of the government who could be considered working for Premier Ky. Whether the group will be rigidly pro-Ky remains to be seen.

South Vietnam's civilian presidential candidates, who left 1,000 voters waiting Sunday when the candidates' plane landed them 10 miles away decided today to hit the campaign trail again, one candidate said.

The candidates had flown in a government plane from Saigon to Quang Tri, first stop on a scheduled 22-stop campaign tour arranged by the government. Adverse winds kept their plane from landing at Quang Tri and it touched down 10 miles away. When the candidates saw no crowd to greet them, they left in a huff for Saigon. Most of the candidates claimed the government had sabotaged their trip and nine of them drafted an angry letter to Ky and Thieu.

Red Defector Says Allies Will Win War in 2-3 Years

SAIGON (AP) — A Communist defector introduced by the South Vietnamese government as a lieutenant colonel said today the allies will win the war, perhaps in two or three years.

"The last victory will belong to the government and the allies," Huynh Cu told a news conference.

Though intelligence estimates of enemy strength within South Vietnam have remained for weeks at about 296,000, Cu said it is difficult these days for the Viet Cong to recruit new men.

Speaking through a Vietnamese army English-language interpreter, Cu said one district he was familiar with in the northern province of Quang Ngai had a quota of 100 recruits in the first three months of this year, but only three were found.

"Most of the young men had left the district," he said. "The rest did not like the Communists, or they said they were sick and in bad physical condition."

Cu, 39, was said to have commanded every size Viet Cong unit from squad to battalion. He said he has been a Communist since 1946 and fought the French with the Viet Minh.

Born in Quang Ngai Province, he returned from the North in 1963. He said his duties, writing tactical manuals, training, kept him in the mountains of the northern sector. He had made only two trips to the coastal plain and on the second, in March, he turned himself over to government troops along with his wife and adopted son.

Asked to compare the troops he fought against, Cu said the Americans have tremendous firepower.

"The soldiers have harmony with their airplanes," he said. "They have favorable conditions to fight."

Remembering a regiment-size Viet Cong ambush, Cu said: "The Americans were calm. They attacked our strong side and inflicted heavy casualties."

However, Cu said, the American soldier is slow on his feet, not because of his big pack, but "because he is so big himself."

Cu said the South Korean troops are perhaps the toughest. He recalled a Viet Cong attack against a Korean company in which 200 Viet Cong were killed.

"They were brave and experienced in hand to hand combat. They were good shots," he said.

Cu said he defected because he "likes the freedom and democracy of South Vietnam" and believes the North Vietnamese should not send troops to the South.

John Adams was chosen the nation's second President by the slim margin of three electorial votes, 71 to 68.

Five Hurt in Three Road Mishaps

An eight-year-old boy riding a pony near Braggadocio was hit by a car, three were injured in a chain reaction crash in Hayti at a stop sign and two were hurt north of East Prairie in a two-car collision.

Eight-year old Randall Scott, route one, Hayti, was bruised on the head while riding a pony on highway J, two and one-half miles east of Braggadocio Monday at 10:45 a.m.

The animal was struck by a 1967 Dodge, driven by Herman Lane, 53, Caruthersville, when the pony jumped into the path of the car.

The Hayti crash was at 9 a.m. on highway 61.

Injured in the Dempsey car was the driver with head injuries. Two daughters were hurt. Diane, five, received a fractured jaw, and Linda, three, was bruised and scratched.

The three were taken to the Pemiscot County Memorial hospital in Hayti.

Monday at 2:50 p.m. on highway 105, two miles north of East Prairie a 1958 Buick, driven by James Ross, 71, Sikeston, attempted a left turn, when he was struck by a 1960 Ford, driven by Dennis Kindle, 20, Wheeling, Ill.

Nicholson told police that he wanted to take the car to his father's house. Officer Hiram Gardner Jr. followed and Nicholson began speeding on Davis Road. Nicholson did not stop when Gardner flashed his red light. Gardner called Sgt. Richard Wallace for help and Nicholson ran the stop sign at Davis Road and Salcedo. Police chased Nicholson on Salcedo to Brown Spur Road, where he turned north.

Parade To Take New Route

The Jaycee Rodeo parade will begin at 7 p.m. Wednesday on the old south grade school lot. It will proceed east on Malone and disperse at the Mid-Towner Village Shopping Center.

Parade chairman Peter Myers reports that this year's parade differs from past routes. Both business districts will see the parade, he said.

Previous parades wound around the downtown businesses.

Three local rock 'n' roll bands will be in the parade: "The Escorts", "The Rebels", and the "Epic of the South."

Mrs. Keith Collins, the Woman of the Year, and George Hale, Chamber of Commerce Man of the Year, will ride in convertibles in the parade.

Also, rodeo queen Patti McMullin and the little Miss and Mister Western will be in the parade.

Rodeo clowns, horses, the SEMO Shrine Mounted Patrol, the Sikeston Horse Club, several equipment dealers and radio station vehicles will be included.

Police will direct traffic and block the Malone and Main intersection for the parade, Myers said.

3,950 Students Expected for Public School Opening Aug. 28

The public schools will open Aug. 28 with full day classes for all students.

The early date of opening will permit children to be dismissed during in-service training for teachers. Dates for the workshops have not been set.

School will end May 31.

The opening will be preceded by the week-long teacher orientation work shop, which will begin at 9:30 a.m. Aug. 21.

Grouping of elementery children for reading instruction will no longer be on the basis of alphebetical order or random classification. They have been pre-grouped on the basis of reading ability. Each classroom will have three reading groups. Each group will be supplied with textbooks and materials related to the reading level of the group. Children will no longer exchange rooms for reading instruction.

More attention will be given to the child with special needs, such as low reading abilities by involving the teacher, the counselor, teachers with specialized abilities and other members of the school staff who will work as a team.

Enrollment estimates are for 3,950 students, slightly above last year's enrollment. Total enrollment during the year probably will surpass 4,300.

Two elementary faculty positions are vacant. A high school special education teacher may be employed. Approximately 225 teachers and administrators make up the school staff.

Eleven school buses will operate. The food service department will provide a noonday meal, available to all school children.

School officials expect difficulties in operating around the building program at the high school. This work includes enlargement of the library, the school kitchen, and the cafetorium and additions to the mathematics-science complex and the vocational school. It will at times affect the school lunch service as meals are prepared in the high school kitchen for most of the elementary schools. Officials asked students, teachers and parents to be patient and understanding.

Students in the junior high school and the high school, will check out text books Monday through Aug. 18. The schedule:

Sophomores -- Monday, 8 a.m. - noon, A thru H; 1 p.m. - 3 p.m., I thru L; next Tuesday, 8 a.m. - noon, M thru T; 1 p.m. - 3 p.m., U thru Z.

Juniors -- Aug. 16, 8 a.m. - noon, A thru H; 1 p.m. - 3 p.m., I thru L. Aug. 17, 8 a.m. - noon, M thru T; 1 p.m. - 3 p.m., U thru Z.

Seniors -- Aug. 18, 8 a.m. - noon, A thru P; 1 p.m. - 3 p.m., Q thru Z.

Junior high school's textbook checkout will be Ninth Grade - Monday, 8:30 a.m. - 4 p.m.; Eighth Grade - next Tuesday, 8:30 a.m. - 4 p.m.; Seventh Grade - Aug. 16, 8:30 a.m. - 4 p.m.

THE HOME OF SGT. JAMES SATTERFIELD, 1607 East Kathleen St., was virtually destroyed by an early morning fire today. Satterfield is finishing a two-week encampment at Camp Ripley, Minn., with the National Guards.

Guard Away, House Burns

The interior of the home of James Satterfield, 25, and its contents was destroyed by fire early today.

The one-story white siding home is at 1607 East Kathleen St., was purchased by Satterfield four years ago. He lived there alone.

He is away at National Guard camp in Ripley, Minn., and will return Sunday from the two-week encampment. He has been a member of the Guards six years and is associated in business with his father, Wade Satterfield, in Wade's Body Shop on Maude street.

Satterfield is a member of company B, 140th infantry, 35th division, mechanized of the National Guards with the rank of sergeant.

The fire is believed to have started around 5 a.m. The fire department arrived 20 minutes later, with the interior ablaze. The fire was brought under control at 7:30 a.m.

The fire was believed to have started in the southeast wall. Heaviest damage was in the attic and ceiling. The cause has not been determined.

Aiken Says More Tax Hikes May Be on Way

WASHINGTON (AP) -- Sen. George D. Aiken says he has been told President Johnson's war-related tax increase proposal "isn't half of what they will need. They are going to try to put off asking for the rest of it until after the election" next year.

The Vermont Republic said in an interview if the administration doesn't "listen to reason pretty soon" on Vietnam, "it will have written one of the worst chapters in American history or, indeed, in world history."

Aiken said his constituents are protesting the 10 per cent surtax on income taxes asked by Johnson Thursday to help finance mounting war costs.

The senator, second-ranking Republican on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and a persistant war policy critic, said he had been "reliably informed" that the requested tax hike was less than half of what is needed.

He said he agrees with the assessment Monday by Democratic leader Mike Mansfield that the administration is planning a further escalation of the war.

Mansfield told the Senate Monday it appeared there was going to be a further escalation of the fighting "with the costs in lives and money being borne preponderately by us."

He said many things pointed to a longer war and less pointed to peace, including Johnson's decision to send 45,000 more men and the battleship New Jersey to the combat zone and what he described as apparently unsuccessful efforts to persuade U. S. allies to contribute more troops.

Council Reviews Fires

Creation of a plumbers examiners board, a brief report on the city's comprehensive plan and extra help to guard the Sikeston Compress from arsonists headed the list of business discussed at the Monday night city council meeting.

City Manager W. Raymert Miller related to council members that he knows a plumbers board of examiners will be necessary eventually as the city grows. Perhaps the time for creating one is now, he said.

The board's composition is not as important as its function, Miller said. It would have the authority to give plumbers coming into the city an examination and decide whether they were qualified to perform work here, he said.

Miller said he would draft and ordinance setting up a review board and present it for the council's consideration.

The examiner's board would not affect plumbers presently licensed, Miller said.

Miller also told the council members that Harland Batholomew & Associates representatives have begun the land use phase of the city's comprehensive plan and will meet with the planning commission and council members Sept. 12.

Mayor Kendall Sikes reported that the city presently is spending about $500 per week to employ extra guards for the Sikeston Compress.

Sikes said it is well known that two fires were set at the Compress in the past few weeks, and the extra guards were needed for the protection of the building.

City representatives have been told by Roy Weiss, director of Transogram, that if the Compress burns, Anchor Toy Corp. would close the next day.

Anchor Toy Corp. is a subsidiary of Transogram and has finished products and raw materials for toys stored in the compress. The value of goods is said to be $1,800,000, Sikes reported.

In further discussion, Sikes related that the city has also been told that if the compress were to burn, it would not be rebuilt.

There are about 30 Negroes working at Anchor Toy and from 10 to 15 Negroes working at the compress, Sikes said. The Negro community is well aware of the extra guards, he noted.

Councilman Harry Dudley expressed his opposition to the idea of having to spend money for guards, and asked about the incidents when Negroes threw rocks and bottles at police and firemen at the first compress fire July 30.

Police Chief Arthur Bruce reported that rocks and bottles were thrown, but no one involved has been positively identified.

Police are investigating the matter further, he told the council.

In other council business, a resolution transferring $7,500 from the contingency fund to pay interest on the 1965 Water and Sewer bonds was authorized. This move was prompted to allow the money in the water and sewer fund to gain interest. It is deposited in time certificates, Miller explained.

Explosions Rip Oil Refinery

LAKE CHARLES, La. (AP) — Two powerful explosions and 13 smaller blasts shattered portions of the Cities Service Co. oil refinery today, injuring 14 men and causing extensive property damage in downtown Lake Charles. Four workmen were reported missing.

An estimated 50 heavy plate-glass store windows were blow out when the first blast erupted at 4:45 a.m., touching off a fierce fire amid the complex of refining towers and storage tanks.

The area was quickly evacuated and sealed off for fear of additional blasts at the sprawling plant on the west bank of the Calcasieu River in extreme southwest Louisiana.

The hazard of continuing explosions was made worse by the lack of power during the early morning hours. The company powerhouse was rendered inoperative by the force of the major blasts, and firefighters lacked sufficient water to cool off neighboring high-pressure storage tanks and refining units.

For safety reasons, reinforcements of firemen from Lake Charles and surrounding areas temporarily were kept back one-half mile from the gates of the plant while the company's firefighting specialists sought to contain the blazing oil and gas.

Referring to a large refining unit used to produce high-octane products, one spokesman said: "It will level a quarter of a mile if it goes."

The company quickly cut off the flow of crude oil into the refinery from Sour Lake, Tex., and as each hour passed the danger of further damage lessened. Foam was pumped into sewer lines to block the fire from spreading to oil which spilled into drainage ducts.

The series of explosions was started by a leak in a fuel line, a company spokesman said. "The leak probably was catapulted into an explosion front a nearby furnace," he added.

"Only four men are unaccounted for, although we are still checking," said Robert Forest, a spokesman for the oil company.

Calcasieu Parish Sheriff Henry A. Reid said he had no report of anyone being killed.

Residents of Lake Charles, a city of 63,000 population, were shocked from sleep when the first thunderous jolt struck. Those in the area of the impact rushed into the street in nightclothes.

Police patrolled the streets to prevent looting in the damaged areas. The force of the explosions was felt in nearby West Lake and Sulphur, a small community near the Texas line.

Twitty Appointed To Jobs Committee

Lynn Twitty, superintendent of schools, was appointed to the executive committee of Missouri Opportunities Inc. at an organizational meeting in Jefferson city.

The committee, consisting of 33 business, labor and commerce leaders, completed Job Corps training, in finding jobs. Another function will be to help plan Job Corps programs.

Police Question Searcher After Girl's Body Found

GIRARD, Pa. (AP) — The partially clothed body of little Connie Rae Carstater, missing since Sunday in swamplands near her home, was found today, and a deputy coroner said she was murdered.

Minutes later state police took one of the searchers into custody for questioning. They declined to identify him.

Deputy Coroner Leo Weir said the body of the 12-year-old girl was found face down in about a foot of water. It had been covered with leaves and branches in a dense thicket about 100 yards from a highway.

The body was taken to an Erie hospital for an autopsy.

The girl had pedaled her bicycle to a grocery store three miles from her home Sunday, cashed a $2 check she was given Saturday for her 12th birthday, purchased some candy and fishing equipment, then disappeared.

Her bicycle and bag of purchases were found in bushes 300 feet from a road about one-half mile from her home. A state trooper said it was improbable Connie Rae rode her bike into the rough bushes.

"It looks like it was carried back and then thrown into the brush," he said.

More than 200 volunteer searchers, aided by airplanes, helicopters and tracking dogs, combed the heavily wooded, swampy area where Connie Rae's articles were found.

Connie Rae's mother, Janet, separated from her husband, notified state police when the youngster failed to return home some two hours after her shopping trip.

Connie Rae was the second Erie County child to have been found dead in a little more than a year. On July 19, 1966, the body of Christine Watson was found, her throat slashed, in some bushes near her home in Millcreek. Authorities still are searching for her slayer.

A boy playing with her said she had gone off with a man who asked her to go into the woods to see minnows. The boy fled. The girl's body was found a few hours later.

Employment Hits All-Time Peak During Month of July

WASHINGTON (AP) — Employment increased more than usual in July, reaching 76.2 million, the highest it has ever been in the United States, the Labor Department said today.

The unemployment rate for July was 3.9 per cent, practically unchanged from 4 per cent last month and from the July 1966 rate.

Harold Goldstein, assistant commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, summed up the job picture this way: "Some strength in employment, no basic change in unemployment from June to July."

Goldstein explained that July traditionally is a high employment month, but the total for July 1967 was a new high even on a seasonally adjusted basis.

Total unemployment in July was 3.25 million, an increase of 200,000 from the July 1966 level. All the rise in joblessness over the year took place among teenagers and adult women, the department said.

Employment, which had declined earlier in 1967, has recovered steadily in the last two months, more than regaining the earlier losses, the department said. Nonfarm payroll employment, seasonally adjusted, rose by 200,000 in July, following an increase of 250,000 in June.

In a separate section on the summer job situation for youths, the department said a total of 12.5 million youths 16 to 21 years of age were working or seeking work this summer, an increase of 500,000 over 1964 summer level.

The department said population expansion in this age group— youngsters born in the years following World War II— accounts for a large part of the growth. Also, it said, more of the youths were seeking work.

Jetliner Makes Uneasy Landing

NEW YORK (AP)— An American Airlines jet carrying 35 persons, its front landing gear stuck in a closed position, set down on its wing wheels today and skidded to a safe stop.

The plane, Flight 418 from Syracuse, N.Y., had been due to land at Newark, N.J., at 7:53 a.m., but was diverted to Kennedy International Airport because of that airport's longer runways.

It swept back and forth over the field, clearly visible from the ground.

The emergency vehicles, including ambulances and fire engines, were strung out along the runway as the twin-engine, British-made BAC111 touched down gracefully on the wing wheels, rolled for several hundred yards and finally came to rest on the wing wheels and nose.

New Political Bloc Appears On Viet Scene

SAIGON (AP) — A new political bloc that has the potential of becoming the most powerful in South Vietnam began its first national convention in Saigon today.

Political analysts say that if the elements in the bloc can be pulled together into some type of political alliance, the group could control up to one million votes among the 5.4 million registered voters.

All indications are that the new political grouping, which calls itself Toan let— all Vietnam— tends to be progovernment. However, it cannot be called a government party.

The three tickets are considered heavily progovernment.

There is an outside chance that the group also will endorse the military presidential ticket of Chief of State Nguyen Van Thieu and Premier Nguyen Cao Ky. But it was thought that certain elements in the bloc would prevent any endorsement in the presidential race.

Many members of the new bloc are civil servants and officials of the government who could be considered working for Premier Ky. Whether the group will be rigidly pro-Ky remains to be seen.

South Vietnam's civilian presidential candidates, who left 1,000 voters waiting Sunday when the candidates' plane landed them 10 miles away decided today to hit the campaign trail again, one candidate said.

The candidates had flown in a government plane from Saigon to Quang Tri, first stop on a scheduled 22-stop campaign tour arranged by the government. Adverse winds kept their plane from landing at Quang Tri and it touched down 10 miles away. When the candidates saw no crowd to greet them, they left in a huff for Saigon. Most of the candidates claimed the government had sabotaged their trip and nine of them drafted an angry letter to Ky and Thieu.

Red Defector Says Allies Will Win War in 2-3 Years

SAIGON (AP) — A Communist defector introduced by the South Vietnamese government as a lieutenant colonel said today the allies will win the war, perhaps in two or three years.

"The last victory will belong to the government and the allies," Huynh Cu told a news conference.

Though intelligence estimates of enemy strength within South Vietnam have remained for weeks at about 296,000, Cu said it is difficult these days for the Viet Cong to recruit new men.

Speaking through a Vietnamese army English-language interpreter, Cu said one district he was familiar with in the northern province of Quang Ngai had a quota of 100 recruits in the first three months of this year, but only three were found.

"Most of the young men had left the district," he said. "The rest did not like the Communists, or they said they were sick and in bad physical condition."

Cu, 39, was said to have commanded every size Viet Cong unit from squad to battalion. He said he has been a Communist since 1946 and fought the French with the Viet Minh.

Born in Quang Ngai Province, he returned from the North in 1963. He said his duties, writing tactical manuals, training, kept him in the mountains of the northern sector. He had made only two trips to the coastal plain and on the second, in March, he turned himself over to government troops along with his wife and adopted son.

Asked to compare the troops he fought against, Cu said the Americans have tremendous firepower.

"The soldiers have harmony with their airplanes," he said. "They have favorable conditions to fight."

Remembering a regiment-size Viet Cong ambush, Cu said: "The Americans were calm. They attacked our strong side and inflicted heavy casualties."

However, Cu said, the American soldier is slow on his feet, not because of his big pack, but "because he is so big himself."

Cu said the South Korean troops are perhaps the toughest. He recalled a Viet Cong attack against a Korean company in which 200 Viet Cong were killed.

"They were brave and experienced in hand to hand combat. They were good shots," he said.

Cu said he defected because he "likes the freedom and democracy of South Vietnam" and believes the North Vietnamese should not send troops to the South.

John Adams was chosen the nation's second President by the slim margin of three electorial votes, 71 to 68.

Five Hurt in Three Road Mishaps

An eight-year-old boy riding a pony near Braggadocio was hit by a car, three were injured in a chain reaction crash in Hayti at a stop sign and two were hurt north of East Prairie in a two-car collision.

Eight-year old Randall Scott, route one, Hayti, was bruised on the head while riding a pony on highway J, two and one-half miles east of Braggadocio Monday at 10:45 a.m.

The animal was struck by a 1967 Dodge, driven by Herman Lane, 53, Caruthersville, when the pony jumped into the path of the car.

The Hayti crash was at 9 a.m. on highway 61.

A 1966 Volkswagen, driven by Walter Roseman Jr., 22, St. Charles stopped at a sign when he was struck in the rear by a 1967 Ford driven by Matthew Artis, 67, Hayti, who was struck in the rear by a 1965 Oldsmobile, driven by James Dempsey, 27, Perry, Mich.

Injured in the Dempsey car was the driver with head injuries. Two daughters were hurt. Diane, five, received a fractured jaw, and Linda, three, was bruised and scratched.

The three were taken to the Pemiscot County Memorial hospital in Hayti.

Monday at 2:50 p.m. on highway 105, two miles north of East Prairie a 1958 Buick, driven by James Ross, 71, Sikeston, attempted a left turn, when he was struck by a 1960 Ford, driven by Dennis Kindle, 20, Wheeling, Ill.

Taken to the Missouri Delta Community hospital were Ross with a whiplash injury and Kindle, broken left arm.

Policeman Recovers from Blow on Head

EAST PRAIRIE -- Jimmy Welch, a night policeman who was beaten unconscious Sunday night, was released from the Missouri Delta Community hospital today.

Welch suffered a blow on the right side of his forehead. He had stopped near a bowling alley to question two persons in a nearby alley.

They ran and he followed. Someone jumped from bushes and struck him.

Police Chief Jake Abner said today that no one has been arrested for the beating and police have no clues.

Priest Changed After Year in United States

The Rev. Fr. Justin Monaghan, who returned to Ireland for a visit after a year in this country, said that relatives told him he had been "Americanized."

He admitted that the slower pace of life in the old country disturbed him and that "I couldn't sit still."

Father Monaghan said that the Irish were disturbed by this country's presence in Vietnam, riots and that they "hated to see" the United States take the route of socialism.

Father Monaghan, who is moving to Charleston, talked to the Rotary club last night at the Rustic Rock Inn.

Richard Leslie was authorized to make preparations for the Rotary club's entertainment of the Little League baseball team it sponsors.

Frank Harp was a guest of Wayne Woodard, Charles Zircher, Marshall, a guest of Wm. Z. Baker. Visiting Rotarians were Joe Pinelle, Pueblo, Colo., and Harold Rabin, Belle Glade, Fla.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

A used car dealer arriving at a junk yard for a certain automotive part came on a pair of well-worn rubber hip boots which the junk man told him to take along, as they were in his way.

On his way back to his place of business he stopped by a restorer of antique furniture, who spied the boots and said he had a use for them. in my way. I will trade it to you for the boots."

The used car dealer had no use for the organ, nor for that matter, the boots. But since it was his motto never to turn down a trade, he accepted and loaded the organ that was nothing but a piece of junk, few evidences of its one - time glory remaining save some decorative symbols which still clung to it, into his pickup truck and went on his way.

Stopped for a traffic light, a car bearing a Texas license pulled up beside him. Its driver leaned out a window saying: "Friend, that old organ you have there. If you would care to sell it, turn in at the nearest station and let the madame look it over."

This was done.

Somehow that pile of junk must have, in the woman's eyes, taken on some of its former grandeur. Such visions have occurred to antique hunters, for after a close scrutiny of it, she called her husband aside. After a short colloquy he came back to the used car dealer and asked, "Will $200 buy it?"

GROWING VOTER CONTEMPT

Disclosure that the chairman of the Democratic State Committee in Missouri has been retained as legal counsel by the Missouri Pharmaceutical Association is just the kind of news the Democrats of this state don't need.

For the appointment of Delton Houtchens, a Clinton, Mo., attorney, as "counsel" comes on the heels of disclosures concerning the $24,000 a year fee collections by the state's junior U.S. Senator, Edward V. Long.

Then, following the Long disclosures, came word that Lt. Gov. Thomas Eagleton had been retained by a business firm that was going into the Public Service Commission to attempt to gain some freight franchises. Eagleton's acceptance of the retainer was much less suspect than Long's, for the simple reason that the state was not actually involved in the case as a direct participant. After the publicity, Eagleton resigned.

For his new client, Houtchens is reportedly receiving $500 a month, which is a considerable fee for an association with as little legal business as the pharmacists' organization.

No one is deceived, however, by the term "legal counsel." Houtchens is being retained to secure enactment of legislation the pharmacists have been unable to secure in recent sessions. The state association has been receiving some hard knocks in the capitol, primarily from State Sen. Earl Blackwell of Jefferson County; we suspect Sen. Blackwell will become more amenable to the pharmaceutical cause now that the state Democratic chairman is handling the account. Blackwell, after all, is running for Lieutenant Governor, and he will need the support of the Houtchens - controlled Democratic State Committee.

All of these disclosures may be like so much water off a duck's back to those involved. Sen. Long seems as righteous as ever following the disclosures of his fees. Houtchens can probably just shrug off the whole affair and go right on accepting his retainer fees each month.

But we are warning these Democratic office-holders and officials who participate in these activities -- they are going to fool around just so long before the voters get sick and tired of these disclosures and vote the good and bad out of office in one fell swoop.

And if the politicians don't believe it, we invite them to come out into Missouri and talk to the voters of the state who are slowly but surely getting their fill of such questionable practices.

AN AMERICAN FLAG SPEAKS

I am in mourning.

I do not feel like flying.

Why do so many let so few take my beautiful principals and twist their meanings into nightmares?

I hear the crying of the departed souls who fought religiously for my reputation.

Where are their children and grandchildren and why don't they take a stand to defend my TRUE meaning?

Why do you Americans allow these happenings?

Where are your voices?

It has always been, heretofore, that a worthwhile project was taken on by you Americans with prayer, gusto and never a thought of selfish gains.

Now, I repeat, a few are allowed to control millions of citizens (which is against what I stand for) by drawing up new laws daily to suit their purse, their ego, THEIR future. Certainly NOT their children's future; for these shall pay dear for the PIGS who dare to stand and try to disguise themselves as public servants.

Have you no feeling for your soldiers who are losing their lives? For what?

Why send them to foreign soil if while they are serving my principals you allow those same principals to be destroyed here in these wonderful United States?

I love these men; their color means nothing - it's what their mind holds that is important.

'God helps them that help themselves.' This, we have heard from infancy.

I stand for a country who serves God - then why are the Godless allowed to CORRUPT, CHEAT, VOICE IN PUBLIC, BE LOOKED UP TO, ENTERTAINED BY SOME PUBLIC OFFICIALS, CONTROL, THE DESTINY OF DECENT PEOPLES, etc.

Oh, God! I mourn! Help me to unfurl.

So you think the police waste their time? Or don't catch as many speeders, drunken drivers and road hogs as they should?

You're entitled to your opinion, of course, but a recently completed study indicates that the police spend a great deal of time helping you and other drivers solve various highway troubles, according to the December issue of Traffic Digest and Review magazine.

The three-month study - part of a project called "Operation 66" - was conducted in 1964 along Route 66 from Joliet, Ill. to San Bernardino, Calif. The Bureau of Public Roads, International Chiefs of Police and seven states (Arizona, California, Illinois, Missouri, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Texas) took part in the study to determine the types, volumne and amount of time of services performed for motorists by the police.

During June, July and August, 1964, officers along the 1,846 miles of Route 66 involved in the study satisfactorily completed 121,842 motorist contact forms - averaging 66 contacts per mile.

Police spent a total of 18,500 patrol man-hours during the actual contacts (an average of just over nine minutes each) and made an estimated 5.6 contacts per 100,000 vehicle miles of motorist travel. Although about three-fifths of these contacts were for enforcement, nearly one-fourth were for services.

Here's a glimpse of the types and percentages of contacts: informational, 6.2; directional, 2.5; tire failure, 4.6; cooling system failure, 2.7; out of fuel, 1.4; mechanical failure, 6.1; ill or injured persons, 0.2; emergency message delivery, 0.1; citation, 21.1; arrest 3.2; written warning, 31.1; oral warning, 5.1; received crime report, 0.1; removed road debris, 1.3; accident investigation, 1.3; and other, 13.0.

How long did motorists in trouble wait for assistance? An average of only 7.5 minutes.

Does that sound as though the police waste their time?

NEW YORK (AP) — Remarks that an office boy gets tired of hearing:

"When I was your age, kid, I was glad to work for nothing a week just to get the experience."

"I don't know how you ever expect to be head of the firm, Bascomb, if you can't even go to the delicatessen and bring back what I ordered. I told you to get a ham on rye, and they put it on white bread."

"Yeah, the new kid looks okay, but so do most juvenile delinquents."

"Your problem, Bascomb, is that you're at that in-between age— too old for the chicken pox, too young to get ulcers."

"I don't know who his mother is, but judging from his haircut his father must be a sheepdog."

"Wake up, Bascomb, it's time for your afternoon coffee break."

"When I was your age, kid, I used to walk three miles a day to and from work just to save carfare."

"Last week, just as a joke, I told him to go out and get a left-handed monkey wrench, and not to come back until he found one. He was gone for three days."

"He spends more time looking at himself in the washroom mirror than he does working."

"How old did you say you were, young man— 18? Well, if you keep your nose to the grindstone and stay out of trouble, you'll be eligible for a pension in the year 2014."

"So you're the new office boy. Well, well, well. I used to be an office boy myself. By the way kid, you don't have an extra $5 on you, do you? I'm a little strapped."

"He's only been here three weeks and already he's asking for a seat cushion. You know how long I worked here before I got my first seat cushion? Twelve years."

"When I was your age, kid I never wasted time going out to lunch. I was too eager to learn all I could about the business."

"I hear that Bascomb is carrying an imitation leather briefcase to work now hoping that everybody on the bus will think he's an executive trainee."

"Your girl friend called on the phone a while ago, Bascomb. I told her you were out in the stockroom kissing one of the secretaries and couldn't be disturbed."

"You say you want to know how long it will be before you can expect a merit raise? What's a merit raise? I've been office manager here since 1940 and never heard the term."

"It may be possible, young man, for you to get your work done while holding a transister radio to your ear and listening to the baseball game, but somehow I doubt it."

"To get ahead in the business world, Bascomb, you always have to look busy. If you can't find anything else to do, count the paper clips— and see if any are missing."

"When I was your age, kid— ."

Applications for permits to conduct official vehicle inspections will not be considered by the Missouri State Highway Patrol until possibly early next summer, it was announced today by Colonel E. I. (Mike) Hockaday, the Patrol's Superintendent.

"We have received many inquiries from the public in regard to the operation of the inspection program," Colonel Hockaday said. "It is not possible at this time to answer these inquiries. Much work needs to be done before any information can be forwarded and before any application to conduct a vehicle inspection station can be considered."

The Patrol Superintendent stated that a study of inspection programs in other states is now underway in order to get suggestions on how to implement the vehicle inspection program in Missouri. In accordance with the Motor Vehicle Inspection Law, all proposed rules and regulations deemed necessary to carry out the provisions of the law must be printed at least six months prior to January 1, 1969, when the law becomes effective. A public hearing must also be held concerning the rules and regulations of this program at least 60 days before the effective date.

"We will let the public know in plenty of time through the news media just when information on the vehicle inspection program is available," Hockaday concluded.

RECALL OF THE WILD

Preservation and public enjoyment of large forest and "wilderness" areas in natural or near-natural condition is, we think, a most desirable objective. But the notion that Government takeover of such areas is the only way or even a sure way of doing this is shortsighted and foolish. We even get the feeling that some advocates of government takeover may be more interested in bureaucratic expansion than in "wilderness" conservation. In northern California, for example, the push is on for Federal takeover of vast areas of redwood forest, on the grounds that only as a national park will this splendor be preserved and available for public enjoyment. When private owners opened a quarter-million acres of timberland to sportsmen, picnickers and trail-riders, at least one State official implied that this was just a dodge, and said that the private owners were looking ahead only 20 years or so, whereas government planners would "look ahead for the next 200 years or more."

Particularly with forest areas, we are convinced that in the long run private owners will do a better job of conserving naturalness than would any succession of government managers, simply because they have a greater personal interest in doing so. Productive forest land is at a premium. Therefore, private management and lumbing operations are designed to keep it productive which means, in a large measure, keeping it natural and planning ahead far longer than any given set of government planners would expect to stay in office. The same applies to supervision of areas open to the public -- prevention of fire or other damage being of more vital concern to a private owner than to any hireling government manager.

Perhaps some who advocate government takeover simply can't simply see the forest because of the trees. Preserving some centuries-old specimens in especially scenic spots is a wonderful and proper thing. But to allow trees to stand in large areas of productive forest after they have reached maturity, thus forbidding growth of new timber, is grossly wasteful and not at all in the public interest. Moreover, a heavy forest in completely natural state is less accessible and less safe for public recreation than one which is under management of modern lumbermen.

If all we want is pretty trees, perhaps the thing to do is have the Federal Government and its bureaucrats take over. But under continued private ownership and management we can have beautiful trees and lumber, too.

THE POLICEMAN'S LOT

Under the best of circumstances a policeman does not have an easy job. Today the circumstances prevailing in most large American cities are currently not the best, and it looks as if the police come in for criticism no matter how they react.

Detroit police have been loudly criticised for their activities in the handling of the riots and looting in that city. This time, in an about - face, the charge was not police brutality. It was police inaction.

The protestors declared that prompt action by the police when the looting first started could have put down the disturbance and kept it from exploding into a four - day holocaust of arson, looting, and murder. The police evidently were under orders not to use force, the theory being that their presence on the scene would be enough to calm the disturbance.

But matters did not turn out that way. Word soon got around that the police were under orders not to shoot and that they were not lifting a hand as they watched the looters at work. The result was that the combined efforts of the police, the National Guard and U.S. Army troops were necessary to bring the riot under control.

The police had better be permitted to do their job. They already operate under the handicap of Supreme Court decisions that are more solicitous of the "rights" of the criminal than those of maintaining law and order, and their hands ought not to be tied by wishful thinkers. HL H.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- Disturbing whispers have leaked out that the Johnson administration has not done all it could to arrange better treatment for American prisoners in enemy hands.

One high official complained to this column that prisoner problems have been given a low priority at the state department. He quoted Secretary of State Rusk as telling aides that the captured Americans are not prisoners but hostages, that the communists would demand a quid pro quo for treating them decently and that he had no intention of granting any concessions.

In the Pentagon, the brass-bound generals are so embarrassed over the unmilitary-like behavior of a few captives that they have slammed the lid shut on all prisoner information. The prisoners' families have been warned not to talk to reporters lest the slightest publicity be used against the captives to increase their torment.

Actually the North Vietnamese are sensitive to world opinion and probably take better care of the publicized prisoners. The great Pentagon hush-up seems to be aimed less to protect the prisoners than to protect the authorities from criticism.

Perhaps to quiet the critical stirrings, the state department has prepared a white paper on prisoners which will be published later this month. It is the work of George H. Aldrich, a legal counsel, who has summarized U.S. efforts to reach prisoner agreements with North Vietnam.

It is true, as the white paper will point out, that the United States has made repeated overtures through a dozen different channels to arrange prisoner exchanges, to get Communist prison camps inspected by neutrals, to secure better treatment for American pows and to obtain more information for their families.

AVERELL IN CHARGE

Ambassador - at - large Averell Harriman has been assigned the responsibility for solving prisoner problems. Officials have confided to this column that he is merely the front man. The real work is handled on a part-time basis, they say, by Frank A. Sieverts, a functionary in under Secretary Nicholas Katzenbach's office.

However, this is vigorously denied by Harriman's office. An aide claims the veteran diplomat spends half his time on prisoner matters and that a dozen men in the state department are working almost full time on the assignment.

Before Abba Schwartz was forced out as the state department's security chief a year ago, he had developed excellent pipelines through the Swiss Bankers and International Red Cross to check on the prisoners.

The Bankers, who loaned money to both North Vietnam and Cambodia, visited both countries regularly. They gladly inquired about prisoner welfare and requested information about specific prisoners.

To queries about specific persons, Hanoi usually responded that the prisoners were alive and were being "treated with humanity." In some cases, an exchange of mail was generated. The letters from the pows, interestingly, have been postmarked in various places -- Hong Kong, Geneva and other international centers. More than one letter, however, has actually been postmarked in the United States.

Schwartz's contacts, it should be stressed, were never permitted to visit the pow camps. Formal requests from the International Red Cross to inspect the camps were also turned down. The North Vietnamese contended that the captured Americans were "war criminals," therefore not entitled to the protection of the prisoner-of-war convention.

INTEREST LAGS

Meanwhile, Sen. Tom Dodd, D-Conn., started after Schwartz's scalp for refusing to play spy games with the senate internal security subcommittee, and prevailed upon President Johnson to reorganize Schwartz out of the state department.

Thereafter, Schwartz's contacts were neglected, and the government's interest in prisoner problems seemed to wane. Some contacts were kept up, of course, often by private individuals. Schwartz, for example, continued as a private citizen to seek information for prisoners' families. Sanford Gottlieb, director of sane, spoke to Viet Cong representatives in Algiers about prisoners.

Ambassador Harriman also flew to Geneva in May 1966, to try to promote a prisoner exchange through the International Red Cross. This and other efforts have failed.

At last count, 169 Americans were reported to be held by the North Vietnamese, another 20 by the Viet Cong. But many of the 481 American servicemen listed as missing may also be captives.

Differing reports have been received as to the number and locations of the prisoner camps. The Swiss Bankers were told that there are four compounds, all in the Hanoi - Haiphong area. What troubles the Pentagon, in particular, is evidence that some prisoners have been subjected to inhuman psychological torture in order to extort phony confessions from them. The armed forces have learned the hard way from the Communists what happens to a man reduced to a state half animal, half human, battered with lies until the truth is wholly unreal, tormented by evil men whose morbid genius is almost beyond belief.

Apparently this had been the fate of Lt. Cmdr. Richard Stratton, for one, who was put on display by his Communist captors. He behaved like a robot, bowing deeply on command, otherwise standing motionless, eyes blank.

A French observer described the episode as "a frightening experience."

Inside Labor

MAKING OF A PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATE?

Labor Leaders Tell Rockefeller They're With Him -- Even If He Runs With Ronald Reagan.

New York: -- A few Mondays ago the telephone rang in the hospital room of David Dubinsky, ebullient honorary Ladies Garment Workers Union president, who was doing valiant battle with a kidney stone. To get the phone he had to reach past a vase of flowers and a cordial letter dispatched by his intimate friend, Lyndon Johnson. The caller identified himself as "Gov. Rockefeller." But it was "the other governor -- Winthrop," the $10,000 -a-year chief executive Arkansas.

Dubinsky, the bantam labor leader who has helped many a Social Democrat survive and become president or prime minister of other nations, never before has been telephoned by an Arkansas governor. But times have changed, images are changing, regions are changing, "D. D." observed to a newspaper friend the other day.

"The gentleman from Arkansas wanted me to help end a nine month strike in Little Rock," asserted Dubinsky. "We've been picketing one of the big dress manufacturing shops there and several thousand unionists had just marched on the Capitol. So he called me. I explained the facts of life to him as gently as I could.

"He's a nice chap, but he's not as experienced as his brother, Nelson."

That's an understatement. Few national leaders, perhaps only Lyndon Johnson and Hubert Humphrey, now know their way about the labor movement as does Nelson A. Rockefeller. Few, perhaps only the President and Vice President, have as much political labor support pledged to them in terms of money and manpower, as has the New York governor.

It is one of his most powerful political weapons in his camp's war for the presidential nomination. It is the most tempting of all the political weaponry now being offered Gov. Ronald Reagan by wispy emissaries from the East.

It is the one chance, say Nelson Rockefeller intimates, to split Lyndon Johnson's most powerful political base wide open. Whither or not this tempts Ronnie Reagan is hardly discernable yet.

But some of Mr. Rockefeller's conservative couriers do return to ask if this labor support can be swung to a national Republican ticket listing Gov. Reagan.

In the past few weeks some of Gov. Rockefeller's people have been discussing Reagan with the "old line" labor leaders -- Teamsters in the national headquarters, building and construction union chiefs (here in New York) and others in the labor movement's truly massive ideological center.

They're practical men. They indicated they would take a "Rocky - Reagan" ticket, if that's the only way they can get Rockefeller on the slate.

They want "Rocky" because many of them are simply anti-Johnson. These labor people basically are middling conservatives. They always were. They sat in the 1952 AFL Convention and cheered Adlai Stevenson. Then they worked quietly for Dwight Eisenhower. He rewarded them by appointing the late Martin Drukin, the plumbers national president, Secretary of Labor.

They did it again in '56. Now they're ready to repeat history.

They'll go to the AFL-CIO National Board meeting in September 1968. They probably will vote to endorse Lyndon Johnson after their leader George Meany exhorts them. Then they'll campaign, in their own fashion, for Rockefeller "if he is nominated, even with Reagan." The many West Coast Teamsters and national construction union chiefs say: "If he's the price for Rocky, we'll pay it."

These union chiefs are furious over the tax proposal. They're alarmed by the civic disorders. They're worried by some joblessness in their field. They know Rockefeller as a "builder." They hear "the family" is planning Radio City - type centers on the West Coast. They see about $540 million worth of construction in Albany. They count on 10 years of full employment in New York State as a result of Rockefeller's $2.5 billion worth of transportation expansion. Their friends in the International Assn. of Machinists note that the state controlled Long Island Railroad settled quickly with the unions while Congress and the President passed a "finality" arbitration act forbidding strikes.

They have easy access to Rockefeller but not to the White House. They are beginning to believe that the combination of bitterness over taxes, futility in Vietnam and riot pressure may defeat President Johnson.

These labor realists love a winner. And, they say in their private circles, there's a possibility of a Republican president -- better Rockefeller and Reagan than Dick Nixon and anyone else.

All this, the experienced Nelson A. Rockefeller understands. Daily he nurtures the network, a little appointment here, a little lunch there, a law, a subtle action. In the end, he may not get the nomination, but if he does, his labor battalions will campaign for him first and worry about his running mate later.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

A used car dealer arriving at a junk yard for a certain automotive part came on a pair of well-worn rubber hip boots which the junk man told him to take along, as they were in his way.

On his way back to his place of business he stopped by a restorer of antique furniture, who spied the boots and said he had a use for them, in my way. I will trade it to you for the boots."

The used car dealer had no use for the organ, nor for that matter, the boots. But since it was his motto never to turn down a trade, he accepted and loaded the organ that was nothing but a piece of junk, few evidences of its one - time glory remaining save some decorative symbols which still clung to it, into his pickup truck and went on his way.

Stopped for a traffic light, a car bearing a Texas license pulled up beside him. Its driver leaned out a window saying: "Friend, that old organ you have there. If you would care to sell it, turn in at the nearest station and let the madame look it over."

This was done.

Somehow that pile of junk must have, in the woman's eyes, taken on some of its former grandeur. Such visions have occurred to antique hunters, for after a close scrutiny of it, she called her husband aside. After a short colloquy he came back to the used car dealer and asked, "Will $200 buy it?"

GROWING VOTER CONTEMPT

Disclosure that the chairman of the Democratic State Committee in Missouri has been retained as legal counsel by the Missouri Pharmaceutical Association is just the kind of news the Democrats of this state don't need.

For the appointment of Delton Houtchens, a Clinton, Mo., attorney, as "counsel" comes on the heels of disclosures concerning the $24,000 a year fee collections by the state's junior U.S. Senator, Edward V. Long.

Then, following the Long disclosures, came word that Lt. Gov. Thomas Eagleton had been retained by a business firm that was going into the Public Service Commission to attempt to gain some freight franchises. Eagleton's acceptance of the retainer was much less suspect than Long's, for the simple reason that the state was not actually involved in the case as a direct participant. After the publicity, Eagleton resigned.

For his new client, Houtchens is reportedly receiving $500 a month, which is a considerable fee for an association with as little legal business as the pharmacists' organization.

No one is deceived, however, by the term "legal counsel." Houtchens is being retained to secure enactment of legislation the pharmacists have been unable to secure in recent sessions. The state association has been receiving some hard knocks in the capitol, primarily from State Sen. Earl Blackwell of Jefferson County; we suspect Sen. Blackwell will become more amenable to the pharmaceutical cause now that the state Democratic chairman is handling the account. Blackwell, after all, is running for Lieutenant Governor, and he will need the support of the Houtchens - controlled Democratic State Committee.

All of these disclosures may be like so much water off a duck's back to those involved. Sen. Long seems as righteous as ever following the disclosures of his fees. Houtchens can probably just shrug off the whole affair and go right on accepting his retainer fees each month.

But we are warning these Democratic office-holders and officials who participate in these activities -- they are going to fool around just so long before the voters get sick and tired of these disclosures and vote the good and bad out of office in one fell swoop.

And if the politicians don't believe it, we invite them to come out into Missouri and talk to the voters of the state who are slowly but surely getting their fill of such questionable practices.

AN AMERICAN FLAG SPEAKS

I am in mourning.

I do not feel like flying.

Why do so many let so few take my beautiful principals and twist their meanings into nightmares?

I hear the crying of the departed souls who fought religiously for my reputation.

Where are their children and grandchildren and why don't they take a stand to defend my TRUE meaning?

Why do you Americans allow these happenings?

Where are your voices?

It has always been, heretofore, that a worthwhile project was taken on by you Americans with prayer, gusto and never a thought of selfish gains.

Now, I repeat, a few are allowed to control millions of citizens (which is against what I stand for) by drawing up new laws daily to suit their purse, their ego, THEIR future. Certainly NOT their children's future; for these shall pay dear for the PIGS who dare to stand and try to disguise themselves as public servants.

Have you no feeling for your soldiers who are losing their lives? For what?

Why send them to foreign soil if while they are serving my principals you allow those same principals to be destroyed here in these wonderful United States?

I love these men; their color means nothing - it's what their mind holds that is important.

'God helps them that help themselves.' This, we have heard from infancy.

I stand for a country who serves God - then why are the Godless allowed to CORRUPT, CHEAT, VOICE IN PUBLIC, BE LOOKED UP TO, ENTERTAINED BY SOME PUBLIC OFFICIALS, CONTROL, THE DESTINY OF DECENT PEOPLES, etc.

Oh, God! I mourn! Help me to unfurl.

So you think the police waste their time? Or don't catch as many speeders, drunken drivers and road hogs as they should?

You're entitled to your opinion, of course, but a recently completed study indicates that the police spend a great deal of time helping you and other drivers solve various highway troubles, according to the December issue of Traffic Digest and Review magazine.

The three-month study - part of a project called "Operation 66" - was conducted in 1964 along Route 66 from Joliet, Ill. to San Bernardino, Calif. The Bureau of Public Roads, International Chiefs of Police and seven states (Arizona, California, Illinois, Missouri, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Texas) took part in the study to determine the types, volumne and amount of time of services performed for motorists by the police.

During June, July and August, 1964, officers along the 1,846 miles of Route 66 involved in the study satisfactorily completed 121,842 motorist contact forms - averaging 66 contacts per mile.

Police spent a total of 18,500 patrol man-hours during the actual contacts (an average of just over nine minutes each) and made an estimated 5.6 contacts per 100,000 vehicle miles of motorist travel. Although about three-fifths of these contacts were for enforcement, nearly one-fourth were for services.

Here's a glimpse of the types and percentages of contacts: informational, 6.2; directional, 2.5; tire failure, 4.6; cooling system failure, 2.7; out of fuel, 1.4; mechanical failure, 6.1; ill or injured persons, 0.2; emergency message delivery, 0.1; citation, 21.1; arrest 3.2; written warning, 31.1; oral warning, 5.1; received crime report, 0.1; removed road debris, 1.3; accident investigation, 1.3; and other, 13.0.

How long did motorists in trouble wait for assistance? An average of only 7.5 minutes.

Does that sound as though the police waste their time?

When private owners opened a quarter-million acres of timberland to sportsmen, picnickers and trail-riders, at least one State official implied that this was just a dodge, and said that the private owners were looking ahead only 20 years or so, whereas government planners would "look ahead for the next 200 years or more."

Particularly with forest areas, we are convinced that in the long run private owners will do a better job of conserving naturalness than would any succession of government managers, simply because they have a greater personal interest in doing so. Productive forest land is at a premium. Therefore, private management and lumbing operations are designed to keep it productive which means, in a large measure, keeping it natural and planning ahead far longer than any given set of government planners would expect to stay in office. The same applies to supervision of areas open to the public -- prevention of fire or other damage being of more vital concern to a private owner than to any hireling government manager.

Perhaps some who advocate government takeover simply can't simply see the forest because of the trees. Preserving some centuries-old specimens in especially scenic spots is a wonderful and proper thing. But to allow trees to stand in large areas of productive forest after they have reached maturity, thus forbidding growth of new timber, is grossly wasteful and not at all in the public interest. Moreover, a heavy forest in completely natural state is less accessible and less safe for public recreation than one which is under management of modern lumbermen.

If all we want is pretty trees, perhaps the thing to do is have the Federal Government and its bureaucrats take over. But under continued private ownership and management we can have beautiful trees and lumber, too.

Anne had been reciting Mother Goose rhymes to her aunt and mother. A little later, she returned to her mother and asked with a baffled air, "Why did Mary's lamb have white fleas?"

And boy was he a crumb!

When George Washington took his seat in the House of Burgesses at the age of twenty-six, Captain Mercer wrote: "He is as straight as an arrow, measuring six feet two inches in his stockings, and weighing 175 pounds. His head is well shaped, though not large, and is gracefully poised. He has a large, straight nose; blue-gray penetrating eyes, which are widely separated and overhung by heavy brows. A pleasing, though commanding countenance; dark-brown hair, features regular and placid, and a large mouth, generally firmly closed."

The one thing which more than any other commends this picture is the statement that his mouth, though large, was "generally firmly closed."

Abraham Lincoln once said: "If I tried to read, much less answer, all the criticisms made of me and all the attacks leveled against me, this office would have to be closed for all other business. If the end brings me out all wrong, then ten angels swearing I had been right would make no difference. If the end brings me out all right, then what is said against me now will not amount to anything."

THE POLICEMAN'S LOT

Under the best of circumstances a policeman does not have an easy job. Today the circumstances prevailing in most large American cities are currently not the best, and it looks as if the police come in for criticism no matter how they react.

Detroit police have been loudly criticised for their activities in the handling of the riots and looting in that city. This time, in an about - face, the charge was not police brutality. It was police inaction.

The protestors declared that prompt action by the police when the looting first started could have put down the disturbance and kept it from exploding into a four - day holocaust of arson, looting, and murder. The police evidently were under orders not to use force, the theory being that their presence on the scene would be enough to calm the disturbance.

But matters did not turn out that way. Word soon got around that the police were under orders not to shoot and that they were not lifting a hand as they watched the looters at work. The result was that the combined efforts of the police, the National Guard and U.S. Army troops were necessary to bring the riot under control.

The police had better be permitted to do their job. They already operate under the handicap of Supreme Court decisions that are more solicitous of the "rights" of the criminal than those of maintaining law and order, and their hands ought not to be tied by wishful thinkers. HLH.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- Disturbing whispers have leaked out that the Johnson administration has not done all it could to arrange better treatment for American prisoners in enemy hands.

One high official complained to this column that prisoner problems have been given a low priority at the state department. He quoted Secretary of State Rusk as telling aides that the captured Americans are not prisoners but hostages, that the communists would demand a quid pro quo for treating them decently and that he had no intention of granting any concessions.

In the Pentagon, the brass-bound generals are so embarrassed over the unmilitary-like behavior of a few captives that they have slammed the lid shut on all prisoner information. The prisoners' families have been warned not to talk to reporters lest the slightest publicity be used against the captives to increase their torment.

Actually the North Vietnamese are sensitive to world opinion and probably take better care of the publicized prisoners. The great Pentagon hush-up seems to be aimed less to protect the prisoners than to protect the authorities from criticism.

Perhaps to quiet the critical stirrings, the state department has prepared a white paper on prisoners which will be published later this month. It is the work of George H. Aldrich, a legal counsel, who has summarized U.S. efforts to reach prisoner agreements with North Vietnam.

It is true, as the white paper will point out, that the United States has made repeated overtures through a dozen different channels to arrange prisoner exchanges, to get Communist prison camps inspected by neutrals, to secure better treatment for American pows and to obtain more information for their families.

AVERELL IN CHARGE

Ambassador - at - large Averell Harriman has been assigned the responsibility for solving prisoner problems. Officials have confided to this column that he is merely the front man. The real work is handled on a part-time basis, they say, by Frank A. Sieverts, a functionary in under Secretary Nicholas Katzenbach's office.

However, this is vigorously denied by Harriman's office. An aide claims the veteran diplomat spends half his time on prisoner matters and that a dozen men in the state department are working almost full time on the assignment.

Before Abba Schwartz was forced out as the state department's security chief a year ago, he had developed excellent pipelines through the Swiss Bankers and International Red Cross to check on the prisoners.

The Bankers, who loaned money to both North Vietnam and Cambodia, visited both countries regularly. They gladly inquired about prisoner welfare and requested information about specific prisoners.

To queries about specific persons, Hanoi usually responded that the prisoners were alive and were being "treated with humanity." In some cases, an exchange of mail was generated. The letters from the pows, interestingly, have been postmarked in various places -- Hong Kong, Geneva and other international centers. More than one letter, however, has actually been postmarked in the United States.

Schwartz's contacts, it should be stressed, were never permitted to visit the pow camps. Formal requests from the International Red Cross to inspect the camps were also turned down. The North Vietnamese contended that the captured Americans were "war criminals," therefore not entitled to the protection of the prisoner-of-war convention.

INTEREST LAGS

Meanwhile, Sen. Tom Dodd, D-Conn., started after Schwartz's scalp for refusing to play spy games with the senate internal security subcommittee, and prevailed upon President Johnson to reorganize Schwartz out of the state department.

Thereafter, Schwartz's contacts were neglected, and the government's interest in prisoner problems seemed to wane. Some contacts were kept up, of course, often by private individuals. Schwartz, for example, continued as a private citizen to seek information for prisoners' families. Sanford Gottlieb, director of sane, spoke to Viet Cong representatives in Algiers about prisoners.

Ambassador Harriman also flew to Geneva in May 1966, to try to promote a prisoner exchange through the International Red Cross. This and other efforts have failed.

At last count, 169 Americans were reported to be held by the North Vietnamese, another 20 by the Viet Cong. But many of the 481 American servicemen listed as missing may also be captives.

Differing reports have been received as to the number and locations of the prisoner camps. The Swiss Bankers were told that there are four compounds, all in the Hanoi - Haiphong area.

What troubles the Pentagon, in particular, is evidence that some prisoners have been subjected to inhuman psychological torture in order to extort phony confessions from them. The armed forces have learned the hard way from the Communists what happens to a man reduced to a state half animal, half human, battered with lies until the truth is wholly unreal, tormented by evil men whose morbid genius is almost beyond belief.

Apparently this had been the fate of Lt. Cmdr. Richard Stratton, for one, who was put on display by his Communist captors. He behaved like a robot, bowing deeply on command, otherwise standing motionless, eyes blank.

A French observer described the episode as "a frightening experience."

NEW YORK (AP) -- Remarks that an office boy gets tired of hearing:

"When I was your age, kid, I was glad to work for nothing a week just to get the experience."

"I don't know how you ever expect to be head of the firm, Bascomb, if you can't even go to the delicatessen and bring back what I ordered. I told you to get a ham on rye, and they put it on white bread."

"Yeah, the new kid looks okay, but so do most juvenile delinquents."

"Your problem, Bascomb, is that you're at that in-between age -- too old for the chicken pox, too young to get ulcers."

"I don't know who his mother is, but judging from his haircut his father must be a sheepdog."

"Wake up, Bascomb, it's time for your afternoon coffee break."

"When I was your age, kid, I used to walk three miles a day to and from work just to save carfare."

"Last week, just as a joke, I told him to go out and get a left-handed monkey wrench, and not to come back until he found one. He was gone for three days."

"He spends more time looking at himself in the washroom mirror than he does working."

"How old did you say you were, young man -- 18? Well, if you keep your nose to the grindstone and stay out of trouble, you'll be eligible for a pension in the year 2014."

"So you're the new office boy. Well, well, well. I used to be an office boy myself. By the way kid, you don't have an extra $5 on you, do you? I'm a little strapped."

"He's only been here three weeks and already he's asking for a seat cushion. You know how long I worked here before I got my first seat cushion? Twelve years."

"When I was your age, kid I never wasted time going out to lunch. I was too eager to learn all I could about the business."

"I hear that Bascomb is carrying an imitation leather briefcase to work now hoping that everybody on the bus will think he's an executive trainee."

"Your girl friend called on the phone a while ago, Bascomb. I told her you were out in the stockroom kissing one of the secretaries and couldn't be disturbed."

"You say you want to know how long it will be before you can expect a merit raise? What's a merit raise? I've been office manager here since 1940 and never heard the term."

"It may be possible, young man, for you to get your work done while holding a transister radio to your ear and listening to the baseball game, but somehow I doubt it."

"To get ahead in the business world, Bascomb, you always have to look busy. If you can't find anything else to do, count the paper clips -- and see if any are missing."

"When I was your age, kid--."

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

MAKING OF A PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATE?

Labor Leaders Tell Rockefeller They're With Him -- Even If He Runs With Ronald Reagan.

New York: -- A few Mondays ago the telephone rang in the hospital room of David Dubinsky, ebullient honorary Ladies Garment Workers Union president, who was doing valiant battle with a kidney stone. To get the phone he had to reach past a vase of flowers and a cordial letter dispatched by his intimate friend, Lyndon Johnson. The caller identified himself as "Gov. Rockefeller." But it was "the other governor -- Winthrop," the $10,000 a-year chief executive Arkansas.

Dubinsky, the bantam labor leader who has helped many a Social Democrat survive and become president or prime minister of other nations, never before has been telephoned by an Arkansas governor. But times have changed, images are changing, regions are changing, "D. D." observed to a newspaper friend the other day.

"The gentleman from Arkansas wanted me to help end a nine month strike in Little Rock," asserted Dubinsky. "We've been picketing one of the big dress manufacturing shops there and several thousand unionists had just marched on the Capitol. So he called me. I explained the facts of life to him as gently as I could.

"He's a nice chap, but he's not as experienced as his brother, Nelson."

That's an understatement. Few national leaders, perhaps only Lyndon Johnson and Hubert Humphrey, now know their way about the labor movement as does Nelson A. Rockefeller. Few, perhaps only the President and Vice President, have as much political labor support pledged to them in terms of money and manpower, as has the New York governor.

It is one of his most powerful political weapons in his camp's war for the presidential nomination. It is the most tempting of all the political weaponry now being offered Gov. Ronald Reagan by wispy emissaries from the East.

It is the one chance, say Nelson Rockefeller intimates, to split Lyndon Johnson's most powerful political base wide open. Whither or not this tempts Ronnie Reagan is hardly discernable yet.

But some of Mr. Rockefeller's conservative couriers do return to ask if this labor support can be swung to a national Republican ticket listing Gov. Reagan.

In the past few weeks some of Gov. Rockefeller's people have been discussing Reagan with the "old line" labor leaders -- Teamsters in the national headquarters, building and construction union chiefs (here in New York) and others in the labor movement's truly massive ideological center.

They're practical men. They indicated they would take a "Rocky - Reagan" ticket, if that's the only way they can get Rockefeller on the slate.

They want "Rocky" because many of them are simply anti-Johnson. These labor people basically are middling conservatives. They always were. They sat in the 1952 AFL Convention and cheered Adlai Stevenson. Then they worked quietly for Dwight Eisenhower. He rewarded them by appointing the late Martin Drukin, the plumbers national president, Secretary of Labor.

They did it again in '56. Now they're ready to repeat history.

They'll go to the AFL-CIO National Board meeting in September 1968. They probably will vote to endorse Lyndon Johnson after their leader George Meany exhorts them. Then they'll campaign, in their own fashion, for Rockefeller "if he is nominated, even with Reagan." The many West Coast Teamsters and national construction union chiefs say: "If he's the price for Rocky, we'll pay it."

These union chiefs are furious over the tax proposal. They're alarmed by the civic disorders. They're worried by some joblessness in their field. They know Rockefeller as a "builder." They hear "the family" is planning Radio City - type centers on the West Coast. They see about $540 million worth of construction in Albany. They count on 10 years of full employment in New York State as a result of Rockefeller's $2.5 billion worth of transportation expansion. Their friends in the International Assn. of Machinists note that the state controlled Long Island Railroad settled quickly with the unions while Congress and the President passed a "finality" arbitration act forbidding strikes.

They have easy access to Rockefeller but not to the White House. They are beginning to believe that the combination of bitterness over taxes, futility in Vietnam and riot pressure may defeat President Johnson.

These labor realists love a winner. And, they say in their private circles, there's a possibility of a Republican president -- better Rockefeller and Reagan than Dick Nixon and anyone else.

All this, the experienced Nelson A. Rockefeller understands. Daily he nurtures the network, a little appointment here, a little lunch there, a law, a subtle action. In the end, he may not get the nomination, but if he does, his labor battalions will campaign for him first and worry about his running mate later.

Dodgers End Card Streak; Hughes Faces Sutton Tonight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Dodgers ended the St. Louis winning string at five games Monday night, defeating the Cards 6-4 with three runs in the ninth inning.

St. Louis, however, remains on top of the National League standings by 8 1/2 games as Philadelphia shut out runnerup San Francisco, 8-0.

St. Louis came from behind to tie the score at 3-3 in the eighth, but then, three singles and two errors gave Los Angeles its victory.

The key blow was Ron Hunt's single with two out to score Wes Parker. Curt Flood fumbled the ball and Dick Schofield, who also had singled, raced home. Then, when Phil Gagliano threw low on the relay from the outfield, Hunt also scored.

Ron Perranoski won it in relief and Joe Hoerner was the loser in relief.

The Cards outhit the Dodgers 12-8 but stranded 11 men.

Dick Hughes will pitch for the Cards tonight and Don Sutton will start for the Dodgers.

The hopes of Chicago fans that their team would end its losing streak went up with a Cub ninth-inning rally. Then, they went down again - with the sun.

The Cubs lost their seventh straight game, 6-3 to Pittsburgh, in the first game of a double-header Monday at Wrigley Field --where the only light available is the natural kind.

And they were losing the second game 3-1 when they rallied for a tie in the bottom of the ninth inning. But neither team could score again, and the game was called because of darkness after 14 innings.

The individual records count, but the game will have to be replayed - as part of a double-header Wednesday.

In the American League, Baltimore shut out Cleveland 4-0, Washington blanked Minnesota 5-0 and California rapped New York 8-4 in the only American League action.

Pittsburgh's Dennis Ribant had a no-hitter through seven innings in the second game at Chicago, but Ron Santo broke it up with his 23rd homer leading off the eighth.

The Cubs then chased Ribant when John Stephenson and Ernie Banks opened the ninth with singles. Don Kessinger advanced the runners with a sacrifice off reliever Al McBean, and Lee Thomas brought in a run with a groundout.

Juan Pizarro then took over for McBean, and Billy Williams greeted him with a single on a 3-2 pitch, tying the game.

Manny Sanguillen doubled home two Pittsburgh runs in the second inning and Al Luplow, who collected six hits for the day, singled home another in the eighth.

The Pirates used the ninth-inning rally to win the first game.

Chuck Hartenstein had held the Pirates at bay since taking over for Bob Shaw in the second inning, and the Cubs led 3-2 going into the ninth.

The relief pitcher then started Chicago's downfall by committing a throwing error on Maury Wills' slow roller. Roberto Clemente tied the game by singling with men on first and second, and Manny Mota put the Pirates ahead with a sacrifice fly off Rob Gardner, who replaced Hartenstein.

Donn Clendenon clinched it with a two - run homer.

Rich Allen's two-run homer in the Philadelphia first inning, giving him 11 RBI in his last five games, was all the hitting help Jim Bunning needed in recording the 36th shutout of his major league career.

The Phillies iced the game with five runs in the fourth inning.

Delta Clips Oran In Tourney

ORAN -- Kelly of Benton and Delta advanced in the junior varsity bracket of the SEMO high school baseball league tournament last night. Zalma moved up in the varsity bracket.

Kelly slid past Woodland 6-5 and Delta nudged Oran 4-1. Zalma upended Kelly 6-0.

Mike Payne and Bob Boner combined to pitch a two - hit shutout victory over Kelly's varsity squad.

Jim Davis absorbed the loss for Kelly.

Larry McLeary had the only extra base hit of the game, a double for Zalma, who banged out eight hits for six runs.

Kelly used a homer by Bohannon, triple by Ziegler and a double by Duncan to take its 6-5 junior varsity victory over Woodland.

Margrabe gave up three hits and five runs in winning. Roberts was the losing Woodland hurler.

Billy Hanlon pitched and hit his way to victory in Delta's 4-1 victory over Oran.

Hanlon allowed only two hits, including a homer by Bradley Emmerson and connected on two triples himself.

Ricky Irvin was the loser, allowing only two hits, both triples with two men on.

Tonight's schedule finds Chaffee meeting Delta at 7 p.m. and Scott Central going against Lutesville at 9 p.m. in a pair of varsity games.

LOS ANGELES AP - Andy Granatelli, one of the developers of the turbine - engine car which almost won this year's Indianapolis 500, will be going to driving school.

Granatelli was sentenced Monday to spend four nights in traffic improvement school after Municipal Court Judge W. Blair Gibbens found him guilty of failing to stop for a traffic light.

However, the judge ruled that Granatelli can complete a two-week racing tour before attending the driving class S.

LAKE FOREST, Ill. AP - Homero Blancas of Houston shot a hole-in-one for a 67 Monday and won the seventh annual Children's Memorial Hospital Program Golf Tournament.

Lilbourn Stuns Charleston In Opener

Lilbourn eliminated Charleston in the second game of last night's three game series, 12-2 in the Little League baseball tournament at Puckett field for 11 and 12-year-olds. Chaffee defeated Dexter 3-1 and the Sikeston American All - Stars defeated Matthews 15-5.

Charleston, winner of its own tournament Friday, posed no problem for Grant Dambach, little right handed Lilbourn hurler.

Dambach limited Charleston to two runs and allowed five hits in notching his win.

Lilbourn captured the New Madrid county Little League crown two weeks ago on the strong pitching of Dambach and seems to be on their way to the area's largest tournament title.

Lilbourn banged out seven hits and pushed across 12 runs.

Buddy Givens led the seven-hit Lilbourn attack with three hits, including two doubles. Teammates, Dambach and Maschmeyer, added doubles.

Albert Lankheit had a two for two performances for Charleston at the plate. Larry Ferrell was the loser.

Mitchell Walker and Stan Winchester, the battery for the Stars, starred on the offense with four hits each as the team banged out 13 safeties, including three doubles and a homer by Winchester.

Walker was the winning hurler. Terry Spraggs was the loser.

Scott Thomas pitched a no-hitter in the nightcap allowing the Dexter All-Stars only one run.

Tim Steimle collected three of Dexter's four hits, including a double as Dexter won.

Tonight's schedule has Oran meeting New Madrid at 6 p.m., Sikeston National All-Stars going against Portageville at 7 p.m. and Illmo-Scott City meeting Poplar Bluff at 9 p.m.

Dodgers End Card Streak; Hughes Faces Sutton Tonight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Dodgers ended the St. Louis winning string at five games Monday night, defeating the Cards 6-4 with three runs in the ninth inning.

St. Louis, however, remains on top of the National League standings by 8 1/2 games as Philadelphia shut out runnerup San Francisco, 8-0.

St. Louis came from behind to tie the score at 3-3 in the eighth, but then, three singles and two errors gave Los Angeles its victory.

The key blow was Ron Hunt's single with two out to score Wes Parker. Curt Flood fumbled the ball and Dick Schofield, who also had singled, raced home. Then, when Phil Gagliano threw low on the relay from the outfield, Hunt also scored.

Ron Perranoski won it in relief and Joe Hoerner was the loser in relief.

The Cards outhit the Dodgers 12-8 but stranded 11 men.

Dick Hughes will pitch for the Cards tonight and Don Sutton will start for the Dodgers.

The hopes of Chicago fans that their team would end its losing streak went up with a Cub ninth-inning rally. Then, they went down again - with the sun.

The Cubs lost their seventh straight game, 6-3 to Pittsburgh, in the first game of a double-header Monday at Wrigley Field --where the only light available is the natural kind.

And they were losing the second game 3-1 when they rallied for a tie in the bottom of the ninth inning. But neither team could score again, and the game was called because of darkness after 14 innings.

The individual records count, but the game will have to be replayed - as part of a double-header Wednesday.

In the American League, Baltimore shut out Cleveland 4-0, Washington blanked Minnesota 5-0 and California rapped New York 8-4 in the only American League action.

Pittsburgh's Dennis Ribant had a no-hitter through seven innings in the second game at Chicago, but Ron Santo broke it up with his 23rd homer leading off the eighth.

The Cubs then chased Ribant when John Stephenson and Ernie Banks opened the ninth with singles. Don Kessinger advanced the runners with a sacrifice off reliever Al McBean, and Lee Thomas brought in a run with a groundout.

Juan Pizarro then took over for McBean, and Billy Williams greeted him with a single on a 3-2 pitch, tying the game.

Manny Sanguillen doubled home two Pittsburgh runs in the second inning and Al Luplow, who collected six hits for the day, singled home another in the eighth.

The Pirates used the ninth-inning rally to win the first game.

Chuck Hartenstein had held the Pirates at bay since taking over for Bob Shaw in the second inning, and the Cubs led 3-2 going into the ninth.

The relief pitcher then started Chicago's downfall by committing a throwing error on Maury Wills' slow roller. Roberto Clemente tied the game by singling with men on first and second, and Manny Mota put the Pirates ahead with a sacrifice fly off Rob Gardner, who replaced Hartenstein.

Donn Clendenon clinched it with a two - run homer.

Rich Allen's two-run homer in the Philadelphia first inning, giving him 11 RBI in his last five games, was all the hitting help Jim Bunning needed in recording the 36th shutout of his major league career.

The Phillies iced the game with five runs in the fourth inning.

Delta Clips Oran In Tourney

ORAN -- Kelly of Benton and Delta advanced in the junior varsity bracket of the SEMO high school baseball league tournament last night. Zalma moved up in the varsity bracket.

Kelly slid past Woodland 6-5 and Delta nudged Oran 4-1. Zalma upended Kelly 6-0.

Mike Payne and Bob Boner combined to pitch a two - hit shutout victory over Kelly's varsity squad.

Jim Davis absorbed the loss for Kelly.

Larry McLeary had the only extra base hit of the game, a double for Zalma, who banged out eight hits for six runs.

Kelly used a homer by Bohannon, triple by Ziegler and a double by Duncan to take its 6-5 junior varsity victory over Woodland.

Margrabe gave up three hits and five runs in winning. Roberts was the losing Woodland hurler.

Billy Hanlon pitched and hit his way to victory in Delta's 4-1 victory over Oran.

Hanlon allowed only two hits, including a homer by Bradley Emmerson and connected on two triples himself.

Ricky Irvin was the loser, allowing only two hits, both triples with two men on.

Tonight's schedule finds Chaffee meeting Delta at 7 p.m. and Scott Central going against Lutesville at 9 p.m. in a pair of varsity games.

Lilbourn Stuns Charleston In Opener

Lilbourn eliminated Charleston in the second game of last night's three game series, 12-2 in the Little League baseball tournament at Puckett field for 11 and 12-year-olds. Chaffee defeated Dexter 3-1 and the Sikeston American All - Stars defeated Matthews 15-5.

Charleston, winner of its own tournament Friday, posed no problem for Grant Dambach, little right handed Lilbourn hurler.

Dambach limited Charleston to two runs and allowed five hits in notching his win.

Lilbourn captured the New Madrid county Little League crown two weeks ago on the strong pitching of Dambach and seems to be on their way to the area's largest tournament title.

Lilbourn banged out seven hits and pushed across 12 runs.

Buddy Givens led the seven-hit Lilbourn attack with three hits, including two doubles. Teammates, Dambach and Maschmeyer, added doubles.

Albert Lankheit had a two for two performances for Charleston at the plate. Larry Ferrell was the loser.

Mitchell Walker and Stan Winchester, the battery for the Stars, starred on the offense with four hits each as the team banged out 13 safeties, including three doubles and a homer by Winchester.

Walker was the winning hurler. Terry Spraggs was the loser.

Scott Thomas pitched a no-hitter in the nightcap allowing the Dexter All-Stars only one run.

Tim Steimle collected three of Dexter's four hits, including a double as Dexter won.

Tonight's schedule has Oran meeting New Madrid at 6 p.m., Sikeston National All-Stars going against Portageville at 7 p.m. and Illmo-Scott City meeting Poplar Bluff at 9 p.m.

Kicky Summer Headgear

YOUNG HEADGEAR HAS THE INTERNATIONAL LOOK this year. It all adds up to a code that spells soft, crushable, kicky and bright. One version of the soft, crushable look is the rippled brim hat of striped cotton (top left). For the beach, sports car or any casual occasion the polka dot sunshader of crushable cotton (top right) is an ideal choice. For a featherweight, cool summer look (lower left) the cuffed brim straw is a happy choice. Any girl going to the shore or the tennis courts will enjoy the soft cotton safari hat (lower right). All the hats shown here were chosen for her wardrobe by Judy Geeson, the 17-year-old British actress now starring in "To Sir, With Love."

BEATING THE BAND FOR BONDS — Drumming up support for the Treasury's 1967 "Share in Freedom" Savings Bonds Campaign are Gail Purschwitz, 17, and Stephen Mitchell, 18, members of the talented Northwestern Senior High School Band, Hyattsville, Md. These youthful musicians believe everyone should buy Savings Bonds. As they say—"After all, our men in Vietnam do."

HAPPY HIPPO will probably never have a prettier girl astride its broad back. Mary Chipperfield, 29, operates zoological gardens at Southampton, England, and her well-managed lions, tigers, bears . . . and hippos, are often used by movie producers as characters for wild animal scenes.

JUST STROLLING along is light-heavyweight boxer Roger Rouse of Anaconda, Mont., the top-ranked challenger in his division. He has a 30-5-3 record.

OUTDOOR SPORTS go on the rise, along with temperatures across the nation. A principal sport appears to be girl-watching, and demonstrating one technique is this young man on a Santa Monica beach.

NEW COMMANDER of U.S. Marines in Vietnam is Maj. Gen. Robert E. Cushman Jr., replacing Lt. Gen. Lewis W. Walt, who has been reassigned to Washington. Cushman has been Walt's deputy.

Couture Starts in the Crib

By HELEN HENNESSY
Women's Editor
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—The age of elegance starts in the crib. The allure of couture has spread to infant's wear.

The makers of tiny togs believe that it's never too soon to enjoy high fashion if it's functional as well.

One of the most important tot trends is the new use of pattern—a departure from the typical solid blues, pinks and whites. And since tots like dots, polka dot treatments have emerged as a favorite.

The military look has also invaded the miniset. And it's disarming. The splashy use of pure bright white is punctuated by bold blue stripes, jaunty epaulettes, C.P.O. pockets and brass buttons. The look has been handed down to the mini-mites complete with co-ordinated caps, coats, dresses, shirt sets and suits.

Every new silhouette in mom's and dad's closets can be found cut down to size for the nursery crowd.

For the girls, figure-flattering tents with textured white leotards are around, as well as one-piece jump suits and bubble-suits for beaching and sunning. And since fellers are couture-conscious, too, these days, the pint-sized variety is following suit with bobby suits that have snappy side zippers, cardigan jackets and basque shirts.

Fabrics are machine-washable stretch nylon that doesn't need ironing, easy-to-care-for poplin batiste and lightweight batiste. Zippers and snaps have all been incorporated into the high-fashion designing, assuring quick-change artistry in case of accident.

To size up the infants' fashion situation correctly, from 12 to 18 pounds, medium is the proper size. Large is for the 19-22 set and extra large applies to heavyweights of 23-29 pounds. Beyond that they're no longer babes, but toddlers.

YOU'RE NEVER TOO YOUNG to be fashionable. The polka dot dress (left) from the Me Too Collection is of 100 per cent stretch nylon. Slightly A-lined with a shoulder decoration and zipper, it has cuffed short sleeves and is available with textured white leotards. Military coat (right) is teamed with a hat that does double duty as a tote. These are Charles Pindyck designs.

COOL COVER-UP—For dockside or poolside, cotton lace culottes make fashionable coverage. Lace bonded to terry cloth assures quick dry-off when worn over a wet swimsuit. Designed by Oleg Cassini for Peter Pan.

WARNING against what he called mounting war fever in America, Sen. Thruston B. Morton, R-Ky., said it's up to the administration to lower the temperature to prevent "total world holocaust."

PLAY LOOK—Cotton duck in a bold Aztec print shapes a slashed tunic top worn over solid duck shorts. For a second playtime look, pair the shorts with a roll-collared top in solid duck. Simplicity Patterns 7091 and 6819 make the three pieces. From Singer's.

The "Rights" of the Wrong

Dr. Kershner

UNDER the ideology developed by our Supreme Court, the known facts regarding one's guilt in a criminal case no longer have any relationship to the penalty, if any, to be meted out to the offender. It has now become a question of how these facts are determined.

Less than a year ago, Jose Suarez confessed to the police that he had murdered his wife and five small children. At the time of his confession there was no law or ruling requiring that an accused person be informed that his testimony might be used against him. This case has just come to trial, and there being no evidence against Suarez other than his own confession, he was set free. He had confessed freely the murdering of his wife and five small children. No one questioned the facts, but since the way these facts were determined was not in accordance with the ruling of the Supreme Court, the man was freed. In its over-zealous desire to protect the rights of this man, the court returns him to society as a free man — free to murder other innocent people. No penalty is exacted for six murders already committed, and no safeguard whatever is thrown around innocent people whom he may murder in the future.

Evidently our Supreme Court has decided that every possible protection must be thrown around the criminal, and that his right must be the supreme consideration. Apparently the rights of innocent people do not weigh heavily against the rights of the criminal.

What kind of distorted thinking or perhaps deep plotting against the rights of the people and against our whole system of jurisprudence is leading our courts to destroy our civilization? Suarez is not the only murderer to be set free recently. Kicky Summer Headgear

YOUNG HEADGEAR HAS THE INTERNATIONAL LOOK this year. It all adds up to a code that spells soft, crushable, kicky and bright. One version of the soft, crushable look is the rippled brim hat of striped cotton (top left). For the beach, sports car or any casual occasion the polka dot sunshader of crushable cotton (top right) is an ideal choice. For a featherweight, cool summer look (lower left) the cuffed brim straw is a happy choice. Any girl going to the shore or the tennis courts will enjoy the soft cotton safari hat (lower right). All the hats shown here were chosen for her wardrobe by Judy Geeson, the 17-year-old British actress now starring in "To Sir, With Love."

HAPPY HIPPO will probably never have a prettier girl astride its broad back. Mary Chipperfield, 29, operates zoological gardens at Southampton, England, and her well-managed lions, tigers, bears . . . and hippos, are often used by movie producers as characters for wild animal scenes.

Couture Starts in the Crib

By HELEN HENNESSY
Women's Editor
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—The age of elegance starts in the crib. The allure of couture has spread to infant's wear.

The makers of tiny togs believe that it's never too soon to enjoy high fashion if it's functional as well.

One of the most important tot trends is the new use of pattern—a departure from the typical solid blues, pinks and whites. And since tots like dots, polka dot treatments have emerged as a favorite.

The military look has also invaded the miniset. And it's disarming. The splashy use of pure bright white is punctuated by bold blue stripes, jaunty epaulettes, C.P.O. pockets and brass buttons. The look has been handed down to the mini-mites complete with co-ordinated caps, coats, dresses, shirt sets and suits.

Every new silhouette in mom's and dad's closets can be found cut down to size for the nursery crowd.

For the girls, figure-flattering tents with textured white leotards are around, as well as one-piece jump suits and bubble-suits for beaching and sunning. And since fellers are couture-conscious, too, these days, the pint-sized variety is following suit with bobby suits that have snappy side zippers, cardigan jackets and basque shirts.

Fabrics are machine-washable stretch nylon that doesn't need ironing, easy-to-care-for poplin batiste and lightweight batiste. Zippers and snaps have all been incorporated into the high-fashion designing, assuring quick-change artistry in case of accident.

To size up the infants' fashion situation correctly, from 12 to 18 pounds, medium is the proper size. Large is for the 19-22 set and extra large applies to heavyweights of 23-29 pounds. Beyond that they're no longer babes, but toddlers.

YOU'RE NEVER TOO YOUNG to be fashionable. The polka dot dress (left) from the Me Too Collection is of 100 per cent stretch nylon. Slightly A-lined with a shoulder decoration and zipper, it has cuffed short sleeves and is available with textured white leotards. Military coat (right) is teamed with a hat that does double duty as a tote. These are Charles Pindyck designs.

COOL COVER-UP—For dockside or poolside, cotton lace culottes make fashionable coverage. Lace bonded to terry cloth assures quick dry-off when worn over a wet swimsuit. Designed by Oleg Cassini for Peter Pan.

WARNING against what he called mounting war fever in America, Sen. Thruston B. Morton, R-Ky., said it's up to the administration to lower the temperature to prevent "total world holocaust."

PLAY LOOK—Cotton duck in a bold Aztec print shapes a slashed tunic top worn over solid duck shorts. For a second playtime look, pair the shorts with a roll-collared top in solid duck. Simplicity Patterns 7091 and 6819 make the three pieces. From Singer's.

The "Rights" of the Wrong

Dr. Kershner

UNDER the ideology developed by our Supreme Court, the known facts regarding one's guilt in a criminal case no longer have any relationship to the penalty, if any, to be meted out to the offender. It has now become a question of how these facts are determined.

Less than a year ago, Jose Suarez confessed to the police that he had murdered his wife and five small children. At the time of his confession there was no law or ruling requiring that an accused person be informed that his testimony might be used against him. This case has just come to trial, and there being no evidence against Suarez other than his own confession, he was set free. He had confessed freely the murdering of his wife and five small children. No one questioned the facts, but since the way these facts were determined was not in accordance with the ruling of the Supreme Court, the man was freed. In its over-zealous desire to protect the rights of this man, the court returns him to society as a free man — free to murder other innocent people. No penalty is exacted for six murders already committed, and no safeguard whatever is thrown around innocent people whom he may murder in the future.

Evidently our Supreme Court has decided that every possible protection must be thrown around the criminal, and that his right must be the supreme consideration. Apparently the rights of innocent people do not weigh heavily against the rights of the criminal.

What kind of distorted thinking or perhaps deep plotting against the rights of the people and against our whole system of jurisprudence is leading our courts to destroy our civilization? Suarez is not the only murderer to be set free recently. Only a month ago three other known murderers were freed by the State Supreme Court of New York because they had not been informed of their so-called "rights" before they confessed. This same pattern is being followed generally throughout the United States. Unless it is reversed by action of Congress, changing our laws so as to place some limitations on the courts, it would seem that the American people will be helpless to check the rising wave of crime that threatens to engulf them.

U.S. and Russia Aided China as Nuclear Power

EDITOR'S NOTE— Behind the rapid development of Red China's nuclear power is a strange story of inadvertent help— from both the United States and Soviet union. This tangled background is explored in the second of three articles on Peking's H-bomb success.

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
and
ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

Both America and the Soviet Union gave significant help to China's drive for nuclear power.

America helped by training highly skilled scientists and then deporting them to a China under communism. Russia helped by sending scientists, technicians and materials to China and training Chinese in Russia.

Now both were appalled at the prospect of an unstable China possessing nuclear-tipped missiles, a hydrogen bomb and potential for quick development of long-range rockets. Ironically, both were haunted by the same question: by how many years did their help speed up the Chinese timetable?

Eventually China, with a wealth of talented people and natural resources, would have made it on her own. But in 32 months she had marched from A-bomb to H-bomb in a third the time it had taken the United States.

Before communism, Americans, British and French considered China a friend and ally. After communism, Russia treated China as an ally, vowing "eternal friendship." Today Peking is implacably hostile to America, calls the Soviet regime "enemy No. 1," vows publicly to support brush-fire wars which could lead to catastrophe, and to aid the spread of nuclear weapons.

American help to China dates back as much as 30 years. Soviet help dates to the 1950s after communism seized China.

Before World War II, there was a heavy influx of Chinese students into the United States. By 1950, more than 3,000 Chinese were on top U.S. campuses.

Many remained after communism took over the mainland. Some were lured back by threats. Some were disheartened by a U.S. climate they considered hostile to Orientals. Some were frightened by the era of Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy, R-Wis., and his celebrated hunt for Communists. Some probably left out of sympathy for a Communist China, some for a combination of all those factors.

About 80 men whose U.S. training could contribute much to a nuclear program went back. Their roles would be significant.

Russia trained many engineers, technicians and scientists for the nuclear drive. Moscow extended important help in an "atoms for peace" agreement. Soviet scientists worked with Chinese in China, even selected the site for prospective testing.

The roll of Chinese scientists who went home from America, laden with know-how and often with bitterness, is impressive.

Among them were: Dr. Chao Chung-yao, outstanding physicist, alumnus of the California Institute of Technology, veteran of 24 years research in the United States and once an official observer at U.S. A-bomb tests; Dr. Tsien Hsue-shen, brilliant Caltech alumnus considered one of the world's top rocket researchers, who undoubtedly had a key part in marrying China's nuclear warhead to a missile.

One of the most intriguing stories was that of Dr. Tsien. He arrived in America in 1935 to study at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. In 1936 he transferred to Caltech, fascinated by the study of rocket propulsion in the days when it was regarded as science fiction. So brilliant was his performance that during World War II Tsien became head of the rocket section of the U.S. National Defense Scientific Advisory Board under Gen. Henry H. "Hap" Arnold of the Air Corps. With the rank of Air Corps colonel, Tsien went to Germany after the Nazi surrender to probe secrets of Hitler's rocket scientists.

Tsien became Goddard professor of jet propulsion at Caltech and head of the Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena. In 1949 he filed notice of intention to become a U.S. citizen, evidently deciding to stay in America where his two children were born.

In the summer of 1950 Tsien's security clearance for sensitive work was lifted. The reason: 12 years before, Tsien's friends had included scientists and others whom the government later would call members of a Communist party unit. A party registration in Tsien's name was found by an undercover agent, but not in Tsien's handwriting and without his signature. He denied having registered. The undercover agent himself testified anyone could register a desirable candidate for membership without the subject's knowledge.

After two weeks behind bars, Tsien was released in bail. Hearings dragged into the spring of 1951. He was declared deportable but he was far too valuable to deport. For five years, forbidden to leave, Tsien continued teaching and turning out brilliant papers, though removed from sensitive work. Colleagues refused to believe he ever was a Communist.

Suddenly in 1955 the government deported Tsien and his family, along with 39 Chinese students mostly in graduate scientific work. As soon as he arrived in Red China, Tsien was put to work on missile research.

Without men from America and Europe, China would have taken much longer to produce bombs and missiles. She had been severely short of senior scientists.

In the World War II period, at one time or another, 10,000 Chinese students had been in the United States, the majority studying modern technologies. Many wanted to stay. Many did.

Peking, under Mao Tse-tung, desperately wanted senior scientists. Letters poured in on the Chinese scientists in America, threatening relatives in China, denouncing U.S. attitudes, picturing a new day dawning in China, promising the best of everything to those who would return. The campaign succeeded. By the end of 1952, about 1,500 students left the United States for China. In 1955, when U.S. officialdom decided passage of time had made their knowledge less dangerous to U.S. security— as in Tsien's case — scores were deported.

Red China nagged Big Brother in Moscow for nuclear help. Moscow and Peking agreed on joint activity, including a cooperative rare metals corporation in Sinkiang. The Russians installed a plant to process Sinkiang's uranium ore. Russia would refine it.

In 1955, Moscow under Nikita S. Khrushchev agreed to a program of "scientific-technical cooperation" and "peaceful uses of atomic energy." Russian help included a 7,000-kilowatt capacity reactor, a cyclotron and fissionable materials.

The Chinese began to move swiftly, and Moscow began to worry. In 1957, Khrushchev had signed an agreement promising China a sample A-bomb and data on how to manufacture it.

But Mao frightened Khrushchev.

In a Moscow speech in November that year, Mao said that "if the worst came to the worst and half of mankind should die in nuclear war the other half would remain, while imperialism would be razed to the ground, and the whole world would become Socialist."

Khrushchev's repeated references to this made clear he had heard it with horror as a demonstration of Chinese recklessness. He kept Peking guessing until June, 1959, then tore up the agreement to give China a sample bomb.

China, without Soviet assistance, was in a position to move forward, despite Khrushchev's abrupt removal of 1,000 Soviet scientists and engineers. The Russians openly told China she was unprepared to enter the nuclear club and would do better to mend her economy. Soviet arguments got nowhere.

Then, in the fall of 1964, came two great upheavals, one technological, one political.

Moscow fired Khrushchev. The Chinese fired their first atom blast.

Town Faces Choice of Girlie ShowOrTax Hike

GREENUP, Ky. (AP) -- A group of citizens protesting a bump-and-grind show at the annual county fair have been warned of an imminent tax hike if the hootchy-kootchy is canceled in 1967.

The City Council met Monday and left it up to the volunteer fire department whether to keep the show. The department runs the fair each year.

But a council spokesman said the firemen would lose about $1,200 if it cancels the girlie show -- by far the fair's most popular event.

The $1,200 buys firefighting equipment each year, he said, and a tax would have to be substituted for the profitable dance.

U.S. and Russia Aided China as Nuclear Power

EDITOR'S NOTE— Behind the rapid development of Red China's nuclear power is a strange story of inadvertent help— from both the United States and Soviet union. This tangled background is explored in the second of three articles on Peking's H-bomb success.

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

Both America and the Soviet Union gave significant help to China's drive for nuclear power.

America helped by training highly skilled scientists and then deporting them to a China under communism. Russia helped by sending scientists, technicians and materials to China and training Chinese in Russia.

Now both were appalled at the prospect of an unstable China possessing nuclear-tipped missiles, a hydrogen bomb and potential for quick development of long-range rockets. Ironically, both were haunted by the same question: by how many years did their help speed up the Chinese timetable?

Eventually China, with a wealth of talented people and natural resources, would have made it on her own. But in 32 months she had marched from A-bomb to H-bomb in a third the time it had taken the United States.

Before communism, Americans, British and French considered China a friend and ally. After communism, Russia treated China as an ally, vowing "eternal friendship." Today Peking is implacably hostile to America, calls the Soviet regime "enemy No. 1," vows publicly to support brush-fire wars which could lead to catastrophe, and to aid the spread of nuclear weapons.

American help to China dates back as much as 30 years. Soviet help dates to the 1950s after communism seized China.

Before World War II, there was a heavy influx of Chinese students into the United States. By 1950, more than 3,000 Chinese were on top U.S. campuses.

Many remained after communism took over the mainland. Some were lured back by threats. Some were disheartened by a U.S. climate they considered hostile to Orientals. Some were frightened by the era of Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy, R-Wis., and his celebrated hunt for Communists. Some probably left out of sympathy for a Communist China, some for a combination of all those factors.

About 80 men whose U.S. training could contribute much to a nuclear program went back. Their roles would be significant.

Russia trained many engineers, technicians and scientists for the nuclear drive. Moscow extended important help in an "atoms for peace" agreement. Soviet scientists worked with Chinese in China, even selected the site for prospective testing.

The roll of Chinese scientists who went home from America, laden with know-how and often with bitterness, is impressive.

Among them were: Dr. Chao Chung-yao, outstanding physicist, alumnus of the California Institute of Technology, veteran of 24 years research in the United States and once an official observer at U.S. A-bomb tests; Dr. Tsien Hsue-shen, brilliant Caltech alumnus considered one of the world's top rocket researchers, who undoubtedly had a key part in marrying China's nuclear warhead to a missile.

One of the most intriguing stories was that of Dr. Tsien. He arrived in America in 1935 to study at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. In 1936 he transferred to Caltech, fascinated by the study of rocket propulsion in the days when it was regarded as science fiction. So brilliant was his performance that during World War II Tsien became head of the rocket section of the U.S. National Defense Scientific Advisory Board under Gen. Henry H. "Hap" Arnold of the Air Corps. With the rank of Air Corps colonel, Tsien went to Germany after the Nazi surrender to probe secrets of Hitler's rocket scientists.

Tsien became Goddard professor of jet propulsion at Caltech and head of the Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena. In 1949 he filed notice of intention to become a U.S. citizen, evidently deciding to stay in America where his two children were born.

In the summer of 1950 Tsien's security clearance for sensitive work was lifted. The reason: 12 years before, Tsien's friends had included scientists and others whom the government later would call members of a Communist party unit. A party registration in Tsien's name was found by an undercover agent, but not in Tsien's handwriting and without his signature. He denied having registered. The undercover agent himself testified anyone could register a desirable candidate for membership without the subject's knowledge.

After two weeks behind bars, Tsien was released in bail. Hearings dragged into the spring of 1951. He was declared deportable but he was far too valuable to deport. For five years, forbidden to leave, Tsien continued teaching and turning out brilliant papers, though removed from sensitive work. Colleagues refused to believe he ever was a Communist.

Suddenly in 1955 the government deported Tsien and his family, along with 39 Chinese students mostly in graduate scientific work. As soon as he arrived in Red China, Tsien was put to work on missile research.

Without men from America and Europe, China would have taken much longer to produce bombs and missiles. She had been severely short of senior scientists.

In the World War II period, at one time or another, 10,000 Chinese students had been in the United States, the majority studying modern technologies. Many wanted to stay. Many did.

Peking, under Mao Tse-tung, desperately wanted senior scientists. Letters poured in on the Chinese scientists in America, threatening relatives in China, denouncing U.S. attitudes, picturing a new day dawning in China, promising the best of everything to those who would return. The campaign succeeded. By the end of 1952, about 1,500 students left the United States for China. In 1955, when U.S. officialdom decided passage of time had made their knowledge less dangerous to U.S. security— as in Tsien's case — scores were deported.

Red China nagged Big Brother in Moscow for nuclear help. Moscow and Peking agreed on joint activity, including a cooperative rare metals corporation in Sinkiang. The Russians installed a plant to process Sinkiang's uranium ore. Russia would refine it.

In 1955, Moscow under Nikita S. Khrushchev agreed to a program of "scientific-technical cooperation" and "peaceful uses of atomic energy." Russian help included a 7,000-kilowatt capacity reactor, a cyclotron and fissionable materials.

The Chinese began to move swiftly, and Moscow began to worry. In 1957, Khrushchev had signed an agreement promising China a sample A-bomb and data on how to manufacture it. But Mao frightened Khrushchev.

In a Moscow speech in November that year, Mao said that "If the worst came to the worst and half of mankind should die in nuclear war the other half would remain, while imperialism would be razed to the ground, and the whole world would become Socialist."

Khrushchev's repeated references to this made clear he had heard it with horror as a demonstration of Chinese recklessness. He kept Peking guessing until June, 1959, then tore up the agreement to give China a sample bomb.

China, without Soviet assistance, was in a position to move forward, despite Khrushchev's abrupt removal of 1,000 Soviet scientists and engineers. The Russians openly told China she was unprepared to enter the nuclear club and would do better to mend her economy. Soviet arguments got nowhere.

Then, in the fall of 1964, came two great upheavals, one technological, one political.

Moscow fired Khrushchev. The Chinese fired their first atom blast.

Mental Exam Set for Boy Held in Stabbing

WARRENSBURG, Mo. (AP)— A mental examination has been ordered for Kenneth Grebe, 13, who is being held in the fatal stabbing of Robert H. Martin at Robbins, Mo.

The boy's mother, Mrs. Ruth I. Grebe, will be tried in the October term of court on a charge of second degree murder in the same case.

Martin was killed a month ago while mowing grass in a churchyard.

Town Faces Choice of Girlie Show or Tax Hike

GREENUP, Ky. (AP) -- A group of citizens protesting a bump-and-grind show at the annual county fair have been warned of an imminent tax hike if the hootchy-kootchy is canceled in 1967.

The City Council met Monday and left it up to the volunteer fire department whether to keep the show. The department runs the fair each year.

But a council spokesman said the firemen would lose about $1,200 if it cancels the girlie show -- by far the fair's most popular event.

The $1,200 buys firefighting equipment each year, he said, and a tax would have to be substituted for the profitable dance.

Electric Shock Kills 4

GALLIPOLIS, Ohio (AP) — Three children and a man were electrocuted Monday when the citizens band radio antenna they were installing at a rural home touched a 7,200-volt line, sheriff's officers said.

WASHINGTON (AP)— A grant to the Missouri Park Board from the Interior Department will aid in the acquisition of 80 acres of land in Lake of the Ozarks State Park in Miller County, Mo. it was announced Monday. The grant is for $7,500. The land is to be managed as a natural wilderness. Missouri will match the federal funds.

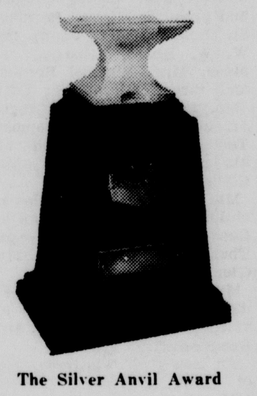
NEW YORK (ANF)—The U. S. Army Office of the Chief of Information (OCINFO), Washington, D. C., and Charleston Army Depot have received Silver Anvil Awards from the Public Relations Society of America for outstanding public relations programs.

Maj. Gen. Keith L. Ware, Chief of Public Information and Chief of Information, and Col. Charles S. Campbell, Commanding Officer, Charleston Army Depot, Charleston, S. C., accepted the awards.

The society presented the awards in its 23d annual program to recognize successful public relations activites in government and business.

OCINFO received its award for an information program during 1966 to make military personnel and the public aware of the newly created position of Sergeant Major of the Army.



The Silver Anvil Award

The Silver Anvil was presented to Charleston Army Depot for its program to create a favorable impression of the facility through imaginative promotional techniques during Armed Forces Week.

The Public Relations Society's Silver Anvil symbolizes the idea that the validity, quality, and achievement of any public relations activity must be forged on the anvil of public opinion. The Army also won two Silver Anvils last year.

A Nation of "Sibphagists"

THE generally accepted estimate of national income has risen from $181.2 billion in 1945 to $554.7 billion in 1965, twenty years later. This is a rise of 205 percent during the past twenty years, and would seem to be the occasion for rejoicing until we note that net public and private debt during the same period rose from $406.3 billion in 1945 to $1,267.5 billion in 1965, for a total rise during the period of 212 percent — just a little more than the rise in the so-called national income. Surely we must all be dismayed to find that debt has risen faster than income.

Dr. Kershner

The awful truth now dawns upon us that we have been borrowing heavily, both as private individuals and as government units, and converting this debt into income. Of course it is not real income — it is mere splurging on borrowed funds. We are mortgaging the future to finance our current extravagance. Instead of storing up a patrimony for our children and our grandchildren, we are using up, not only the wealth we have, but are mortgaging their future. To put a Gothic noun root before a common Greek suffix, we might describe this practice as being that of a "sibphagist," that is, a creature which consumes its own young.

It is the normal desire of parents to leave the best cultural and material heritage to their children that may be within their power. Very few realize, apparently, that our rising debt, though it be converted into income in our time, is actually the squandering of the heritage which we should bequeath to future generations. It is exactly as if one kept increasing the mortgage on his home and continued spending lavishly, with every appearance of prosperity until the mortgage was foreclosed, leaving the family homeless. That's what's happening to America. Every patriot will work and pray that the eyes of our people may be opened before it is too late to reverse the trend — the inevitable trend — toward bankruptcy. We must learn to stop borrowing money and to live within our means, both as individuals and as local, state and federal units of government. There is no health or safety any other way.

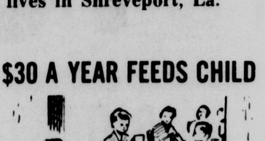
JOHN SCOPES says he's happy over Tennessee's legislative repeal of its controversial "Monkey Law" that made him 42 years ago the center of a historic courtroom drama. Gov. Buford Ellington's signature is needed to take the law off books. Scopes now lives in Shreveport, La.

$30 A YEAR FEEDS CHILD



Although many school children throughout Israel are being fed, Americans are being asked for money to feed an additional 50,000 of the children there. The cost, $1,500,000, comes to $30 a child for a year. A tax-deductible contribution may be mailed to United Jewish Appeal, 1290 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Teachers in Israel say that one of the biggest problems they face is that they can feed only some of the children. A U.S. visitor to Israel recently had the unsettling experience of seeing some children, just as hungry, standing outside a classroom watching those inside being fed!

Highest Fertility Rate

The marriage fertility rate of the people of Malta is considered by some authorities to be the world's highest. It is now thought to be about 25 per cent above that of the Republic of Ireland, long regarded as the highest in the world, according to the Encyclopaedia Britannica.

"...will he always be a drunk?"

More than 5½ million Americans are victims of alcoholism. And since it's estimated that every alcoholic affects profoundly the lives of five others, well over a tenth of our population is caught up in some way in this disastrous problem.

Today we know it's a disease of the mind, the body, and, perhaps most important, of the spirit. There are hundreds of thousands of alcoholics who are living proof that the disease can be overcome. And few, if any, of them will tell you it can be done without a complete renewal of the spirit.

Your minister, priest, or rabbi can help you if you or someone you know is fighting a battle with alcohol. Not only will you be directed to the organizations and professionals who have had the greatest success in healing the alcoholic—you may also find the spiritual help for which you've been searching. NIXON AND EISENHOWER were together again, only this time it was Julie Nixon, daughter of the former vice-president, and David Eisenhower, the former president's grandson, as they attended a New York movie premiere.

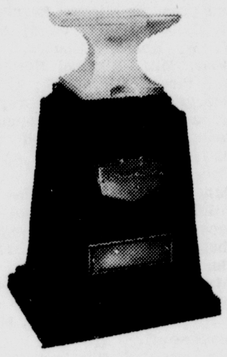
NEW YORK (ANF)—The U. S. Army Office of the Chief of Information (OCINFO), Washington, D. C., and Charleston Army Depot have received Silver Anvil Awards from the Public Relations Society of America for outstanding public relations programs.

Maj. Gen. Keith L. Ware, Chief of Public Information and Chief of Information, and Col. Charles S. Campbell, Commanding Officer, Charleston Army Depot, Charleston, S. C., accepted the awards.

The society presented the awards in its 23d annual program to recognize successful public relations activites in government and business.

OCINFO received its award for an information program during 1966 to make military personnel and the public aware of the newly created position of Sergeant Major of the Army.



The Silver Anvil Award

The Silver Anvil was presented to Charleston Army Depot for its program to create a favorable impression of the facility through imaginative promotional techniques during Armed Forces Week.

The Public Relations Society's Silver Anvil symbolizes the idea that the validity, quality, and achievement of any public relations activity must be forged on the anvil of public opinion. The Army also won two Silver Anvils last year.

IT'S UP TO YOU

Howard E. Kershner, L.H.D.

A Nation of "Sibphagists"

THE generally accepted estimate of national income has risen from $181.2 billion in 1945 to $554.7 billion in 1965, twenty years later. This is a rise of 205 percent during the past twenty years, and would seem to be the occasion for rejoicing until we note that net public and private debt during the same period rose from $406.3 billion in 1945 to $1,267.5 billion in 1965, for a total rise during the period of 212 percent — just a little more than the rise in the so-called national income. Surely we must all be dismayed to find that debt has risen faster than income.

Dr. Kershner

The awful truth now dawns upon us that we have been borrowing heavily, both as private individuals and as government units, and converting this debt into income. Of course it is not real income — it is mere splurging on borrowed funds. We are mortgaging the future to finance our current extravagance. Instead of storing up a patrimony for our children and our grandchildren, we are using up, not only the wealth we have, but are mortgaging their future. To put a Gothic noun root before a common Greek suffix, we might describe this practice as being that of a "sibphagist," that is, a creature which consumes its own young.

It is the normal desire of parents to leave the best cultural and material heritage to their children that may be within their power. Very few realize, apparently, that our rising debt, though it be converted into income in our time, is actually the squandering of the heritage which we should bequeath to future generations. It is exactly as if one kept increasing the mortgage on his home and continued spending lavishly, with every appearance of prosperity until the mortgage was foreclosed, leaving the family homeless. That's what's happening to America. Every patriot will work and pray that the eyes of our people may be opened before it is too late to reverse the trend — the inevitable trend — toward bankruptcy. We must learn to stop borrowing money and to live within our means, both as individuals and as local, state and federal units of government. There is no health or safety any other way.

JOHN SCOPES says he's happy over Tennessee's legislative repeal of its controversial "Monkey Law" that made him 42 years ago the center of a historic courtroom drama. Gov. Buford Ellington's signature is needed to take the law off books. Scopes now lives in Shreveport, La.

$30 A YEAR FEEDS CHILD

Although many school children throughout Israel are being fed, Americans are being asked for money to feed an additional 50,000 of the children there. The cost, $1,500,000, comes to $30 a child for a year. A tax-deductible contribution may be mailed to United Jewish Appeal, 1290 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Teachers in Israel say that one of the biggest problems they face is that they can feed only some of the children. A U.S. visitor to Israel recently had the unsettling experience of seeing some children, just as hungry, standing outside a classroom watching those inside being fed!

"...will he always be a drunk?"

More than 5½ million Americans are victims of alcoholism. And since it's estimated that every alcoholic affects profoundly the lives of five others, well over a tenth of our population is caught up in some way in this disastrous problem.

Today we know it's a disease of the mind, the body, and, perhaps most important, of the spirit. There are hundreds of thousands of alcoholics who are living proof that the disease can be overcome. And few, if any, of them will tell you it can be done without a complete renewal of the spirit.

Your minister, priest, or rabbi can help you if you or someone you know is fighting a battle with alcohol. Not only will you be directed to the organizations and professionals who have had the greatest success in healing the alcoholic—you may also find the spiritual help for which you've been searching. The spiritual help you'll need.

You've tried everything else, haven't you? Try this and see.

City Police
Sikeston, Missouri

Gentlemen:

On Sunday, July 30, 1967, I stopped at the Holiday Inn in Sikeston, Missouri for lunch, at which time I discovered I had left my purse in the rest room of a service station in Vienna, Illinois. I encountered three Sikeston Police on their way out of the Inn, and I stopped and reported this loss to them. They were kind enough to take a report from me and call the loss in to Vienna, and yesterday, I received my purse with contents intact from Marshall Moss, Standard Station, Vienna, Illinois.

I want to take this opportunity to thank the police of your city for their courtesy to me. They were most helpful and I shall certainly always have a feeling of utmost respect for the police of your city.

I am today sending my check to Mr. Moss in Vienna, as an expression of my appreciation to him for returning the purse to me.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Joe E. Finch

2 -BOWL KITCHEN SINK IS HOMEMAKER'S DELIGHT

If you're going to remodel your kitchen this year, consider the advantages of a 2-compartment sink.

The Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau points out that even in the most elaborate kitchen, the sink remains the focal point of food preparation and cleanup. It should, therefore incorporate every convenience.

One of the newest 2-compartment sinks available has a large deep, general-purpose bowl at the right. The one at the left is shallower, so that an electric food waste disposer can be conveniently installed beneath it. It's intended for cleaning fruits and vegetables.

Ann Landers

Let's Face It Not All Dogs Talk

Dear Ann Landers: Since you caused my problem, perhaps you can tell me what to do about it. You have wrecked my homelife with those ridiculous letters about "talking" dogs.

First let me make it clear that my husband is a solid citizen. I have never known him to go off the deep end about anything -- until he read in your column about the poodle who said "I want to go outside," and the spaniel who spoke Italian.

Now my husband is firmly convinced that if other people's dogs can talk, ours should be able to say something, too. For a week now he has been trying to get our boxer to say, "The rain in Spain falls mainly on the plain." The poor dog doesn't know what to make of it.

My husband has faith in you, Ann, so please tell him in your column that not all dogs can be made to talk and to stop making our home miserable. --- CAN'T GET THROUGH TO HIM

Dear Can't Get Through's Husband: Look, fella -- leave the poor mutt alone. If he hasn't said anything up to now, he's not likely to --- ever. So give up already.

Dear Ann Landers: Last night we went to a party at the home of relatives. An 11- year - old girl was being honored at a birthday party given by her parents.

The child ripped open one beautifully wrapped gift after another, glanced at the contents, tossed the gift aside, then reached for the next gift without uttering one word of thanks or even looking at the person who gave it to her.

After she had opened about a dozen boxes, she became bored, stepped over the gifts as if they were garbage and trotted into the bedroom to try on her new clothes. Her parents didn't say one word to her about her rudeness.

Please tell us if we should say something to the child or to the parents. The girl is becoming more obnoxious by the day. --- CONCERNED RELATIVE

Dear Relative: It is clear from the tone of your letter that you dislike the child. The sad truth is that she is the victim of poor upbringing. It is tragic when children are reared to be selfish and ungracious. Think of what that girl will have to overcome later in life!

Say nothing. Your remarks would not be well received. Do try to understand, however, that the child is not at fault.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a girl 15 who is torn between my mother and my father. They were divorced last month and I am a nervous wreck. I have the choice of going with my mother who has decided to stay in this house or I can move to an apartment with my father whom I love dearly.

If I go with my father I will have to change schools. This means leaving my friends which would kill me. I also feel I should stay with my little sister (who has no choice, she must remain with Mom), but this would mean Dad would have no one while Mom had two. Please help me decide. --- ONE WHO HATES DIVORCE

Dear One: A 15-year-old girl is usually better off with her mother. A new school plus the emotional problems of a freshly split home is too much of a load. So, stay with your Mom and spend your summers and holidays with your Dad and good luck, honey.

Do you feel ill at ease. . .out of it? Is everybody having a good time but you? Write for Ann Landers' booklet, "The Key to Popularity," enclosing with your request 35 cents in coin and a long, self - addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self - addressed envelope.

If You Were the Judge

Baring Breasts No Cause For Marriage Breakup

By Jack Strauss, LL.D.

Marge had several drinks at a beach party -- but still put up a pretty good front. Particularly when she impetuously appeared among her friends in a topless bathing suit.

The repercussion of the incident occurred several months later. Marge's husband suddenly left her and she sued him for separate maintenance.

"When a woman wears a topless bathing suit," was the defense "her husband has every right to move out without having to pay the high cost of leaving."

"But it wasn't my fault," was Marge's answer. "I got mixed up by mixed drinks."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make a husband support an immodest wife?

This is how the judge ruled: Marge's husband had to pay. The judge held that Marge's immodest conduct, on a single occasion, would have justified his efforts to conceal the exposed portion of her body -- but did not justify his leaving.

And, even if it did, his continuing to live with her for several months after the incident amounted to his condoning her conduct.

(Based upon a 1964 Illinois Court of Appeals Decision)

There is no legal obligation to help a person in distress. But, once you undertake to do so, you cannot leave him in a worse position than you found him.

2 -BOWL KITCHEN SINK IS HOMEMAKER'S DELIGHT

If you're going to remodel your kitchen this year, consider the advantages of a 2-compartment sink.

The Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau points out that even in the most elaborate kitchen, the sink remains the focal point of food preparation and cleanup. It should, therefore incorporate every convenience.

One of the newest 2-compartment sinks available has a large deep, general-purpose bowl at the right. The one at the left is shallower, so that an electric food waste disposer can be conveniently installed beneath it. It's intended for cleaning fruits and vegetables.

Ann Landers

Let's Face It Not All Dogs Talk

Dear Ann Landers: Since you caused my problem, perhaps you can tell me what to do about it. You have wrecked my homelife with those ridiculous letters about "talking" dogs.

First let me make it clear that my husband is a solid citizen. I have never known him to go off the deep end about anything -- until he read in your column about the poodle who said "I want to go outside," and the spaniel who spoke Italian.

Now my husband is firmly convinced that if other people's dogs can talk, ours should be able to say something, too. For a week now he has been trying to get our boxer to say, "The rain in Spain falls mainly on the plain." The poor dog doesn't know what to make of it.

My husband has faith in you, Ann, so please tell him in your column that not all dogs can be made to talk and to stop making our home miserable. --- CAN'T GET THROUGH TO HIM

Dear Can't Get Through's Husband: Look, fella -- leave the poor mutt alone. If he hasn't said anything up to now, he's not likely to --- ever. So give up already.

Dear Ann Landers: Last night we went to a party at the home of relatives. An 11-year-old girl was being honored at a birthday party given by her parents.

The child ripped open one beautifully wrapped gift after another, glanced at the contents, tossed the gift aside, then reached for the next gift without uttering one word of thanks or even looking at the person who gave it to her.

After she had opened about a dozen boxes, she became bored, stepped over the gifts as if they were garbage and trotted into the bedroom to try on her new clothes. Her parents didn't say one word to her about her rudeness.

Please tell us if we should say something to the child or to the parents. The girl is becoming more obnoxious by the day. --- CONCERNED RELATIVE

Dear Relative: It is clear from the tone of your letter that you dislike the child. The sad truth is that she is the victim of poor upbringing. It is tragic when children are reared to be selfish and ungracious. Think of what that girl will have to overcome later in life!

Say nothing. Your remarks would not be well received. Do try to understand, however, that the child is not at fault.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a girl 15 who is torn between my mother and my father. They were divorced last month and I am a nervous wreck. I have the choice of going with my mother who has decided to stay in this house or I can move to an apartment with my father whom I love dearly.

If I go with my father I will have to change schools. This means leaving my friends which would kill me. I also feel I should stay with my little sister (who has no choice, she must remain with Mom), but this would mean Dad would have no one while Mom had two. Please help me decide. --- ONE WHO HATES DIVORCE

Dear One: A 15-year-old girl is usually better off with her mother. A new school plus the emotional problems of a freshly split home is too much of a load. So, stay with your Mom and spend your summers and holidays with your Dad and good luck, honey.

Do you feel ill at ease. . . out of it? Is everybody having a good time but you? Write for Ann Landers' booklet, "The Key to Popularity," enclosing with your request 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

If You Were the Judge

Baring Breasts No Cause For Marriage Breakup

By Jack Strauss, LL.D.

Marge had several drinks at a beach party -- but still put up a pretty good front. Particularly when she impetuously appeared among her friends in a topless bathing suit.

The repercussion of the incident occurred several months later. Marge's husband suddenly left her and she sued him for separate maintenance.

"When a woman wears a topless bathing suit," was the defense "her husband has every right to move out without having to pay the high cost of leaving."

"But it wasn't my fault," was Marge's answer. "I got mixed up by mixed drinks."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make a husband support an immodest wife?

This is how the judge ruled: Marge's husband had to pay. The judge held that Marge's immodest conduct, on a single occasion, would have justified his efforts to conceal the exposed portion of her body -- but did not justify his leaving.

And, even if it did, his continuing to live with her for several months after the incident amounted to his condoning her conduct.

(Based upon a 1964 Illinois Court of Appeals Decision)

The Prayer From The Upper Room

"Every scribe who has been trained for the kingdom of heaven is like a householder, who brings out of his treasure what is new and what is old." &Matthew 13:52, RSV)

PRAYER: Father, help me to be a true disciple of Christ. Help me to seek new and better understanding, to treasure every gift of Thy love, and to serve human needs. In His name. Amen.

Ike Spends Restful Night

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower was reported today to have had a restful night.

His condition was said to be essentially the same as Monday, when doctors indicated he was getting along satisfactorily in his bout with a gastrointestinal upset.

This morning's hospital bulletin said: "General Eisenhower had a restful night. His condition is essentially unchanged."

Hearnes Signs Nine Measures

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — A bill legalizing possession of contraceptive pamphlets and books was signed into law today by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes.

The new law, like eight others today, becomes effective on Oct. 13.

One of the bills broadens the powers of the State Water Pollution Board and gives the attorney general or local prosecutors the right to seek injunctive relief against a pollutor. Each day of pollution will be a separate offense.

Another bill signed gives political subdivisions in Missouri the right to set up retirement systems for their employes or join the state retirement system.

Other bills signed included measures to:

Raise the pay of Agriculture commissioner Dexter Davis from $12,000 to $16,000 and the salary of the director of mine inspection, Don Davis, from $8,000 to $12,000 a year.

Add a second judge to the 11th Judicial Circuit— Lincoln, Pike, and St. Charles counties.

Broaden the powers of the state parole board, give courts the right to restore civil rights after completion of a parole and raise the pay of criminal court clerks in St. Louis by $3,000 a year.

A package liquor license was approved for Leona Yarber, 1308 Osage.

An ordinance was approved authorizing the rezoning of two plots in Sunset addition. A hearing on the rezoning was held at the July 3, council meeting.

The Slack and Meek tracts on the north side of Osage were rezoned from B, two family dwelling, to D, commercial district.

The rezoned areas include, the Meek tract bounded on the east by Petty street, and lots 7, 8, 9, and 10 in block 4, Sunset Addition, and lots 6 and 7 in block 5, Sunset Addition, bounded on the north by Osage, on the east by Petty and on the west by an alley between Westgate and Luther.

An ordinance authorizing the issuance of $1,957.24 in tax bills for the construction of a sidewalk on the south side of North street from Bowman to Alabama was adopted. The rate to be charged property owners is 70 cents per square foot.

Another ordinance was passed authorizing the issuance of tax bill for the construction of sidewalks on Washington street from Westgate to Alabama. The total cost will be $1,065.40. Cost to the property owners is 70 cents per square foot.

In miscellaneous business, Miller asked the council if the city should become more strict on the enforcement of a city ordinance, requiring property owners to keep weeds on lots mowed.

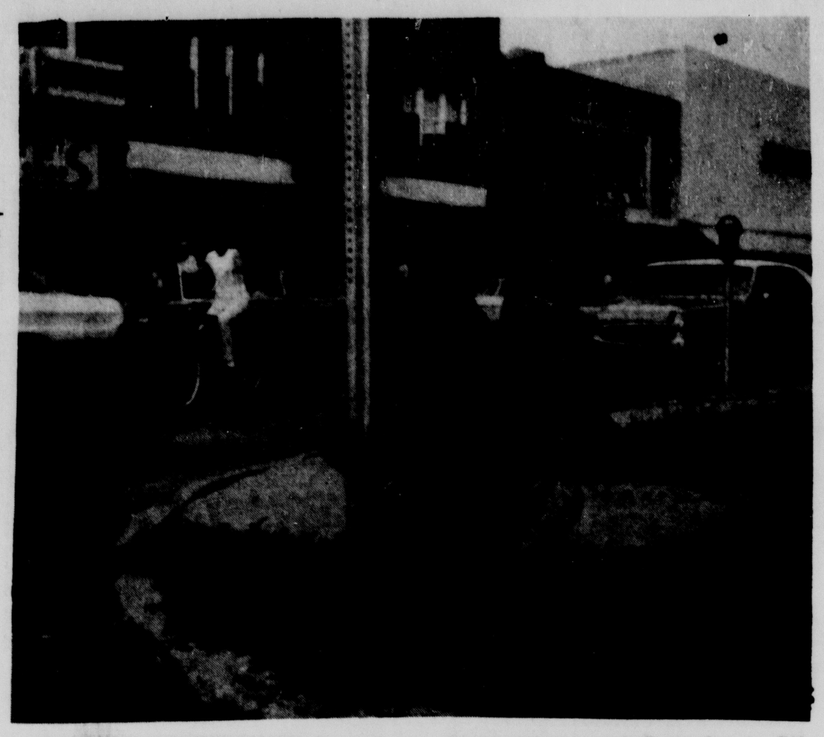
As it is now, Miller continued, we act on complaints. If someone complains about an unmowed area, the city trys to call the owner. If he can't be reached, the city mows the lot and bills the property owner. Sometimes the city is paid. Sometimes it is not, Miller said.

The ordinance places the responsibility on the property owner and provides that owners who allow weeds to grow 12 inches commit a misdemeanor. Miller asked if the city should start issuing summonses.

The council told Miller that the city should continue to handle the weed problems as they have been, and wait until next year before issuing summonses to violators.

Miller also reported that he sent a plan to the Federal Aviation Agency for the additional nine holes to be added to the Sikeston country club. The plan requires about 60 acres, of city-owned property near the airport, Miller said.

The plan was forwarded on the assumption that the council will lease it to the country club and that the country club will pay at least as much as the city has been receiving for agricultural use of the property, Miller noted.



AWAITING SENTENCING for not wearing western garb Saturday is City Court Judge Jim Sickal. He was handcuffed to the stop sign at New Madrid and Front streets, before given a dunk in the water trough in American Legion Park.

Insurance Industry in Adjustment to Medicare

NEW YORK (AP) — Nowhere is the ever changing business-government relationship more evident than in the position that much of the insurance industry now takes toward medicare.

Ten years ago medicare was considered a terrible threat. Now some of the country's largest insurers are using their administrative skills and computers to handle much of medicare's paper work under government contract.

To some extent this attitude is merely grudging recognition that medicare is here to stay. But it also reflects new attitudes by insurers, and changes in American social and political customs.

Just a decade or so ago, insurance companies had two criteria for investing policyholders' money: (1) the soundness of the investment and (2) the yield, or return on the invested money. Now a third has been added.

This new criterion, said James Oates, chairman of Equitable Life Assurance, means that "if you are going to be in business for the long term and be effective, then you must invest in the public interest."

This change in a corporation's view of itself is more recent than many people realize. "In 1948, when I was in the practice of law," said Oates in an interview, "nobody thought the corporation had a concern with corporate citizenship."

But the concept of corporate participation in local and national goals is gaining more acceptance. Companies that once thought their only obligation was to stockholders are now declaring that the stockholder is best served by aligning the corporate goal with social goals.

This concept is still only broadly defined. In some companies it means greater participation in community affairs: spending money on education, cooperating on urban projects among deprived citizens and the like.

Increasingly in the past two or three years it is an awareness that profits can be made as well as social goals accomplished in areas such as pollution control, urban renewal, education and health, often under government contract.

To some companies this evolution smacks of government control. But the justification as stated by numerous corporate and government officers is that these jobs, though guided by government, are to be carried out by the profit sector.

Reflecting on these changes, Oates said life and health insurance, "while it had a good record of progress in covering the needs of old people was not so alert as we, in hindsight, might have been."

This record shows that very few health policies existed for those over 65 in the late 1950s. A few years later, as medicare threatened, the number rose.

"But it was too late," Oates recalled. "Processes were in motion and medicare passed." And medicare took over most of the private "over 65" health insurance business.

The company's recent fine results with medicare have called more attention to other "no-risk" areas in which life insurance can use its vast know-how. An example: the company now administers the Tennessee Crippled Children's Program.

Just a week or so ago the board of directors granted authority for the company to go into more of these no-risk areas "incidental and complimentary" to insurance.

Strike Vote Ordered at General Motors Plants

DETROIT (AP)— United Auto Workers' locals at General Motors plants today were ordered to take a strike vote this month to "bring GM executives back to the world of reality."

The union made the announcement after receiving GM's first contract proposal which it said would cost UAW members about $150 million.

In a letter to local union leaders UAW Vice President Leonard Woodcock charged the firm with asking workers to "pay back the 18 cents an hour earned as cost-of-living protection during the term of the present agreement." He said this would take $374.40 from every hourly-rated worker.

General Motors' proposal, made last Thursday, was the first given to the union after four weeks of bargaining. The company asked for credit on the hourly 18 cents cost-of-living increase gained by UAW members since 1964 under the current agreement.

Under the cost-of-living formula, auto workers' hourly wages are adjusted up or down in line with changes in the consumer price index. The change has been consistently upward during the past three years.

The average hourly wage for an auto worker is $3.41.

Contracts covering some 750,000 workers at General Motors, Ford and Chrysler expire Sept. 6. Bargainers for the industry and the UAW have been working on new agreements since July 10.

"All unions have been notified to take a strike vote during the week of Aug. 20," said Woodcock. "Only by rallying our ranks can we bring executives back to the world of reality.

"Our answer to General Motors has been and has to be that we will not change the basic principle of cost-of-living protection but that we insist on modernizing it so it protests the full purchasing power of the negotiated wage," he said. Other demands stressed by Woodcock included "a substantial wage increase for all," a wage inequity fund and elimination of the Canadian wage gap.

Meanwhile, in negotiations with the Ford Motor Co., the union's demand for profit sharing ran into a wall of opposition.

Ford dusted off an old answer Monday to the UAW demand: "No."

Strike Vote Ordered at General Motors Plants

DETROIT (AP)— United Auto Workers' locals at General Motors plants today were ordered to take a strike vote this month to "bring GM executives back to the world of reality."

The union made the announcement after receiving GM's first contract proposal which it said would cost UAW members about $150 million.

In a letter to local union leaders UAW Vice President Leonard Woodcock charged the firm with asking workers to "pay back the 18 cents an hour earned as cost-of-living protection during the term of the present agreement." He said this would take $374.40 from every hourly-rated worker.

General Motors' proposal, made last Thursday, was the first given to the union after four weeks of bargaining. The company asked for credit on the hourly 18 cents cost-of-living increase gained by UAW members since 1964 under the current agreement.

Under the cost-of-living formula, auto workers' hourly wages are adjusted up or down in line with changes in the consumer price index. The change has been consistently upward during the past three years.

The average hourly wage for an auto worker is $3.41.

Contracts covering some 750,000 workers at General Motors, Ford and Chrysler expire Sept. 6. Bargainers for the industry and the UAW have been working on new agreements since July 10.

"All unions have been notified to take a strike vote during the week of Aug. 20," said Woodcock. "Only by rallying our ranks can we bring executives back to the world of reality.

Meanwhile, in negotiations with the Ford Motor Co., the union's demand for profit sharing ran into a wall of opposition.

Ford dusted off an old answer Monday to the UAW demand: "No."

Seven Charges Filed

Seven charges were filed against a Sikeston man Monday night.

William Nicholson Jr., 31, 332 Luther, was stopped by a policeman on North Street at 6:54 p.m. for a routine check for a city sticker. Police gave this report:

Nicholson's car did not have a city license. He was asked for his driver's license, and did not produce it. He told police he had a permit to operate a vehicle with a licensed driver in the front seat but he did not produce that permit.

Nicholson told police that he wanted to take the car to his father's house. Officer Hiram Gardner Jr. followed and Nicholson began speeding on Davis Road. Nicholson did not stop when Gardner flashed his red light. Gardner called Sgt. Richard Wallace for help and Nicholson ran the stop sign at Davis Road and Salcedo. Police chased Nicholson on Salcedo to Brown Spur Road, where he turned north.

Sgt. Wallace arrested Nicholson on Brown Spur Road.

He was charged with driving without a license, improper registration, speeding, running a stop sign, having no city auto license, disturbing the peace by loud and profane language and resisting arrest.

A man who returned from a two week vacation Monday reported to police at 6:55 p.m. that items valued at $1,051 were missing from his house.

E. L. Martin, 201 Edwards, told police that these items had been taken: A 20 guage shotgun valued at $100, a 22 caliber automatic rifle valued at $80, a 30-30- caliber rifle valued at $84 and a bow valued at $35; A gas Range, dining room set, two beds and bedroom furniture, a living room set and a freezer, clothing and dishes valued at more than $850.

In other police activity, a prowler was reported at 9:55 p.m. Monday in the 500 block of South Prairie. Police checked the area, but found no one.

Another prowler was reported at 10:34 p.m. Monday in the 300 block of West Gladys. No one was found.

Parade To Take New Route

The Jaycee Rodeo parade will begin at 7 p.m. Wednesday on the old south grade school lot. It will proceed east on Malone and disperse at the Mid-Towner Village Shopping Center.

Parade chairman Peter Myers reports that this year's parade differs from past routes. Both business districts will see the parade, he said.

Previous parades wound around the downtown businesses.

Three local rock 'n' roll bands will be in the parade: "The Escorts", "The Rebels", and the "Epic of the South."

Mrs. Keith Collins, the Woman of the Year, and George Hale, Chamber of Commerce Man of the Year, will ride in convertibles in the parade.

Also, rodeo queen Patti McMullin and the little Miss and Mister Western will be in the parade.

Rodeo clowns, horses, the SEMO Shrine Mounted Patrol, the Sikeston Horse Club, several equipment dealers and radio station vehicles will be included.

Police will direct traffic and block the Malone and Main intersection for the parade, Myers said.

3,950 Students Expected for Public School Opening Aug. 28

The public schools will open Aug. 28 with full day classes for all students.

The early date of opening will permit children to be dismissed during in-service training for teachers. Dates for the workshops have not been set.

School will end May 31.

The opening will be preceded by the week-long teacher orientation work shop, which will begin at 9:30 a.m. Aug. 21.

Grouping of elementery children for reading instruction will no longer be on the basis of alphebetical order or random classification. They have been pre-grouped on the basis of reading ability. Each classroom will have three reading groups. Each group will be supplied with textbooks and materials related to the reading level of the group. Children will no longer exchange rooms for reading instruction.

More attention will be given to the child with special needs, such as low reading abilities by involving the teacher, the counselor, teachers with specialized abilities and other members of the school staff who will work as a team.

Enrollment estimates are for 3,950 students, slightly above last year's enrollment. Total enrollment during the year probably will surpass 4,300.

Two elementary faculty positions are vacant. A high school special education teacher may be employed. Approximately 225 teachers and administrators make up the school staff.

Eleven school buses will operate. The food service department will provide a noonday meal, available to all school children.

School officials expect difficulties in operating around the building program at the high school. This work includes enlargement of the library, the school kitchen, and the cafetorium and additions to the mathematics-science complex and the vocational school. It will at times affect the school lunch service as meals are prepared in the high school kitchen for most of the elementary schools. Officials asked students, teachers and parents to be patient and understanding.

Students in the junior high school and the high school, will check out text books Monday through Aug. 18. The schedule:

Sophomores -- Monday, 8 a.m. - noon, A thru H; 1 p.m. - 3 p.m., I thru L; next Tuesday, 8 a.m. - noon, M thru T; 1 p.m. - 3 p.m., U thru Z.

THE HOME OF SGT. JAMES SATTERFIELD, 1607 East Kathleen St., was virtually destroyed by an early morning fire today. Satterfield is finishing a two-week encampment at Camp Ripley, Minn., with the National Guards.

Guard Away, House Burns

The interior of the home of James Satterfield, 25, and its contents was destroyed by fire early today.

The one-story white siding home is at 1607 East Kathleen St., was purchased by Satterfield four years ago. He lived there alone.

He is away at National Guard camp in Ripley, Minn., and will return Sunday from the two-week encampment. He has been a member of the Guards six years and is associated in business with his father, Wade Satterfield, in Wade's Body Shop on Maude street.

Satterfield is a member of company B, 140th infantry, 35th division, mechanized of the National Guards with the rank of sergeant.

The fire is believed to have started around 5 a.m. The fire department arrived 20 minutes later, with the interior ablaze. The fire was brought under control at 7:30 a.m.

The fire was believed to have started in the southeast wall. Heaviest damage was in the attic and ceiling. The cause has not been determined.

Aiken Says More Tax Hikes May Be on Way

WASHINGTON (AP) -- Sen. George D. Aiken says he has been told President Johnson's war-related tax increase proposal "isn't half of what they will need. They are going to try to put off asking for the rest of it until after the election" next year.

The Vermont Republic said in an interview if the administration doesn't "listen to reason pretty soon" on Vietnam, "it will have written one of the worst chapters in American history or, indeed, in world history."

Aiken said his constituents are protesting the 10 per cent surtax on income taxes asked by Johnson Thursday to help finance mounting war costs.

The senator, second-ranking Republican on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and a persistant war policy critic, said he had been "reliably informed" that the requested tax hike was less than half of what is needed.

He said he agrees with the assessment Monday by Democratic leader Mike Mansfield that the administration is planning a further escalation of the war.

Mansfield told the Senate Monday it appeared there was going to be a further escalation of the fighting "with the costs in lives and money being borne preponderately by us."

He said many things pointed to a longer war and less pointed to peace, including Johnson's decision to send 45,000 more men and the battleship New Jersey to the combat zone and what he described as apparently unsuccessful efforts to persuade U. S. allies to contribute more troops.

Explosions Rip Oil Refinery

LAKE CHARLES, La. (AP) — Two powerful explosions and 13 smaller blasts shattered portions of the Cities Service Co. oil refinery today, injuring 14 men and causing extensive property damage in downtown Lake Charles. Four workmen were reported missing.

An estimated 50 heavy plate-glass store windows were blow out when the first blast erupted at 4:45 a.m., touching off a fierce fire amid the complex of refining towers and storage tanks.

The area was quickly evacuated and sealed off for fear of additional blasts at the sprawling plant on the west bank of the Calcasieu River in extreme southwest Louisiana.

The hazard of continuing explosions was made worse by the lack of power during the early morning hours. The company powerhouse was rendered inoperative by the force of the major blasts, and firefighters lacked sufficient water to cool off neighboring high-pressure storage tanks and refining units.

For safety reasons, reinforcements of firemen from Lake Charles and surrounding areas temporarily were kept back one-half mile from the gates of the plant while the company's firefighting specialists sought to contain the blazing oil and gas.

Referring to a large refining unit used to produce high-octane products, one spokesman said: "It will level a quarter of a mile if it goes."

The company quickly cut off the flow of crude oil into the refinery from Sour Lake, Tex., and as each hour passed the danger of further damage lessened. Foam was pumped into sewer lines to block the fire from spreading to oil which spilled into drainage ducts.

The series of explosions was started by a leak in a fuel line, a company spokesman said. "The leak probably was catapulted into an explosion front a nearby furnace," he added.

"Only four men are unaccounted for, although we are still checking," said Robert Forest, a spokesman for the oil company.

Calcasieu Parish Sheriff Henry A. Reid said he had no report of anyone being killed.

Residents of Lake Charles, a city of 63,000 population, were shocked from sleep when the first thunderous jolt struck. Those in the area of the impact rushed into the street in nightclothes.

Police patrolled the streets to prevent looting in the damaged areas. The force of the explosions was felt in nearby West Lake and Sulphur, a small community near the Texas line.

Twitty Appointed To Jobs Committee

Lynn Twitty, superintendent of schools, was appointed to the executive committee of Missouri Opportunities Inc. at an organizational meeting in Jefferson city.

The committee, consisting of 33 business, labor and commerce leaders, completed Job Corps training, in finding jobs. Another function will be to help plan Job Corps programs.

Police Question Searcher After Girl's Body Found

GIRARD, Pa. (AP) — The partially clothed body of little Connie Rae Carstater, missing since Sunday in swamplands near her home, was found today, and a deputy coroner said she was murdered.

Minutes later state police took one of the searchers into custody for questioning. They declined to identify him.

Deputy Coroner Leo Weir said the body of the 12-year-old girl was found face down in about a foot of water. It had been covered with leaves and branches in a dense thicket about 100 yards from a highway.

The body was taken to an Erie hospital for an autopsy.

The girl had pedaled her bicycle to a grocery store three miles from her home Sunday, cashed a $2 check she was given Saturday for her 12th birthday, purchased some candy and fishing equipment, then disappeared.

Her bicycle and bag of purchases were found in bushes 300 feet from a road about one-half mile from her home. A state trooper said it was improbable Connie Rae rode her bike into the rough bushes.

"It looks like it was carried back and then thrown into the brush," he said.

More than 200 volunteer searchers, aided by airplanes, helicopters and tracking dogs, combed the heavily wooded, swampy area where Connie Rae's articles were found.

Connie Rae's mother, Janet, separated from her husband, notified state police when the youngster failed to return home some two hours after her shopping trip.

Connie Rae was the second Erie County child to have been found dead in a little more than a year. On July 19, 1966, the body of Christine Watson was found, her throat slashed, in some bushes near her home in Millcreek. Authorities still are searching for her slayer.

A boy playing with her said she had gone off with a man who asked her to go into the woods to see minnows. The boy fled. The girl's body was found a few hours later.

Council Reviews Fires

Creation of a plumbers examiners board, a brief report on the city's comprehensive plan and extra help to guard the Sikeston Compress from arsonists headed the list of business discussed at the Monday night city council meeting.

City Manager W. Raymert Miller related to council members that he knows a plumbers board of examiners will be necessary eventually as the city grows. Perhaps the time for creating one is now, he said.

The board's composition is not as important as its function, Miller said. It would have the authority to give plumbers coming into the city an examination and decide whether they were qualified to perform work here, he said.

Miller said he would draft and ordinance setting up a review board and present it for the council's consideration.

The examiner's board would not affect plumbers presently licensed, Miller said.

Miller also told the council members that Harland Bartholomew & Associates representatives have begun the land use phase of the city's comprehensive plan and will meet with the planning commission and council members Sept. 12.

Mayor Kendall Sikes reported that the city presently is spending about $500 per week to employ extra guards for the Sikeston Compress.

Sikes said it is well known that two fires were set at the Compress in the past few weeks, and the extra guards were needed for the protection of the building.

City representatives have been told by Roy Weiss, director of Transogram, that if the Compress burns, Anchor Toy Corp. would close the next day.

Anchor Toy Corp. is a subsidiary of Transogram and has finished products and raw materials for toys stored in the compress. The value of goods is said to be $1,800,000, Sikes reported.

In further discussion, Sikes related that the city has also been told that if the compress were to burn, it would not be rebuilt.

There are about 30 Negroes working at Anchor Toy and from 10 to 15 Negroes working at the compress, Sikes said. The Negro community is well aware of the extra guards, he noted.

Councilman Harry Dudley expressed his opposition to the idea of having to spend money for guards, and asked about the incidents when Negroes threw rocks and bottles at police and firemen at the first compress fire July 30.

Police Chief Arthur Bruce reported that rocks and bottles were thrown, but no one involved has been positively identified.

Police are investigating the matter further, he told the council.

In other council business, a resolution transferring $7,500 from the contingency fund to pay interest on the 1965 Water and Sewer bonds was authorized. This move was prompted to allow the money in the water and sewer fund to gain interest. It is deposited in time certificates, Miller explained.

New Political Bloc Appears On Viet Scene

SAIGON (AP) — A new political bloc that has the potential of becoming the most powerful in South Vietnam began its first national convention in Saigon today.

Political analysts say that if the elements in the bloc can be pulled together into some type of political alliance, the group could control up to one million votes among the 5.4 million registered voters.

All indications are that the new political grouping, which calls itself Toan let— all Vietnam— tends to be progovernment. However, it cannot be called a government party.

The three tickets are considered heavily progovernment.

There is an outside chance that the group also will endorse the military presidential ticket of Chief of State Nguyen Van Thieu and Premier Nguyen Cao Ky. But it was thought that certain elements in the bloc would prevent any endorsement in the presidential race.

Many members of the new bloc are civil servants and officials of the government who could be considered working for Premier Ky. Whether the group will be rigidly pro-Ky remains to be seen.

South Vietnam's civilian presidential candidates, who left 1,000 voters waiting Sunday when the candidates' plane landed them 10 miles away decided today to hit the campaign trail again, one candidate said.

The candidates had flown in a government plane from Saigon to Quang Tri, first stop on a scheduled 22-stop campaign tour arranged by the government. Adverse winds kept their plane from landing at Quang Tri and it touched down 10 miles away. When the candidates saw no crowd to greet them, they left in a huff for Saigon. Most of the candidates claimed the government had sabotaged their trip and nine of them drafted an angry letter to Ky and Thieu.

Red Defector Says Allies Will Win War in 2-3 Years

SAIGON (AP) — A Communist defector introduced by the South Vietnamese government as a lieutenant colonel said today the allies will win the war, perhaps in two or three years.

"The last victory will belong to the government and the allies," Huynh Cu told a news conference.

Though intelligence estimates of enemy strength within South Vietnam have remained for weeks at about 296,000, Cu said it is difficult these days for the Viet Cong to recruit new men.

Speaking through a Vietnamese army English-language interpreter, Cu said one district he was familiar with in the northern province of Quang Ngai had a quota of 100 recruits in the first three months of this year, but only three were found.

"Most of the young men had left the district," he said. "The rest did not like the Communists, or they said they were sick and in bad physical condition."

Cu, 39, was said to have commanded every size Viet Cong unit from squad to battalion. He said he has been a Communist since 1946 and fought the French with the Viet Minh.

Born in Quang Ngai Province, he returned from the North in 1963. He said his duties, writing tactical manuals, training, kept him in the mountains of the northern sector. He had made only two trips to the coastal plain and on the second, in March, he turned himself over to government troops along with his wife and adopted son.

Asked to compare the troops he fought against, Cu said the Americans have tremendous firepower.

"The soldiers have harmony with their airplanes," he said. "They have favorable conditions to fight."

Remembering a regiment-size Viet Cong ambush, Cu said: "The Americans were calm. They attacked our strong side and inflicted heavy casualties."

However, Cu said, the American soldier is slow on his feet, not because of his big pack, but "because he is so big himself."

Cu said the South Korean troops are perhaps the toughest. He recalled a Viet Cong attack against a Korean company in which 200 Viet Cong were killed.

"They were brave and experienced in hand to hand combat. They were good shots," he said.

Cu said he defected because he "likes the freedom and democracy of South Vietnam" and believes the North Vietnamese should not send troops to the South.

Employment Hits All-Time Peak During Month of July

WASHINGTON (AP) — Employment increased more than usual in July, reaching 76.2 million, the highest it has ever been in the United States, the Labor Department said today.

The unemployment rate for July was 3.9 per cent, practically unchanged from 4 per cent last month and from the July 1966 rate.

Harold Goldstein, assistant commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, summed up the job picture this way: "Some strength in employment, no basic change in unemployment from June to July."

Goldstein explained that July traditionally is a high employment month, but the total for July 1967 was a new high even on a seasonally adjusted basis.

Total unemployment in July was 3.25 million, an increase of 200,000 from the July 1966 level. All the rise in joblessness over the year took place among teenagers and adult women, the department said.

Employment, which had declined earlier in 1967, has recovered steadily in the last two months, more than regaining the earlier losses, the department said. Nonfarm payroll employment, seasonally adjusted, rose by 200,000 in July, following an increase of 250,000 in June.

In a separate section on the summer job situation for youths, the department said a total of 12.5 million youths 16 to 21 years of age were working or seeking work this summer, an increase of 500,000 over 1964 summer level.

The department said population expansion in this age group— youngsters born in the years following World War II— accounts for a large part of the growth. Also, it said, more of the youths were seeking work.

Jetliner Makes Uneasy Landing

NEW YORK (AP)— An American Airlines jet carrying 35 persons, its front landing gear stuck in a closed position, set down on its wing wheels today and skidded to a safe stop.

The plane, Flight 418 from Syracuse, N.Y., had been due to land at Newark, N.J., at 7:53 a.m., but was diverted to Kennedy International Airport because of that airport's longer runways.

It swept back and forth over the field, clearly visible from the ground.

The emergency vehicles, including ambulances and fire engines, were strung out along the runway as the twin-engine, British-made BAC111 touched down gracefully on the wing wheels, rolled for several hundred yards and finally came to rest on the wing wheels and nose.

Hot, Showery Night Expected

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Showery, hot and humid— that's the weather menu in Missouri today.

Thunderstorms struck in northwest Missouri this morning. A heavy storm developed today in the Kirksville area in the northeast where 1.25 inches of rain fell Monday.

The Weather Bureau said the rains will spread to southern and eastern Missouri by tonight. They will cease in the northwest tonight.

Top temperatures in the 90s were forecast for all of the state today. West Plains had a 96 Monday.

Forecasts indicated it may be slightly cooler over the state Wednesday with less humidity.

Five Hurt in Three Road Mishaps

An eight-year-old boy riding a pony near Braggadocio was hit by a car, three were injured in a chain reaction crash in Hayti at a stop sign and two were hurt north of East Prairie in a two-car collision.

Eight-year old Randall Scott, route one, Hayti, was bruised on the head while riding a pony on highway J, two and one-half miles east of Braggadocio Monday at 10:45 a.m.

The animal was struck by a 1967 Dodge, driven by Herman Lane, 53, Caruthersville, when the pony jumped into the path of the car.

The Hayti crash was at 9 a.m. on highway 61.

A 1966 Volkswagen, driven by Walter Roseman Jr., 22, St. Charles stopped at a sign when he was struck in the rear by a 1967 Ford driven by Matthew Artis, 67, Hayti, who was struck in the rear by a 1965 Oldsmobile, driven by James Dempsey, 27, Perry, Mich.

Injured in the Dempsey car was the driver with head injuries. Two daughters were hurt. Diane, five, received a fractured jaw, and Linda, three, was bruised and scratched.

The three were taken to the Pemiscot County Memorial hospital in Hayti.

Monday at 2:50 p.m. on highway 105, two miles north of East Prairie a 1958 Buick, driven by James Ross, 71, Sikeston, attempted a left turn, when he was struck by a 1960 Ford, driven by Dennis Kindle, 20, Wheeling, Ill.

Taken to the Missouri Delta Community hospital were Ross with a whiplash injury and Kindle, broken left arm.

Policeman Recovers from Blow on Head

EAST PRAIRIE -- Jimmy Welch, a night policeman who was beaten unconscious Sunday night, was released from the Missouri Delta Community hospital today.

Welch suffered a blow on the right side of his forehead. He had stopped near a bowling alley to question two persons in a nearby alley.

They ran and he followed. Someone jumped from bushes and struck him.

Police Chief Jake Abner said today that no one has been arrested for the beating and police have no clues.

Priest Changed After Year in United States

The Rev. Fr. Justin Monaghan, who returned to Ireland for a visit after a year in this country, said that relatives told him he had been "Americanized."

He admitted that the slower pace of life in the old country disturbed him and that "I couldn't sit still."

Father Monaghan said that the Irish were disturbed by this country's presence in Vietnam, riots and that they "hated to see" the United States take the route of socialism.

Father Monaghan, who is moving to Charleston, talked to the Rotary club last night at the Rustic Rock Inn.

Richard Leslie was authorized to make preparations for the Rotary club's entertainment of the Little League baseball team it sponsors.

Frank Harp was a guest of Wayne Woodard, Charles Zircher, Marshall, a guest of Wm. Z. Baker. Visiting Rotarians were Joe Pinelle, Pueblo, Colo., and Harold Rabin, Belle Glade, Fla.

Charles Green led the singing accompanied by Mary Anne Bruce at the piano.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

A used car dealer arriving at a junk yard for a certain automotive part came on a pair of well-worn rubber hip boots which the junk man told him to take along, as they were in his way.

On his way back to his place of business he stopped by a restorer of antique furniture, who spied the boots and said he had a use for them, in my way. I will trade it to you for the boots."

The used car dealer had no use for the organ, nor for that matter, the boots. But since it was his motto never to turn down a trade, he accepted and loaded the organ that was nothing but a piece of junk, few evidences of its one - time glory remaining save some decorative symbols which still clung to it, into his pickup truck and went on his way.

Stopped for a traffic light, a car bearing a Texas license pulled up beside him. Its driver leaned out a window saying: "Friend, that old organ you have there. If you would care to sell it, turn in at the nearest station and let the madame look it over."

This was done.

Somehow that pile of junk must have, in the woman's eyes, taken on some of its former grandeur. Such visions have occurred to antique hunters, for after a close scrutiny of it, she called her husband aside. After a short colloquy he came back to the used car dealer and asked, "Will $200 buy it?"

GROWING VOTER CONTEMPT

Disclosure that the chairman of the Democratic State Committee in Missouri has been retained as legal counsel by the Missouri Pharmaceutical Association is just the kind of news the Democrats of this state don't need.

For the appointment of Delton Houtchens, a Clinton, Mo., attorney, as "counsel" comes on the heels of disclosures concerning the $24,000 a year fee collections by the state's junior U.S. Senator, Edward V. Long.

Then, following the Long disclosures, came word that Lt. Gov. Thomas Eagleton had been retained by a business firm that was going into the Public Service Commission to attempt to gain some freight franchises. Eagleton's acceptance of the retainer was much less suspect than Long's, for the simple reason that the state was not actually involved in the case as a direct participant. After the publicity, Eagleton resigned.

For his new client, Houtchens is reportedly receiving $500 a month, which is a considerable fee for an association with as little legal business as the pharmacists' organization.

No one is deceived, however, by the term "legal counsel." Houtchens is being retained to secure enactment of legislation the pharmacists have been unable to secure in recent sessions. The state association has been receiving some hard knocks in the capitol, primarily from State Sen. Earl Blackwell of Jefferson County; we suspect Sen. Blackwell will become more amenable to the pharmaceutical cause now that the state Democratic chairman is handling the account. Blackwell, after all, is running for Lieutenant Governor, and he will need the support of the Houtchens - controlled Democratic State Committee.

All of these disclosures may be like so much water off a duck's back to those involved. Sen. Long seems as righteous as ever following the disclosures of his fees. Houtchens can probably just shrug off the whole affair and go right on accepting his retainer fees each month.

But we are warning these Democratic officeholders and officials who participate in these activities -- they are going to fool around just so long before the voters get sick and tired of these disclosures and vote the good and bad out of office in one fell swoop.

And if the politicians don't believe it, we invite them to come out into Missouri and talk to the voters of the state who are slowly but surely getting their fill of such questionable practices.

AN AMERICAN FLAG SPEAKS

I am in mourning.
I do not feel like flying.
Why do so many let so few take my beautiful principals and twist their meanings into nightmares?
I hear the crying of the departed souls who fought religiously for my reputation.
Where are their children and grandchildren and why don't they take a stand to defend my TRUE meaning?
Why do you Americans allow these happenings?
Where are your voices?
It has always been, heretofore, that a worthwhile project was taken on by you Americans with prayer, gusto and never a thought of selfish gains.

Now, I repeat, a few are allowed to control millions of citizens (which is against what I stand for) by drawing up new laws daily to suit their purse, their ego, THEIR future. Certainly NOT their children's future; for these shall pay dear for the PIGS who dare to stand and try to disguise themselves as public servants.

Have you no feeling for your soldiers who are losing their lives? For what?

Why send them to foreign soil if while they are serving my principals you allow those same principals to be destroyed here in these wonderful United States?

I love these men; their color means nothing - it's what their mind holds that is important.

'God helps them that help themselves.' This, we have heard from infancy.

I stand for a country who serves God - then why are the Godless allowed to CORRUPT, CHEAT, VOICE IN PUBLIC, BE LOOKED UP TO, ENTERTAINED BY SOME PUBLIC OFFICIALS, CONTROL, THE DESTINY OF DECENT PEOPLES, etc.

Oh, God! I mourn! Help me to unfurl.

So you think the police waste their time? Or don't catch as many speeders, drunken drivers and road hogs as they should?

You're entitled to your opinion, of course, but a recently completed study indicates that the police spend a great deal of time helping you and other drivers solve various highway troubles, according to the December issue of Traffic Digest and Review magazine.

The three-month study - part of a project called "Operation 66" - was conducted in 1964 along Route 66 from Joliet, Ill. to San Bernardino, Calif. The Bureau of Public Roads, International Chiefs of Police and seven states (Arizona, California, Illinois, Missouri, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Texas) took part in the study to determine the types, volumne and amount of time of services performed for motorists by the police.

During June, July and August, 1964, officers along the 1,846 miles of Route 66 involved in the study satisfactorily completed 121,842 motorist contact forms - averaging 66 contacts per mile.

Police spent a total of 18,500 patrol man-hours during the actual contacts (an average of just over nine minutes each) and made an estimated 5.6 contacts per 100,000 vehicle miles of motorist travel. Although about three-fifths of these contacts were for enforcement, nearly one-fourth were for services.

Here's a glimpse of the types and percentages of contacts: informational, 6.2; directional, 2.5; tire failure, 4.6; cooling system failure, 2.7; out of fuel, 1.4; mechanical failure, 6.1; ill or injured persons, 0.2; emergency message delivery, 0.1; citation, 21.1; arrest 3.2; written warning, 31.1; oral warning, 5.1; received crime report, 0.1; removed road debris, 1.3; accident investigation, 1.3; and other, 13.0.

How long did motorists in trouble wait for assistance? An average of only 7.5 minutes.

Does that sound as though the police waste their time?

NEW YORK (AP) — Remarks that an office boy gets tired of hearing:

"When I was your age, kid, I was glad to work for nothing a week just to get the experience."

"I don't know how you ever expect to be head of the firm, Bascomb, if you can't even go to the delicatessen and bring back what I ordered. I told you to get a ham on rye, and they put it on white bread."

"Yeah, the new kid looks okay, but so do most juvenile delinquents."

"Your problem, Bascomb, is that you're at that in-between age— too old for the chicken pox, too young to get ulcers."

"I don't know who his mother is, but judging from his haircut his father must be a sheepdog."

"Wake up, Bascomb, it's time for your afternoon coffee break."

"When I was your age, kid, I used to walk three miles a day to and from work just to save carfare."

"Last week, just as a joke, I told him to go out and get a left-handed monkey wrench, and not to come back until he found one. He was gone for three days."

"He spends more time looking at himself in the washroom mirror than he does working."

"How old did you say you were, young man— 18? Well, if you keep your nose to the grindstone and stay out of trouble, you'll be eligible for a pension in the year 2014."

"So you're the new office boy. Well, well, well. I used to be an office boy myself. By the way kid, you don't have an extra $5 on you, do you? I'm a little strapped."

"He's only been here three weeks and already he's asking for a seat cushion. You know how long I worked here before I got my first seat cushion? Twelve years."

"When I was your age, kid I never wasted time going out to lunch. I was too eager to learn all I could about the business."

"I hear that Bascomb is carrying an imitation leather briefcase to work now hoping that everybody on the bus will think he's an executive trainee."

"Your girl friend called on the phone a while ago, Bascomb. I told her you were out in the stockroom kissing one of the secretaries and couldn't be disturbed."

"You say you want to know how long it will be before you can expect a merit raise? What's a merit raise? I've been office manager here since 1940 and never heard the term."

"It may be possible, young man, for you to get your work done while holding a transister radio to your ear and listening to the baseball game, but somehow I doubt it."

"To get ahead in the business world, Bascomb, you always have to look busy. If you can't find anything else to do, count the paper clips— and see if any are missing."

"When I was your age, kid— ."

Applications for permits to conduct official vehicle inspections will not be considered by the Missouri State Highway Patrol until possibly early next summer, it was announced today by Colonel E. I. (Mike) Hockaday, the Patrol's Superintendent.

"We have received many inquiries from the public in regard to the operation of the inspection program," Colonel Hockaday said. "It is not possible at this time to answer these inquiries. Much work needs to be done before any information can be forwarded and before any application to conduct a vehicle inspection station can be considered."

The Patrol Superintendent stated that a study of inspection programs in other states is now underway in order to get suggestions on how to implement the vehicle inspection program in Missouri. In accordance with the Motor Vehicle Inspection Law, all proposed rules and regulations deemed necessary to carry out the provisions of the law must be printed at least six months prior to January 1, 1969, when the law becomes effective. A public hearing must also be held concerning the rules and regulations of this program at least 60 days before the effective date.

"We will let the public know in plenty of time through the news media just when information on the vehicle inspection program is available," Hockaday concluded.

RECALL OF THE WILD

Preservation and public enjoyment of large forest and "wilderness" areas in natural or near-natural condition is, we think, a most desirable objective. But the notion that Government takeover of such areas is the only way or even a sure way of doing this is shortsighted and foolish. We even get the feeling that some advocates of government takeover may be more interested in bureaucratic expansion than in "wilderness" conservation. In northern California, for example, the push is on for Federal takeover of vast areas of redwood forest, on the grounds that only as a national park will this splendor be preserved and available for public enjoyment. When private owners opened a quarter-million acres of timberland to sportsmen, picnickers and trail-riders, at least one State official implied that this was just a dodge, and said that the private owners were looking ahead only 20 years or so, whereas government planners would "look ahead for the next 200 years or more."

Particularly with forest areas, we are convinced that in the long run private owners will do a better job of conserving naturalness than would any succession of government managers, simply because they have a greater personal interest in doing so. Productive forest land is at a premium. Therefore, private management and lumbing operations are designed to keep it productive which means, in a large measure, keeping it natural and planning ahead far longer than any given set of government planners would expect to stay in office. The same applies to supervision of areas open to the public -- prevention of fire or other damage being of more vital concern to a private owner than to any hireling government manager.

Perhaps some who advocate government takeover simply can't simply see the forest because of the trees. Preserving some centuries-old specimens in especially scenic spots is a wonderful and proper thing. But to allow trees to stand in large areas of productive forest after they have reached maturity, thus forbidding growth of new timber, is grossly wasteful and not at all in the public interest. Moreover, a heavy forest in completely natural state is less accessible and less safe for public recreation than one which is under management of modern lumbermen.

If all we want is pretty trees, perhaps the thing to do is have the Federal Government and its bureaucrats take over. But under continued private ownership and management we can have beautiful trees and lumber, too.

THE POLICEMAN'S LOT

Under the best of circumstances a policeman does not have an easy job. Today the circumstances prevailing in most large American cities are currently not the best, and it looks as if the police come in for criticism no matter how they react.

Detroit police have been loudly criticised for their activities in the handling of the riots and looting in that city. This time, in an about - face, the charge was not police brutality. It was police inaction.

The protestors declared that prompt action by the police when the looting first started could have put down the disturbance and kept it from exploding into a four - day holocaust of arson, looting, and murder. The police evidently were under orders not to use force, the theory being that their presence on the scene would be enough to calm the disturbance.

But matters did not turn out that way. Word soon got around that the police were under orders not to shoot and that they were not lifting a hand as they watched the looters at work. The result was that the combined efforts of the police, the National Guard and U.S. Army troops were necessary to bring the riot under control.

The police had better be permitted to do their job. They already operate under the handicap of Supreme Court decisions that are more solicitous of the "rights" of the criminal than those of maintaining law and order, and their hands ought not to be tied by wishful thinkers. H.L.H.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- Disturbing whispers have leaked out that the Johnson administration has not done all it could to arrange better treatment for American prisoners in enemy hands.

One high official complained to this column that prisoner problems have been given a low priority at the state department. He quoted Secretary of State Rusk as telling aides that the captured Americans are not prisoners but hostages, that the communists would demand a quid pro quo for treating them decently and that he had no intention of granting any concessions.

In the Pentagon, the brass-bound generals are so embarrassed over the unmilitary-like behavior of a few captives that they have slammed the lid shut on all prisoner information. The prisoners' families have been warned not to talk to reporters lest the slightest publicity be used against the captives to increase their torment.

Actually the North Vietnamese are sensitive to world opinion and probably take better care of the publicized prisoners. The great Pentagon hush-up seems to be aimed less to protect the prisoners than to protect the authorities from criticism.

Perhaps to quiet the critical stirrings, the state department has prepared a white paper on prisoners which will be published later this month. It is the work of George H. Aldrich, a legal counsel, who has summarized U.S. efforts to reach prisoner agreements with North Vietnam.

It is true, as the white paper will point out, that the United States has made repeated overtures through a dozen different channels to arrange prisoner exchanges, to get Communist prison camps inspected by neutrals, to secure better treatment for American pows and to obtain more information for their families.

AVERELL IN CHARGE

Ambassador - at - large Averell Harriman has been assigned the responsibility for solving prisoner problems. Officials have confided to this column that he is merely the front man. The real work is handled on a part-time basis, they say, by Frank A. Sieverts, a functionary in under Secretary Nicholas Katzenbach's office.

However, this is vigorously denied by Harriman's office. An aide claims the veteran diplomat spends half his time on prisoner matters and that a dozen men in the state department are working almost full time on the assignment.

Before Abba Schwartz was forced out as the state department's security chief a year ago, he had developed excellent pipelines through the Swiss Bankers and International Red Cross to check on the prisoners.

The Bankers, who loaned money to both North Vietnam and Cambodia, visited both countries regularly. They gladly inquired about prisoner welfare and requested information about specific prisoners.

To queries about specific persons, Hanoi usually responded that the prisoners were alive and were being "treated with humanity." In some cases, an exchange of mail was generated. The letters from the pows, interestingly, have been postmarked in various places -- Hong Kong, Geneva and other international centers. More than one letter, however, has actually been postmarked in the United States.

Schwartz's contacts, it should be stressed, were never permitted to visit the pow camps. Formal requests from the International Red Cross to inspect the camps were also turned down. The North Vietnamese contended that the captured Americans were "war criminals," therefore not entitled to the protection of the prisoner-of-war convention.

INTEREST LAGS

Meanwhile, Sen. Tom Dodd, D-Conn., started after Schwartz's scalp for refusing to play spy games with the senate internal security subcommittee, and prevailed upon President Johnson to reorganize Schwartz out of the state department.

Thereafter, Schwartz's contacts were neglected, and the government's interest in prisoner problems seemed to wane. Some contacts were kept up, of course, often by private individuals. Schwartz, for example, continued as a private citizen to seek information for prisoners' families. Sanford Gottlieb, director of sane, spoke to Viet Cong representatives in Algiers about prisoners.

Ambassador Harriman also flew to Geneva in May 1966, to try to promote a prisoner exchange through the International Red Cross. This and other efforts have failed.

At last count, 169 Americans were reported to be held by the North Vietnamese, another 20 by the Viet Cong. But many of the 481 American servicemen listed as missing may also be captives.

Differing reports have been received as to the number and locations of the prisoner camps. The Swiss Bankers were told that there are four compounds, all in the Hanoi - Haiphong area. What troubles the Pentagon, in particular, is evidence that some prisoners have been subjected to inhuman psychological torture in order to extort phony confessions from them. The armed forces have learned the hard way from the Communists what happens to a man reduced to a state half animal, half human, battered with lies until the truth is wholly unreal, tormented by evil men whose morbid genius is almost beyond belief.

Apparently this had been the fate of Lt. Cmdr. Richard Stratton, for one, who was put on display by his Communist captors. He behaved like a robot, bowing deeply on command, otherwise standing motionless, eyes blank.

A French observer described the episode as "a frightening experience."

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

MAKING OF A PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATE?

Labor Leaders Tell Rockefeller They're With Him -- Even If He Runs With Ronald Reagan.

New York: -- A few Mondays ago the telephone rang in the hospital room of David Dubinsky, ebullient honorary Ladies Garment Workers Union president, who was doing valiant battle with a kidney stone. To get the phone he had to reach past a vase of flowers and a cordial letter dispatched by his intimate friend, Lyndon Johnson. The caller identified himself as "Gov. Rockefeller." But it was "the other governor -- Winthrop," the $10,000 -a-year chief executive Arkansas.

Dubinsky, the bantam labor leader who has helped many a Social Democrat survive and become president or prime minister of other nations, never before has been telephoned by an Arkansas governor. But times have changed, images are changing, regions are changing, "D. D." observed to a newspaper friend the other day.

"The gentleman from Arkansas wanted me to help end a nine month strike in Little Rock," asserted Dubinsky. "We've been picketing one of the big dress manufacturing shops there and several thousand unionists had just marched on the Capitol. So he called me. I explained the facts of life to him as gently as I could.

"He's a nice chap, but he's not as experienced as his brother, Nelson."

That's an understatement. Few national leaders, perhaps only Lyndon Johnson and Hubert Humphrey, now know their way about the labor movement as does Nelson A. Rockefeller. Few, perhaps only the President and Vice President, have as much political labor support pledged to them in terms of money and manpower, as has the New York governor.

It is one of his most powerful political weapons in his camp's war for the presidential nomination. It is the most tempting of all the political weaponry now being offered Gov. Ronald Reagan by wispy emissaries from the East.

It is the one chance, say Nelson Rockefeller intimates, to split Lyndon Johnson's most powerful political base wide open. Whither or not this tempts Ronnie Reagan is hardly discernable yet.

But some of Mr. Rockefeller's conservative couriers do return to ask if this labor support can be swung to a national Republican ticket listing Gov. Reagan.

In the past few weeks some of Gov. Rockefeller's people have been discussing Reagan with the "old line" labor leaders -- Teamsters in the national headquarters, building and construction union chiefs (here in New York) and others in the labor movement's truly massive ideological center.

They're practical men. They indicated they would take a "Rocky - Reagan" ticket, if that's the only way they can get Rockefeller on the slate.

They want "Rocky" because many of them are simply anti-Johnson. These labor people basically are middling conservatives. They always were. They sat in the 1952 AFL Convention and cheered Adlai Stevenson. Then they worked quietly for Dwight Eisenhower. He rewarded them by appointing the late Martin Drukin, the plumbers national president, Secretary of Labor.

They did it again in '56. Now they're ready to repeat history.

They'll go to the AFL-CIO National Board meeting in September 1968. They probably will vote to endorse Lyndon Johnson after their leader George Meany exhorts them. Then they'll campaign, in their own fashion, for Rockefeller "if he is nominated, even with Reagan." The many West Coast Teamsters and national construction union chiefs say: "If he's the price for Rocky, we'll pay it."

These union chiefs are furious over the tax proposal. They're alarmed by the civic disorders. They're worried by some joblessness in their field. They know Rockefeller as a "builder." They hear "the family" is planning Radio City - type centers on the West Coast. They see about $540 million worth of construction in Albany. They count on 10 years of full employment in New York State as a result of Rockefeller's $2.5 billion worth of transportation expansion. Their friends in the International Assn. of Machinists note that the state controlled Long Island Railroad settled quickly with the unions while Congress and the President passed a "finality" arbitration act forbidding strikes.

They have easy access to Rockefeller but not to the White House. They are beginning to believe that the combination of bitterness over taxes, futility in Vietnam and riot pressure may defeat President Johnson.

These labor realists love a winner. And, they say in their private circles, there's a possibility of a Republican president -- better Rockefeller and Reagan than Dick Nixon and anyone else.

All this, the experienced Nelson A. Rockefeller understands. Daily he nurtures the network, a little appointment here, a little lunch there, a law, a subde action. In the end, he may not get the nomination, but if he does, his labor battalions will campaign for him first and worry about his running mate later.

Dodgers End Card Streak; Hughes Faces Sutton Tonight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Dodgers ended the St. Louis winning string at five games Monday night, defeating the Cards 6-4 with three runs in the ninth inning.

St. Louis, however, remains on top of the National League standings by 8 1/2 games as Philadelphia shut out runnerup San Francisco, 8-0.

St. Louis came from behind to tie the score at 3-3 in the eighth, but then, three singles and two errors gave Los Angeles its victory.

The key blow was Ron Hunt's single with two out to score Wes Parker. Curt Flood fumbled the ball and Dick Schofield, who also had singled, raced home. Then, when Phil Gagliano threw low on the relay from the outfield, Hunt also scored.

Ron Perranoski won it in relief and Joe Hoerner was the loser in relief.

The Cards outhit the Dodgers 12-8 but stranded 11 men.

Dick Hughes will pitch for the Cards tonight and Don Sutton will start for the Dodgers.

The hopes of Chicago fans that their team would end its losing streak went up with a Cub ninth-inning rally. Then, they went down again - with the sun.

The Cubs lost their seventh straight game, 6-3 to Pittsburgh, in the first game of a double-header Monday at Wrigley Field --where the only light available is the natural kind.

And they were losing the second game 3-1 when they rallied for a tie in the bottom of the ninth inning. But neither team could score again, and the game was called because of darkness after 14 innings.

The individual records count, but the game will have to be replayed - as part of a double-header Wednesday.

In the American League, Baltimore shut out Cleveland 4-0, Washington blanked Minnesota 5-0 and California rapped New York 8-4 in the only American League action.

Pittsburgh's Dennis Ribant had a no-hitter through seven innings in the second game at Chicago, but Ron Santo broke it up with his 23rd homer leading off the eighth.

The Cubs then chased Ribant when John Stephenson and Ernie Banks opened the ninth with singles. Don Kessinger advanced the runners with a sacrifice off reliever Al McBean, and Lee Thomas brought in a run with a groundout.

Juan Pizarro then took over for McBean, and Billy Williams greeted him with a single on a 3-2 pitch, tying the game.

Manny Sanguillen doubled home two Pittsburgh runs in the second inning and Al Luplow, who collected six hits for the day, singled home another in the eighth.

The Pirates used the ninth-inning rally to win the first game.

Chuck Hartenstein had held the Pirates at bay since taking over for Bob Shaw in the second inning, and the Cubs led 3-2 going into the ninth.

The relief pitcher then started Chicago's downfall by committing a throwing error on Maury Wills' slow roller. Roberto Clemente tied the game by singling with men on first and second, and Manny Mota put the Pirates ahead with a sacrifice fly off Rob Gardner, who replaced Hartenstein.

Donn Clendenon clinched it with a two - run homer.

Rich Allen's two-run homer in the Philadelphia first inning, giving him 11 RBI in his last five games, was all the hitting help Jim Bunning needed in recording the 36th shutout of his major league career.

The Phillies iced the game with five runs in the fourth inning.

Kicky Summer Headgear

YOUNG HEADGEAR HAS THE INTERNATIONAL LOOK this year. It all adds up to a code that spells soft, crushable, kicky and bright. One version of the soft, crushable look is the rippled brim hat of striped cotton (top left). For the beach, sports car or any casual occasion the polka dot sunshader of crushable cotton (top right) is an ideal choice. For a featherweight, cool summer look (lower left) the cuffed brim straw is a happy choice. Any girl going to the shore or the tennis courts will enjoy the soft cotton safari hat (lower right). All the hats shown here were chosen for her wardrobe by Judy Geeson, the 17-year-old British actress now starring in "To Sir, With Love."

BEATING THE BAND FOR BONDS — Drumming up support for the Treasury's 1967 "Share in Freedom" Savings Bonds Campaign are Gail Purschwitz, 17, and Stephen Mitchell, 18, members of the talented Northwestern Senior High School Band, Hyattsville, Md. These youthful musicians believe everyone should buy Savings Bonds. As they say—"After all, our men in Vietnam do."

JUST STROLLING along is light-heavyweight boxer Roger Rouse of Anaconda, Mont., the top-ranked challenger in his division. He has a 30-5-3 record.

HAPPY HIPPO will probably never have a prettier girl astride its broad back. Mary Chipperfield, 29, operates zoological gardens at Southampton, England, and her well-managed lions, tigers, bears . . . and hippos, are often used by movie producers as characters for wild animal scenes.

OUTDOOR SPORTS go on the rise, along with temperatures across the nation. A principal sport appears to be girl-watching, and demonstrating one technique is this young man on a Santa Monica beach.

NEW COMMANDER of U.S. Marines in Vietnam is Maj. Gen. Robert E. Cushman Jr., replacing Lt. Gen. Lewis W. Walt, who has been reassigned to Washington. Defense Secretary Robert McNamara, who made the surprise announcement, said Walt had already completed his normal one-year assignment as commander and had even completed an additional year at Pentagon request. Cushman has been Walt's deputy.

Couture Starts in the Crib

By HELEN HENNESSY
Women's Editor
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—The age of elegance starts in the crib. The allure of couture has spread to infant's wear.

The makers of tiny togs believe that it's never too soon to enjoy high fashion if it's functional as well.

One of the most important tot trends is the new use of pattern—a departure from the typical solid blues, pinks and whites. And since tots like dots, polka dot treatments have emerged as a favorite.

The military look has also invaded the miniset. And it's disarming. The splashy use of pure bright white is punctuated by bold blue stripes, jaunty epaulettes, C.P.O. pockets and brass buttons. The look has been handed down to the mini-mites complete with co-ordinated caps, coats, dresses, shirt sets and suits.

Every new silhouette in mom's and dad's closets can be found cut down to size for the nursery crowd.

For the girls, figure-flattering tents with textured white leotards are around, as well as one-piece jump suits and bubble-suits for beaching and sunning. And since fellers are couture-conscious, too, these days, the pint-sized variety is following suit with bobby suits that have snappy side zippers, cardigan jackets and basque shirts.

Fabrics are machine-washable stretch nylon that doesn't need ironing, easy-to-care-for poplin batiste and lightweight batiste. Zippers and snaps have all been incorporated into the high-fashion designing, assuring quick-change artistry in case of accident.

To size up the infants' fashion situation correctly, from 12 to 18 pounds, medium is the proper size. Large is for the 19-22 set and extra large applies to heavyweights of 23-29 pounds. Beyond that they're no longer babes, but toddlers.

YOU'RE NEVER TOO YOUNG to be fashionable. The polka dot dress (left) from the Me Too Collection is of 100 per cent stretch nylon. Slightly A-lined with a shoulder decoration and zipper, it has cuffed short sleeves and is available with textured white leotards. Military coat (right) is teamed with a hat that does double duty as a tote. These are Charles Pindyck designs.

IT'S UP TO YOU

By Howard E. Kershner, L.H.D.

The "Rights" of the Wrong

Dr. Kershner

UNDER the ideology developed by our Supreme Court, the known facts regarding one's guilt in a criminal case no longer have any relationship to the penalty, if any, to be meted out to the offender. It has now become a question of how these facts are determined.

Less than a year ago, Jose Suarez confessed to the police that he had murdered his wife and five small children. At the time of his confession there was no law or ruling requiring that an accused person be informed that his testimony might be used against him. This case has just come to trial, and there being no evidence against Suarez other than his own confession, he was set free. He had confessed freely the murdering of his wife and five small children. No one questioned the facts, but since the way these facts were determined was not in accordance with the ruling of the Supreme Court, the man was freed. In its over-zealous desire to protect the rights of this man, the court returns him to society as a free man — free to murder other innocent people. No penalty is exacted for six murders already committed, and no safeguard whatever is thrown around innocent people whom he may murder in the future.

Evidently our Supreme Court has decided that every possible protection must be thrown around the criminal, and that his right must be the supreme consideration. Apparently the rights of innocent people do not weigh heavily against the rights of the criminal.

What kind of distorted thinking or perhaps deep plotting against the rights of the people and against our whole system of jurisprudence is leading our courts to destroy our civilization? Suarez is not the only murderer to be set free recently. Only a month ago three other known murderers were freed by the State Supreme Court of New York because they had not been informed of their so-called "rights" before they confessed. This same pattern is being followed generally throughout the United States. Unless it is reversed by action of Congress, changing our laws so as to place some limitations on the courts, it would seem that the American people will be helpless to check the rising wave of crime that threatens to engulf them.

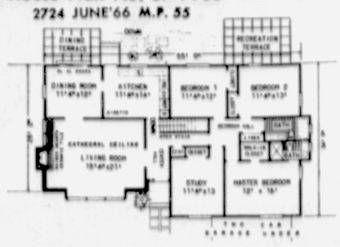
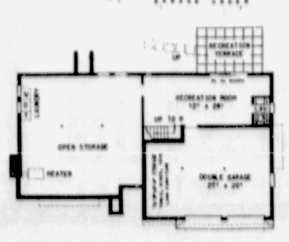
DESIGN NO. SP-9908

One of the advantages of the four bedroom plan with the double garage in the basement is that the lot size can be kept moderate, and still take a good sized house.





This is a fine design for a sloping property, having terraces on the high side behind the dining room and outside the recreation room on the lower level. The closets and the room sizes are of generous proportions, and there are two full baths, plus a lavatory. The total living area of this house is 1,665 square feet. For information on this plan, write to Progressive House Plans, 48 West 48th St., New York, N. Y. 10036.

U.S. and Russia Aided China as Nuclear Power

EDITOR'S NOTE— Behind the rapid development of Red China's nuclear power is a strange story of inadvertent help— from both the United States and Soviet union. This tangled background is explored in the second of three articles on Peking's H-bomb success.

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

Both America and the Soviet Union gave significant help to China's drive for nuclear power.

America helped by training highly skilled scientists and then deporting them to a China under communism. Russia helped by sending scientists, technicians and materials to China and training Chinese in Russia.

Now both were appalled at the prospect of an unstable China possessing nuclear-tipped missiles, a hydrogen bomb and potential for quick development of long-range rockets. Ironically, both were haunted by the same question: by how many years did their help speed up the Chinese timetable?

Eventually China, with a wealth of talented people and natural resources, would have made it on her own. But in 32 months she had marched from A-bomb to H-bomb in a third the time it had taken the United States.

Before communism, Americans, British and French considered China a friend and ally. After communism, Russia treated China as an ally, vowing "eternal friendship." Today Peking is implacably hostile to America, calls the Soviet regime "enemy No. 1," vows publicly to support brush-fire wars which could lead to catastrophe, and to aid the spread of nuclear weapons.

American help to China dates back as much as 30 years. Soviet help dates to the 1950s after communism seized China.

Before World War II, there was a heavy influx of Chinese students into the United States. By 1950, more than 3,000 Chinese were on top U.S. campuses.

Many remained after communism took over the mainland. Some were lured back by threats. Some were disheartened by a U.S. climate they considered hostile to Orientals. Some were frightened by the era of Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy, R-Wis., and his celebrated hunt for Communists. Some probably left out of sympathy for a Communist China, some for a combination of all those factors.

About 80 men whose U.S. training could contribute much to a nuclear program went back. Their roles would be significant.

Russia trained many engineers, technicians and scientists for the nuclear drive. Moscow extended important help in an "atoms for peace" agreement. Soviet scientists worked with Chinese in China, even selected the site for prospective testing.

The roll of Chinese scientists who went home from America, laden with know-how and often with bitterness, is impressive.

Among them were: Dr. Chao Chung-yao, outstanding physicist, alumnus of the California Institute of Technology, veteran of 24 years research in the United States and once an official observer at U.S. A-bomb tests; Dr. Tsien Hsue-shen, brilliant Caltech alumnus considered one of the world's top rocket researchers, who undoubtedly had a key part in marrying China's nuclear warhead to a missile.

One of the most intriguing stories was that of Dr. Tsien. He arrived in America in 1935 to study at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. In 1936 he transferred to Caltech, fascinated by the study of rocket propulsion in the days when it was regarded as science fiction. So brilliant was his performance that during World War II Tsien became head of the rocket section of the U.S. National Defense Scientific Advisory Board under Gen. Henry H. "Hap" Arnold of the Air Corps. With the rank of Air Corps colonel, Tsien went to Germany after the Nazi surrender to probe secrets of Hitler's rocket scientists.

Tsien became Goddard professor of jet propulsion at Caltech and head of the Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena. In 1949 he filed notice of intention to become a U.S. citizen, evidently deciding to stay in America where his two children were born.

In the summer of 1950 Tsien's security clearance for sensitive work was lifted. The reason: 12 years before, Tsien's friends had included scientists and others whom the government later would call members of a Communist party unit. A party registration in Tsien's name was found by an undercover agent, but not in Tsien's handwriting and without his signature. He denied having registered. The undercover agent himself testified anyone could register a desirable candidate for membership without the subject's knowledge.

After two weeks behind bars, Tsien was released in bail. Hearings dragged into the spring of 1951. He was declared deportable but he was far too valuable to deport. For five years, forbidden to leave, Tsien continued teaching and turning out brilliant papers, though removed from sensitive work. Colleagues refused to believe he ever was a Communist.

Suddenly in 1955 the government deported Tsien and his family, along with 39 Chinese students mostly in graduate scientific work. As soon as he arrived in Red China, Tsien was put to work on missile research.

Without men from America and Europe, China would have taken much longer to produce bombs and missiles. She had been severely short of senior scientists.

In the World War II period, at one time or another, 10,000 Chinese students had been in the United States, the majority studying modern technologies. Many wanted to stay. Many did.

Peking, under Mao Tse-tung, desperately wanted senior scientists. Letters poured in on the Chinese scientists in America, threatening relatives in China, denouncing U.S. attitudes, picturing a new day dawning in China, promising the best of everything to those who would return. The campaign succeeded. By the end of 1952, about 1,500 students left the United States for China. In 1955, when U.S. officialdom decided passage of time had made their knowledge less dangerous to U.S. security— as in Tsien's case — scores were deported.

Red China nagged Big Brother in Moscow for nuclear help. Moscow and Peking agreed on joint activity, including a cooperative rare metals corporation in Sinkiang. The Russians installed a plant to process Sinkiang's uranium ore. Russia would refine it.

In 1955, Moscow under Nikita S. Khrushchev agreed to a program of "scientific-technical cooperation" and "peaceful uses of atomic energy." Russian help included a 7,000-kilowatt capacity reactor, a cyclotron and fissionable materials.

The Chinese began to move swiftly, and Moscow began to worry. In 1957, Khrushchev had signed an agreement promising China a sample A-bomb and data on how to manufacture it. But Mao frightened Khrushchev.

In a Moscow speech in November that year, Mao said that "if the worst came to the worst and half of mankind should die in nuclear war the other half would remain, while imperialism would be razed to the ground, and the whole world would become Socialist."

Khrushchev's repeated references to this made clear he had heard it with horror as a demonstration of Chinese recklessness. He kept Peking guessing until June, 1959, then tore up the agreement to give China a sample bomb.

China, without Soviet assistance, was in a position to move forward, despite Khrushchev's abrupt removal of 1,000 Soviet scientists and engineers. The Russians openly told China she was unprepared to enter the nuclear club and would do better to mend her economy. Soviet arguments got nowhere.

Then, in the fall of 1964, came two great upheavals, one technological, one political.

Moscow fired Khrushchev. The Chinese fired their first atom blast.

Town Faces Choice of Girlie ShoworTax Hike

GREENUP, Ky. (AP) -- A group of citizens protesting a bump-and-grind show at the annual county fair have been warned of an imminent tax hike if the hootchy-kootchy is canceled in 1967.

The City Council met Monday and left it up to the volunteer fire department whether to keep the show. The department runs the fair each year.

But a council spokesman said the firemen would lose about $1,200 if it cancels the girlie show -- by far the fair's most popular event.

The $1,200 buys firefighting equipment each year, he said, and a tax would have to be substituted for the profitable dance.

Electric Shock Kills 4

NIXON AND EISENHOWER were together again, only this time it was Julie Nixon, daughter of the former vice-president, and David Eisenhower, the former president's grandson, as they attended a New York movie premiere.

NEW YORK (ANF)—The U. S. Army Office of the Chief of Information (OCINFO), Washington, D. C., and Charleston Army Depot have received Silver Anvil Awards from the Public Relations Society of America for outstanding public relations programs.

Maj. Gen. Keith L. Ware, Chief of Public Information and Chief of Information, and Col. Charles S. Campbell, Commanding Officer, Charleston Army Depot, Charleston, S. C., accepted the awards.

The society presented the awards in its 23d annual program to recognize successful public relations activites in government and business.

OCINFO received its award for an information program during 1966 to make military personnel and the public aware of the newly created position of Sergeant Major of the Army.

The Silver Anvil Award

The Silver Anvil was presented to Charleston Army Depot for its program to create a favorable impression of the facility through imaginative promotional techniques during Armed Forces Week.

The Public Relations Society's Silver Anvil symbolizes the idea that the validity, quality, and achievement of any public relations activity must be forged on the anvil of public opinion. The Army also won two Silver Anvils last year.

A Nation of "Sibphagists"

THE generally accepted estimate of national income has risen from $181.2 billion in 1945 to $554.7 billion in 1965, twenty years later. This is a rise of 205 percent during the past twenty years, and would seem to be the occasion for rejoicing until we note that net public and private debt during the same period rose from $406.3 billion in 1945 to $1,267.5 billion in 1965, for a total rise during the period of 212 percent — just a little more than the rise in the so-called national income. Surely we must all be dismayed to find that debt has risen faster than income.

Dr. Kershner

The awful truth now dawns upon us that we have been borrowing heavily, both as private individuals and as government units, and converting this debt into income. Of course it is not real income — it is mere splurging on borrowed funds. We are mortgaging the future to finance our current extravagance. Instead of storing up a patrimony for our children and our grandchildren, we are using up, not only the wealth we have, but are mortgaging their future. To put a Gothic noun root before a common Greek suffix, we might describe this practice as being that of a "sibphagist," that is, a creature which consumes its own young.

It is the normal desire of parents to leave the best cultural and material heritage to their children that may be within their power. Very few realize, apparently, that our rising debt, though it be converted into income in our time, is actually the squandering of the heritage which we should bequeath to future generations. It is exactly as if one kept increasing the mortgage on his home and continued spending lavishly, with every appearance of prosperity until the mortgage was foreclosed, leaving the family homeless. That's what's happening to America. Every patriot will work and pray that the eyes of our people may be opened before it is too late to reverse the trend — the inevitable trend — toward bankruptcy. We must learn to stop borrowing money and to live within our means, both as individuals and as local, state and federal units of government. There is no health or safety any other way.

JOHN SCOPES says he's happy over Tennessee's legislative repeal of its controversial "Monkey Law" that made him 42 years ago the center of a historic courtroom drama. Gov. Buford Ellington's signature is needed to take the law off books. Scopes now lives in Shreveport, La.

$30 A YEAR FEEDS CHILD

Although many school children throughout Israel are being fed, Americans are being asked for money to feed an additional 50,000 of the children there. The cost, $1,500,000, comes to $30 a child for a year. A tax-deductible contribution may be mailed to United Jewish Appeal, 1290 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Teachers in Israel say that one of the biggest problems they face is that they can feed only some of the children. A U.S. visitor to Israel recently had the unsettling experience of seeing some children, just as hungry, standing outside a classroom watching those inside being fed!

Highest Fertility Rate

The marriage fertility rate of the people of Malta is considered by some authorities to be the world's highest. It is now thought to be about 25 per cent above that of the Republic of Ireland, long regarded as the highest in the world, according to the Encyclopaedia Britannica.

"...will he always be a drunk?"

More than 5½ million Americans are victims of alcoholism. And since it's estimated that every alcoholic affects profoundly the lives of five others, well over a tenth of our population is caught up in some way in this disastrous problem.

Today we know it's a disease of the mind, the body, and, perhaps most important, of the spirit. There are hundreds of thousands of alcoholics who are living proof that the disease can be overcome. And few, if any, of them will tell you it can be done without a complete renewal of the spirit.

Your minister, priest, or rabbi can help you if you or someone you know is fighting a battle with alcohol. Not only will you be directed to the organizations and professionals who have had the greatest success in healing the alcoholic—you may also find the spiritual help for which you've been searching. The spiritual help you'll need.

You've tried everything else, haven't you? Try this and see.

Letters to the Editor

City Police
Sikeston, Missouri

Gentlemen:

On Sunday, July 30, 1967, I stopped at the Holiday Inn in Sikeston, Missouri for lunch, at which time I discovered I had left my purse in the rest room of a service station in Vienna, Illinois. I encountered three Sikeston Police on their way out of the Inn, and I stopped and reported this loss to them. They were kind enough to take a report from me and call the loss in to Vienna, and yesterday, I received my purse with contents intact from Marshall Moss, Standard Station, Vienna, Illinois.

I want to take this opportunity to thank the police of your city for their courtesy to me. They were most helpful and I shall certainly always have a feeling of utmost respect for the police of your city.

I am today sending my check to Mr. Moss in Vienna, as an expression of my appreciation to him for returning the purse to me.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Joe E. Finch

Steamfitter Pay Scale Cut in Jefferson City

ST. LOUIS -- In a reversal of its earlier decisions, the Missouri Industrial Commission has reduced the steamfitter pay scale in Jefferson City to conform with that city's collective bargaining agreemen.

This is a serious blow to attempts by St. Louis Steamfitter jurisdiction of Jefferson City Plumbers and Steamfitters Local 279, because without their higher wages it would not pay the St. Louisians to take over the lucrative state construction projects in that area.

A furor arose last April after The Globe - Democrat disclosed that the three-man commission, headed by an attorney with close ties to local 562, had determined the St. Louis rate in the capital city in the face of a collective bargaining agreement hen and still was in effect.

The Jefferson City mechanical contractors appealed the determinations, the commission ruled against them at a hearing and they took the case to the Cole County Circuit Court.

The case is still pending but, on June 9, the commission suddenly reversed itself and determined the lower scale for an air - conditioning job in a state office building. Since then, all determinations have beer at the Jefferson City rate.

The current pay gap between St. Louis and Jefferson City steamfitters working in Jefferson City is $2.40 an hour.

Journeyman wages (including fringe benefits) for Jefferson City steamfitters is $5.41 an hour, while wages for St. Louis steamfitters working in Jefferson City is $7.81 an hour.

2 -BOWL KITCHEN SINK IS HOMEMAKER'S DELIGHT

If you're going to remodel your kitchen this year, consider the advantages of a 2-compartment sink.

The Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau points out that even in the most elaborate kitchen, the sink remains the focal point of food preparation and cleanup. It should, therefore incorporate every convenience.

One of the newest 2-compartment sinks available has a large deep, general-purpose bowl at the right. The one at the left is shallower, so that an electric food waste disposer can be conveniently installed beneath it. It's intended for cleaning fruits and vegetables.

Ann Landers

Let's Face It Not All Dogs Talk

Dear Ann Landers: Since you caused my problem, perhaps you can tell me what to do about it. You have wrecked my homelife with those ridiculous letters about "talking" dogs.

First let me make it clear that my husband is a solid citizen. I have never known him to go off the deep end about anything -- until he read in your column about the poodle who said "I want to go outside," and the spaniel who spoke Italian.

Now my husband is firmly convinced that if other people's dogs can talk, ours should be able to say something, too. For a week now he has been trying to get our boxer to say, "The rain in Spain falls mainly on the plain." The poor dog doesn't know what to make of it.

My husband has faith in you, Ann, so please tell him in your column that not all dogs can be made to talk and to stop making our home miserable. --- CAN'T GET THROUGH TO HIM

Dear Can't Get Through's Husband: Look, fella -- leave the poor mutt alone. If he hasn't said anything up to now, he's not likely to --- ever. So give up already.

Dear Ann Landers: Last night we went to a party at the home of relatives. An 11- year - old girl was being honored at a birthday party given by her parents.

The child ripped open one beautifully wrapped gift after another, glanced at the contents, tossed the gift aside, then reached for the next gift without uttering one word of thanks or even looking at the person who gave it to her.

After she had opened about a dozen boxes, she became bored, stepped over the gifts as if they were garbage and trotted into the bedroom to try on her new clothes. Her parents didn't say one word to her about her rudeness.

Please tell us if we should say something to the child or to the parents. The girl is becoming more obnoxious by the day. --- CONCERNED RELATIVE

Dear Relative: It is clear from the tone of your letter that you dislike the child. The sad truth is that she is the victim of poor upbringing. It is tragic when children are reared to be selfish and ungracious. Think of what that girl will have to overcome later in life!

Say nothing. Your remarks would not be well received. Do try to understand, however, that the child is not at fault.

Dear Ann Landers: I ama girl 15 who is torn between my mother and my father. They were divorced last month and I am a nervous wreck. I have the choice of going with my mother who has decided to stay in this house or I can move to an apartment with my father whom I love dearly.

If I go with my father I will have to change schools. This means leaving my friends which would kill me. I also feel I should stay with my little sister (who has no choice, she must remain with Mom), but this would mean Dad would have no one while Mom had two.

Please help me decide. --- ONE WHO HATES DIVORCE

Dear One: A 15-year-old girl is usually better off with her mother. A new school plus the emotional problems of a freshly split home is too much of a load. So, stay with your Mom and spend your summers and holidays with your Dad and good luck, honey.

Do you feel ill at ease. . .out of it? Is everybody having a good time but you? Write for Ann Landers' booklet, "The Key to Popularity," enclosing with your request 35 cents in coin and a long, self - addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self - addressed envelope.

If You Were the Judge

Baring Breasts No Cause For Marriage Breakup

By Jack Strauss, LL.D.

Marge had several drinks at a beach party -- but still put up a pretty good front. Particularly when she impetuously appeared among her friends in a topless bathing suit.

The repercussion of the incident occurred several months later. Marge's husband suddenly left her and she sued him for separate maintenance.

"When a woman wears a topless bathing suit," was the defense "her husband has every right to move out without having to pay the high cost of leaving."

"But it wasn't my fault," was Marge's answer. "I got mixed up by mixed drinks."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make a husband support an immodest wife?

This is how the judge ruled: Marge's husband had to pay. The judge held that Marge's immodest conduct, on a single occasion, would have justified his efforts to conceal the exposed portion of her body -- but did not justify his leaving.

And, even if it did, his continuing to live with her for several months after the incident amounted to his condoning her conduct.

A package liquor license was approved for Leona Yarber, 1308 Osage.

An ordinance was approved authorizing the rezoning of two plots in Sunset addition. A hearing on the rezoning was held at the July 3, council meeting.

The Slack and Meek tracts on the north side of Osage were rezoned from B, two family dwelling, to D, commercial district.

The rezoned areas include, the Meek tract bounded on the east by Petty street, and lots 7, 8, 9, and 10 in block 4, Sunset Addition, and lots 6 and 7 in block 5, Sunset Addition, bounded on the north by Osage, on the east by Petty and on the west by an alley between Westgate and Luther.

An ordinance authorizing the issuance of $1,957.24 in tax bills for the construction of a sidewalk on the south side of North street from Bowman to Alabama was adopted. The rate to be charged property owners is 70 cents per square foot.

Another ordinance was passed authorizing the issuance of tax bill for the construction of sidewalks on Washington street from Westgate to Alabama. The total cost will be $1,065.40. Cost to the property owners is 70 cents per square foot.

In miscellaneous business, Miller asked the council if the city should become more strict on the enforcement of a city ordinance, requiring property owners to keep weeds on lots mowed.

As it is now, Miller continued, we act on complaints. If someone complains about an unmowed area, the city trys to call the owner. If he can't be reached, the city mows the lot and bills the property owner. Sometimes the city is paid. Sometimes it is not, Miller said.

The ordinance places the responsibility on the property owner and provides that owners who allow weeds to grow 12 inches commit a misdemeanor. Miller asked if the city should start issuing summonses.

The council told Miller that the city should continue to handle the weed problems as they have been, and wait until next year before issuing summonses to violators.

Miller also reported that he sent a plan to the Federal Aviation Agency for the additional nine holes to be added to the Sikeston country club. The plan requires about 60 acres, of city-owned property near the airport, Miller said.

The plan was forwarded on the assumption that the council will lease it to the country club and that the country club will pay at least as much as the city has been receiving for agricultural use of the property, Miller noted.

AWAITING SENTENCING for not wearing western garb Saturday is City Court Judge Jim Sickal. He was handcuffed to the stop sign at New Madrid and Front streets, before given a dunk in the water trough in American Legion Park.

Insurance Industry in Adjustment to Medicare

NEW YORK (AP) — Nowhere is the ever changing business-government relationship more evident than in the position that much of the insurance industry now takes toward medicare.

Ten years ago medicare was considered a terrible threat. Now some of the country's largest insurers are using their administrative skills and computers to handle much of medicare's paper work under government contract.

To some extent this attitude is merely grudging recognition that medicare is here to stay. But it also reflects new attitudes by insurers, and changes in American social and political customs.

Just a decade or so ago, insurance companies had two criteria for investing policyholders' money: (1) the soundness of the investment and (2) the yield, or return on the invested money. Now a third has been added.

This new criterion, said James Oates, chairman of Equitable Life Assurance, means that "if you are going to be in business for the long term and be effective, then you must invest in the public interest."

This change in a corporation's view of itself is more recent than many people realize. "In 1948, when I was in the practice of law," said Oates in an interview, "nobody thought the corporation had a concern with corporate citizenship."

But the concept of corporate participation in local and national goals is gaining more acceptance. Companies that once thought their only obligation was to stockholders are now declaring that the stockholder is best served by aligning the corporate goal with social goals.

This concept is still only broadly defined. In some companies it means greater participation in community affairs: spending money on education, cooperating on urban projects among deprived citizens and the like.

Increasingly in the past two or three years it is an awareness that profits can be made as well as social goals accomplished in areas such as pollution control, urban renewal, education and health, often under government contract.

To some companies this evolution smacks of government control. But the justification as stated by numerous corporate and government officers is that these jobs, though guided by government, are to be carried out by the profit sector.

Reflecting on these changes, Oates said life and health insurance, "while it had a good record of progress in covering the needs of old people was not so alert as we, in hindsight, might have been."

This record shows that very few health policies existed for those over 65 in the late 1950s. A few years later, as medicare threatened, the number rose.

"But it was too late," Oates recalled. "Processes were in motion and medicare passed." And medicare took over most of the private "over 65" health insurance business.

The company's recent fine results with medicare have called more attention to other "no-risk" areas in which life insurance can use its vast know-how. An example: the company now administers the Tennessee Crippled Children's Program.

Just a week or so ago the board of directors granted authority for the company to go into more of these no-risk areas "incidental and complimentary" to insurance.

Strike Vote Ordered at General Motors Plants

DETROIT (AP)— United Auto Workers' locals at General Motors plants today were ordered to take a strike vote this month to "bring GM executives back to the world of reality."

The union made the announcement after receiving GM's first contract proposal which it said would cost UAW members about $150 million.

In a letter to local union leaders UAW Vice President Leonard Woodcock charged the firm with asking workers to "pay back the 18 cents an hour earned as cost-of-living protection during the term of the present agreement." He said this would take $374.40 from every hourly-rated worker.

General Motors' proposal, made last Thursday, was the first given to the union after four weeks of bargaining. The company asked for credit on the hourly 18 cents cost-of-living increase gained by UAW members since 1964 under the current agreement.

Under the cost-of-living formula, auto workers' hourly wages are adjusted up or down in line with changes in the consumer price index. The change has been consistently upward during the past three years.

The average hourly wage for an auto worker is $3.41.

Contracts covering some 750,000 workers at General Motors, Ford and Chrysler expire Sept. 6. Bargainers for the industry and the UAW have been working on new agreements since July 10.

"All unions have been notified to take a strike vote during the week of Aug. 20," said Woodcock. "Only by rallying our ranks can we bring executives back to the world of reality.

"Our answer to General Motors has been and has to be that we will not change the basic principle of cost-of-living protection but that we insist on modernizing it so it protests the full purchasing power of the negotiated wage," he said. Other demands stressed by Woodcock included "a substantial wage increase for all," a wage inequity fund and elimination of the Canadian wage gap.

Meanwhile, in negotiations with the Ford Motor Co., the union's demand for profit sharing ran into a wall of opposition.

Ford dusted off an old answer Monday to the UAW demand: "No."
